POW Homecomings In Final Countdown

Last Prisoners Are To Arrive Tomorrow

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Operation Homecoming flew 48 more liberated American POWs home today to be followed by a final group of 69 tomorrow, when the last POW held in South Vietnam also will be freed.

Today's repatriation involved the flight of three hospital jets from Clark Air Base, the POW processing center in the Philippines, to four Air Force bases—Scott in Illinois, Kelly and Sheppard in Texas, and Travis at Fairfield, Calif.

When the freedom flights, which have operated with maximum efficiency, wind down they will have delivered 596 POWs to their families in the United States since the first groups of prisoners were released in North and South Vietnam on Feb. 12.

Scores of the returning POWs have recounted harrowing examples of mistreatment and torture at the hands of their captors. A civilian aboard one of the Saturday flights—Ernest C. Brace, a 41-year-old Detroit native—told one of the grimmest stories so far. Brace piloted a plane under contract to the Central Intelligence Agency.

In a voice trembling with emotion, Brace described how he spent nearly five of his eight years of captivity in jungle cages, stocks and solitary confinement, often tied down with a rope over his neck. He was beaten, had his front teeth knocked out, and for a week was buried up to his neck in the ground for trying to escape.

If the release of the last POW goes according to schedule, Army Capt. Robert Thomas White, 32, of Newport News, Va., will be freed tomorrow morning in the Mekong Delta of South Vietnam where he was captured. He will be flown to Clark Air Base from Saigon for the same red carpet welcome accorded all the ex-prisoners.

White's survival was announced for the first time by Viet Cong authorities Wednesday. He was the 596th POW to be released.

Four C141 Starlifter planes, called "freedom birds" by the POWs, will leave Clark at two-hour intervals tomorrow with the final 69 from North Vietnam, nearly all of them Air Force and Navy fliers shot down during the bombings last Christmas.

The repatriates will debark at three of the bases used today—Travis, Scott, and Sheppard—and also at Hickam in Hawaii, Wright-Patterson in Ohio, and March in California.

Maj. Norbert A. Gotner, 37, Sacramento, Calif., who was flown to Travis today, made one of the most moving departure speeches heard at Clark since Operation Homecoming began. He noted that prison life was colorless—an existence bound about by "only blacks and grays."

"I think the first colors I saw as we were waiting in a bus outside the (Hanoi) airfield were on the rudder of an aircraft.

"I saw three colors—red, white and blue.

"And my heart jumped because the North Vietnamese told us that the American public and military would not want us back.

"But we had faith. We knew what to expect. Thank you."

At Clark, processing center director Lt. Gen. William G. Moore said his peak staff of more than 2,000 people will be reduced to a skeleton force after Sunday. But, he said, if more prisoners are announced, the operation can be reassembled "on very short notice."

American authorities have voiced hope that other American POWs will turn up, especially in Laos where some 300 flyers are missing in action. About two-thirds of them were given some chance of survival.

Freer Hand In Watergate Probe Hoped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The ranking Republican on the Senate Watergate committee says he is hopeful that President Nixon's new willingness to let White House aides testify before a federal grand jury will lead to their sworn testimony at public hearings.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the committee's vice chairman, indicated to reporters yesterday that preliminary contacts between the committee and the White House were already under way.

The testimony of White House counsel John W. Dean III, who headed the executive branch investigation into the Watergate break-in, and other top aides is considered essential to the committee's investigation of possible sabotage and espionage in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Nixon announced yesterday his aides would be allowed to testify before grand juries but still refused to let them appear before the Senate committee.

"I took this to be an invitation to negotiate," Baker said. "I'm hopeful that some of these aides will be able to give sworn testimony in open committee hearings."

As a crack opened in the rigid refusal of the White House to permit aides to testify about the bugging of the Democratic National Headquarters at the Watergate complex, these other developments were reported:

—Senate sources said James W. McCord Jr., convicted in the Watergate case and former security chief for the Committee to Re-elect the President, told the committee Wednesday that he knew of other illegal wire taps planed on Capitol Hill. The sources said McCord wants immunity from further prosecution before giving evidence on the other taps.

—Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica postponed sentencing McCord until June 15,

'FUTURE FARE'

'Infinite Life' Theory Is Expounded By Speaker

By PAUL LIBERATORE

How long can a person 25 years old expect to live?

Perhaps forever.

That opinion, often expressed in some scientific circles as the posture of the future, was supported today by Chadd Everone, a researcher in ways to prevent aging. Everone, who is associated with the Foundation for Research on Immortality in Sacramento, spoke at the College of Marin's two-day "Future Fare." (See other story, page 35.)

Everone predicted drastic developments in various scientific areas within 10 years that would expand life spans.

"In the meantime, we can be gaining time by keeping ourselves as young as we are for as long as possible," he said.

Everone, who launched a full day of seminars on the future at the college's Harlan Center, said people should fast at least two full days each week in order to allow the body to eliminate toxins created by foods.

Everone suggested that humans "eat life," meaning foods that are as close to being alive as possible — live plants, seeds, yogurt.

He said that these foods contain "radiant energy" not found in cooked homogenized and prepared foods.

Everone listed Vitamin E as a good means of eliminating toxins from human cells. Vitamin E, he explained, absorbs "free radicals," which are ionized particles that place stress on cells and cause them to deteriorate and age.

Everone told his audience he will be involved in the founding of the first center to study methods of preventing aging. It will be established in Sacramento within eight months.

The center will be funded through private donations. Some of the developments it will study are "blood washout" techniques, a sort of body enema that removes toxins, and new drugs designed to stop senility.

In endorsing the "infinite life" theory, Everone said that an extended life is essential to enable man to "make a meaningful contribution to society."

Amendments Could Alter Commissions

By NELS JOHNSON
(Last of six articles)

San Rafael voters April 17 will be asked to approve three separate amendments to the city charter that would allow the city council to set the size of the parks and recreation commission, fire commission and library board by city ordinance.

The city charter now sets each of the three groups at five members.

A proposal to amend the charter to increase all three bodies from five to seven members was defeated in April 1969 by a vote of 4,149 to 2,488.

Two years earlier, voters approved a charter change enabling a councilman to sit on the parks and recreation commission, fire commission and library board, although no councilman is now a commissioner or board member.

Although the intent of the council is to expand the three groups to seven members, Propositions H, J and K would allow city fathers to expand, decrease or abolish the two commissions and library board at will.

"The city could set the size of a commission at zero or expand it to any number of members," according to City Atty. Fred C. Robbins.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini said it was "possible but not probable" that the council would abolish a commission or the library board should the amendments pass. "Certainly there will never be less than five members," Bettini said. "The amendments are aimed at giving the city more flexibility as well as allowing more people to serve the city."

Chairman of the parks and recreation commission, fire commission and library board expressed mixed feelings about the proposed charter changes.

Expanding the parks and recreation commission to seven members "might be unweildly" but would be an asset "since it would be easier to get a quorum," according to Charles L. Tacchi, chairman. Tacchi said the group has been plagued by absenteeism in recent months.

Bryce W. Anderson, chairman of the library board, was less enthusiastic about the proposed amendment affecting his group. "The library board hasn't asked for a bigger board. Five members is a good, workable size," he said.

H. Robert Ghilotti, chairman of the fire commission, said he opposed expansion of the commission because "five members is best." Ghilotti said he would rather see the size of his commission reduced to three members than expanded to seven.

City Mgr. William J. Bielser noted that the council promised to put the charter amendments on the ballot - in an effort to get more Terra Lindans involved in city government through commission expansion - during annexation negotiations with the Terra Linda Community Services District board last fall.

The city council recently appointed John Govi to the parks and recreation commission and Clifford S. Lund to the fire commission, both of whom live in Terra Linda.

Indians Fail To Show For Meetings

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — Four government representatives drove to a tepee on the outskirts of Wounded Knee today for the first formal negotiations in 13 days with the Indian militants occupying that historic Sioux hamlet.

But no Indian representatives showed up for the scheduled 10 a.m. meeting.

Nixon Sets Welcome For Viet's Thieu

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon today wound up preparations for two days of sumit talks with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu that could set the limits for post-war U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

Thieu, who arrives Monday at Nixon's oceanside villa, is seeking assurances of continued American economic, political and, if necessary, military support for his government.

High on the agenda for the meeting of wartime allies is the sporadic fighting which is continuing in South Vietnam despite the cease-fire which was supposed to have taken effect Jan. 27.

"The provisions of the agreement requiring an accounting for all missing in action in Indochina, the provisions with regard to Laos and Cambodia, and the provisions prohibiting infiltration from North Vietnam into South Vietnam have not been complied with," Nixon said in a televised speech Thursday.

"We have and will continue to comply with the agreement," he said. "We shall insist that North Vietnam comply with the agreement. The leaders of North Vietnam should have no doubt as to the consequences if they fail to comply with the agreement..."

The speech was Nixon's second harshly worded warning to Hanoi in two weeks. Although the consequences have not been spelled out, he was clearly implying that resumed bombing of North Vietnam was a possible result of continued truce violations.

Nixon takes a break from global politics tonight to attend a Hollywood dinner honoring director John Ford.

Expansion Of Park Area In Marin Is Proposed

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Expansion of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area by 323 acres in Marin was proposed yesterday by the Interior Department.

The acreage includes Wolfback Ridge property that the City of Sausalito long has opposed for development.

The department said it plans to add four parcels totaling 373 acres and delete 50 acres around Stinson Beach from the 34,000-acre recreation area created last October by Congress.

The bill creating the recreation area allowed the department to make such boundary changes administratively with the approval of the chairman of the Senate and House interior and insular affairs committees.

The expansion plans were disclosed in a letter from Asst. Secty. of Interior Nathaniel Reed to the two committee chairmen. It was released by Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Fifth District, a prime author of the bill creating the recreation area.

The largest proposed addition is 214 acres on Wolfback Ridge, the last undeveloped property on the ridge. Most of it is owned by Edward R. Fitzsimmons and his partners, who have been dickering for almost three years with the City of Sausalito to develop the area with more than 200 single-family homes.

City and county officials tried last year to get the ridgeland included in the bill, but their proposal came too late in the push to pass the bill before the November election.

Reed said including the parcel "will provide for control of the ridgelands in this vicinity, forestalling further development toward the crest."

The department also proposed adding 145 acres in Ten-

Trade Problem With Soviets Develops; Could Upset Visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet and American diplomats said today trade and security problems could upset tentative plans for Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev to visit the United States in June.

The major problem, according to the diplomats, is whether Congress will grant the Russians preferential status —or most favored nation (MFN) treatment —as called for in the Soviet-American trade agreement last October.

They said the security question, which has received less public attention, is based on fears of possible unpleasant or insulting demonstrations by some Jewish groups.

Soviet diplomats in New York and Washington have been harassed severely in recent years by protesters demanding an end to restrictions on Soviet Jews who want to leave the country. The Russians note that many members of the Jewish Defense League, who were charged with these incidents, have not been brought to trial.

Brezhnev accepted an invitation to come to the United States during President Nixon's visit to Moscow last May. Soviet and American officials later agreed privately that Brezhnev would come in June, although no specific date was set.

The administration now is maneuvering with Congress in an effort to win passage of most favored nation trading treatment for Russia. Such action could increase trade between the two superpowers dramatically.

Kenneth Rush, deputy secretary of state, said told a foreign policy seminar at the State Department last Thursday that he was "optimistic" the measure would pass. His remarks were the first clear signal by the administration that the trading matter was being pushed towards a conclusion.

A large number of senators and congressmen have said they will oppose the trade agreement as long as the Soviet government does not permit

The Sun May Not Last Long; Rain Forecast

It looked like spring in Marin today, but the sunny weather may not last.

The weatherman predicted increasing clouds tonight with a 30 per cent chance of showers, with some clouds tomorrow morning.

Fair skies are forecast for tomorrow afternoon and evening, however, with temperatures ranging from the mid 50s to low 60s.

Showers around the county yesterday ranged from light to heavy, with 1.40 inches of rain reported in Sausalito in the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today and .12 of an inch recorded in San Anselmo.

Other rainfall: Novato, .20; Tamalpais Valley, 1.30; Point Reyes Station, .61 and Woodacre, .38.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Bunker's Replacement Is Named

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has accepted with "very deep regrets" the resignation of Ellsworth Bunker, the U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam since 1967.

Martin

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said yesterday that Bunker, 78, will be succeeded by Graham A. Martin, now ambassador to Italy.

Bunker will be given a new assignment in the near future, Ziegler said.

The white-haired Bunker, who had a successful career in commerce and publishing before entering the diplomatic service in 1950, gained a reputation as a skilled, tactful negotiator.

He headed a three-nation committee to resolve the Dominican Republic crisis in 1965 and was the principle mediator who helped avert war between Indonesia and The Netherlands in 1962.

Bunker's first diplomatic post came when the late President Harry S. Truman appointed him ambassador to Argentina in 1950. He was ambassador to Italy from 1952 to 1953 and to India from 1956 to 1961.

He served as "ambassador-at-large" prior to succeeding Henry Cabot Lodge in Siagon.

Air Surcharge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's airline passengers will begin paying a 34 cent per ticket surcharge tomorrow to defray part of the cost of screening against hijackers.

But the surcharge may be increased later. The 34 cents will not cover the cost of the 4,500 armed guards which the government has ordered posted at 531 airports served by scheduled airline service.

The surcharge was approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) earlier this month to offset the cost to airlines of electronic screening of luggage and inspection of passengers.

Under the system, a passenger will pay the surcharge for each leg of the flight. For example, a passenger traveling from Washington to Chicago, and then changing planes for a flight to Minneapolis would pay the surcharge twice.

Picasso Show

PARIS (UPI) — A showing of 201 paintings by Pablo Picasso will be held in May in the first mass exhibition of new works by the master since 1970.

The paintings, to be displayed May 23 in Avignon, date back to the closing months of 1970. The most recent were completed last month.

Any one of the works could be worth up to $200,000 by the 91-year-old Picasso's own estimate.

Nixon Doctrine

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Defense Secretary Elliot L. Richardson said yesterday the ultimate aim of the Nixon doctrine is to convince America's allies they should assume more of the responsibilities for maintaining world stability.

Richardson said the President believes the United States should not be the guardian of the world but neither should it shrink from its global responsibilities.

Charge Countered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Ralph Nader — backed research group has misled the public by stating that some heart patients are using defective electronic heart pacemakers, according to the major American producer of the devices.

Medtronic Inc. of Minneapolis, Minn., issued a statement yesterday in response to the charges made Thursday by Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Health Research Group.

Wolfe said an estimated 3 per cent — or 900 — of the 30,000 Medtronic pacemakers made before last April could stop functioning without warning.

Leaves For Peking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A five-man advance group, headed by State Department China expert Alfred L. Jenkins, left today for Peking to prepare for the opening there in early May of a high-level American "liaison mission."

The departure of the group came against a background of diplomatic developments emphasizing the extreme importance which the United States and the People's Republic of China place upon their new relationship.

Peking announced yesterday that the chief of its mission in Washington would be Huang Chen, regarded by most authorities here as China's most prestigious diplomat. Huang, ambassador to France until a few days ago, is the only Chinese diplomat known to be a member of the Central Committee.

HOME AT LAST — Army Sgt. Donald J. Rander of Baltimore pats his wife's hair for the first time in over five years. Rander arrived home yesterday. His wife was on hand for the greeting at Valley Forge General Hospital in Phoenixville, Pa. He was captured in February of 1968.

Returning Prisoners Tell More About Life In N. Viet Camps

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Capt. Stephen R. Leopold says if he ever sees "Farnsworth," he will kill him. Maj. Thomas E. Collins III said he can forgive the North Vietnamese who beat and tortured him for 7 ½ years.

Leopold and Collins were among the returning prisoners of war who gave more details of prison life yesterday.

Leopold, of Milwaukee, Wis., said the guard the prisoners called Farnsworth would force the prisoners to stand or kneel for hours with their hands over their heads. Farnsworth would grind his boot into the prisoners' bare feet.

"If I ran into Farnsworth on the street, I'd kill him," Leopold said.

Collins, of Clinton, Miss., who was captured in October, 1965, when his F4 was shot down, said he felt sorry for the Communists.

"They had an inferiority complex, but it was not just that," he said. "It was just realization of the fact that they were inferior and they realized it."

"I know that some men will not be able fo forgive their captors, they are very bitter toward them," Collins said. "I can forgive. I will never attempt to gain revenge."

Collins told of a "kangaroo court" where an interrogator asked him to tell about himself. When Collins said he could not, "He (the interrogator) started beating me, knocking me with his fist on the floor, kicking me," Collins said.

Then a guard pounded a saber on his head and beat him with his shoe.

Afterward he was dragged through a village and placed before a firing squad. The squad turned out to be a bluff, but Collins said "if this was to be my fate, I was ready."

Navy Cmdr. Charles Tanner of Covington, Tenn., spent three of his eight years of imprisonment in solitary confinement.

"I saw nobody but guards from March 11, 1967, to Feb. 25, 1970. I chose not to talk to them," he said.

Tanner said he was tortured five times, one of them lasting 17 days intermittently.

Maj. Robert N. Daughtrey said North Vietnamese doctors operated twice on his right arm which was broken when he bailed out of his jet in 1966. Guards later beat on the arm with hoses, fan belts and rifle butts.

Lt. Col. Kenneth W. North of Wellfleet, Mass., said conditions for the prisoners improved after peace talks go under way in 1969.

"I do not mean they ran up the white flag," North said. "It tooc several months before we were aware of the fact that the treatment had improved, never to the point of humane and lenient treatment."

Air Force Maj. William J. Baugh of Piqua, Ohio, said he was beaten each day over a two-week period. The beatings made him "squirm around like a caterpillar trying to get away."

Baugh, who lost the sight of his right eye when he ejected from an F105 in January, 1967, said seven prisoners received the torture, called the "grinder," after two other POWs escaped from their cell.

The two who escaped, Maj. John Dramesi of Blackwood, N.J., and Maj. Edwin Atterberry of Dallas, were recaptured after one day. Dramesi said he believed Atterberry was later tortured to death.

Meat Industry Attacks Ceiling; Boycott Plans Remain In Effect

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Most farm and meat industry leaders expressed infuriation yesterday over meat price ceilings announced by President Nixon. Spokeswomen for consumers planning a week-long meat boycott said their plans remained in effect despite the President's action.

An opinion perhaps representative of the farmers' viewpoint nationwide was expressed by Elton Berck, president of the Farmers Union in the beef-producing state of Nebraska. Berck charged the President acted "under the advice of Wall Street cowboys and legal fact benders."

He also criticized "labor czars whose anguished bleatings conveniently overlook the fact that skyrocketing labor costs are at the very heart of the alleged problem."

John Trotman, president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, said Nixon's ceiling on meat prices might result in a price rise once the curbs are removed. "The artificial ceiling will depress the economic incentive for cattlemen to continue to expand their herds," he said. "Production could dip and prices could go even higher over the long pull."

Trotman's remarks followed a special meeting of the association's board of directors. The board, he said, "voiced unanimous disappointment" with Nixon's action.

In Chicago, the meatpacking firm of Swift and Co. issued a statement saying, "Price controls can do nothing in the long run to solve the basic causes of the current high prices for meat." The statement said an extraordinary consumer demand raised prices to their current level, and said greater livestock production was necessary to meet the growing demand.

Housewives planning a nationwide meat boycott for the first week in April appeared unimpressed with the Nixon order. Mrs. Ethel Rosen, heading up boycott plans in the Chicago area, said, "Nixon is freezing prices at the highest level they've ever been in the history of the country; we are still advocating a national boycott."

Gertrude Rebel, Tewksbury, Mass., head of Women Against Skyrocketing Prices, said of the Nixon ceiling, "I think it stinks. Our position is to get meat down where it was in February, 1972."

Mrs. Alberta Slavin, who has been urging "meatless Thursdays" in and around St. Louis, Mo., said the timing of the imposition of the ceiling was an "attempt to take the steam out of the boycott."

"If he (Nixon) really had the interest of the consumers at heart, he would have waited until after the boycott period to see what would have happened to the prices."

Texaco To Start Gas Rationing

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Distributors of Texaco gasoline will start rationing gas to 200 service stations here tomorrow for the first time since World War II, the Los Angeles Times said today.

The cutbacks, ranging as high as 47 per cent in some cases, also marks the first time a major oil company's retail outlets have been hit by the nation's growing gas shortage.

Texaco, the nation's largest gasoline retailer, has more than 1,000 outlets in the Los Angeles area, but only 200 will be affected.

The Times said most motorists will still be able to get the gas they need at the 200 stations but those stations will be limited in the amount of gas they can get from distributors.

The distributors' action followed an announcement by Texaco and Mobile On the national level, instructing their distributors that they would be limited to last year's level of purchases.

In past years, a distributor who exceeded his maximum sales quota under his contract with Texaco could keep buying gasoline from Texaxo indefinitely to meet the demand.

Although the distributors will be able to buy as much gas as they did in 1972, customers will receive less fuel because distributors' consumption is running ahead of last year.

"Now we just can't go over what's in the contract," the Times quoted one major distributor as saying. "We're caught in a bind. We have to allocate the supplies among the dealers as fairly as we can."

Service stations supplied directly by Texaco rather than through distributors, will not be affected by the rationing.

Meat Being Purchased In Tijuana

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — Southern Californians have begun crossing the border to buy beef at prices cheaper than those in the United States.

Local meat markets have expressed concern, however, because of the shortage of beef in Mexico and the small profit margin.

A survey Friday showed quality cuts of steak such as filets at 99 cents a pound with New York cuts at 96 cents. Roasts hovered in the 96-cent area with crosscut ribs at 63 cents a pound and boiling beef at 43.

Pork and chicken prices also were far lower than in the United States, but transportation of them across the border was illegal.

Prices are set by the Ministry of Industry and Commerce in Mexico City. The difference normally would not be enough to cause persons to drive the 150 miles from Los Angeles, but the butchers said persons were buying in lots as high as 15 kilograms or 37 pounds.

This has caused a shortage although many persons living in nearby south San Diego normally shop for beef and lower-priced vegetables at local markets.

Another problem is the beef sold here comes from the State of Chiapa, south of Mexico City. The best northern grown beef—from the states of Sonora and Chihuahua—is being exported to the United States. The long transportation also cuts the local profit margin.

College Entrance Exams Are Hit

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Four Marin high school students asked the state Legislature yesterday to reevaluate the college entrance examination procedure, charging the tests are too costly and inneficient in measuring ability.

Deobrah Pell, Stanley Conn, Brian Gottlieb and Mark Snowers, all seniors at San Rafael High School, appeared yesterday at a hearing on a legislative committee's report calling for reforms in the Master Plan for Higher Education.

The students told the legislators they had paid a total of $280 for tests alone, including $10.50 for the Standard Achievement Test and "an unbelievable" $27 for the Advanced Placement Test.

Miss Pell suggested that the money from testing fees be used to pay for personal interviews for students qualified for college work.

Snowers told the Joint Committee on the Master Plan for Higher Education that the tests measure only classroom performance and do not take into account "enthusiasm, creativity and motivation."

Gottlieb said the two tests considered most important for entry to the University of California — the English Composition Achievement Test and the Scholastic Aptitude Test — are designed only to measure achievements.

"What is needed is a personal evaluation system that can measure all of a student's abilities," Conn said.

The seniors also complained that UC received 8,300 applications for tests in the year 1966-67 and each applicant paid $20 for a total of $166,000. Yet only half of the applicants was accepted.

"I ask you, where did the money go?" Miss Pell asked.

The students had all done special research on the testing situation in teacher Virginia Franklin's Government II class and the legislators listened to their report with interest.

"They're bright kids," said Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, committee chairman.

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, March 31, the 90th day of 1973 with 275 to go.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Austrian composer Franz Joseph Haydn was born March 31, 1732.

On this day in history:

In 1870, Thomas Peterson Mundy of Perth Amboy, N.J., became the first American Negro to vote, one hour after ratification of the 15th Amendment.

In 1918, Daylight Savings Time went into effect in the United States for the first time.

In 1968, President Lyndon Johnson announced he would not seek re-election and also ordered suspension of U.S. bombing in North Vietnam.

In 1971, Army Lt. William Calley was sentenced to life imprisonment for his part in the slaying of 22 Vietnamese civilians.

A thought for the day: American humorist Charles Farrar Browne said, "Let us all be happy and live within our means, even if we have to borrow the money to do it."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless, oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Plea Made To Check Charge

Flynn William Harris, 23, of San Anselmo, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a felony count of trying to pass a forged check at a San Rafael bank.

Preliminary hearing is set for April 10.

Harris was arrested by a San Rafael policeman March 19 when he tried to cash a $62 check at the East San Rafael office of Crocker Bank on Third Street.

The bank manager became suspicious when Harris could not describe the owner of the check, Robert Finn of San Rafael, a friend of the manager.

The manager then summoned a policeman who was in the bank at the time. The check, along with 199 others, were stolen from Finn's mailbox that day, Police said.

Joint Session On Redevelopment Plan

The San Rafael City Council will meet in joint session with the Marin Community College District board at 7:30 p.m. Monday in city hall to discuss the city's redevelopment plan.

At 8 p.m., the council will meet in regular session to review new parking regulations required of developments, consider improvement of the Glenwood School playground and review fire protection in unincorporated areas adjacent to the city.

General Plan Map Review To Continue

The Novato City Council will continue its review of the Novato General Plan map at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

Councilmen have been reviewing large parcels of land on which designated uses have been challenged by land owners, who are in most cases seeking higher density on their property.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

8:14 a.m., Mill Valley — Couch fire at the home of Erick Jensen, 200 Helens Lane, started when a child used a match to look under the couch for his dog. No cost estimate of damage to the couch.

7:15 p.m., San Rafael — Wastebasket fire on the second floor of the Marin County Labor Council office at Fifth and Tamalpais avenues. Cause undetermined; $250 damage to wall and ceiling.

8:25 p.m., San Rafael — Vehicle fire at 345 Paloma Avenue caused by broken fuel line. About $500 damage to the engine and hood of the vehicle owned by Rick N. Uemura of Chico.

TODAY:

4:30 a.m., San Rafael — Apartment fire at 1222 Fourth Street of undetermined origin. Occupant Robert Knox was admitted to Marin General Hospital with second and third degree burns. About $7,500 damage to building and contents.

PARK

nessee Valley owned by Allan Olds of Laguna Hills in Southern California. The land is on the west side of Tennessee Valley Road just before it reaches the old Marincello gate.

The other additions are four acres near Muir Beach to prevent a break in the trail system and 10 acres at Stinson Beach for a major trail access point. The 10 acres, owned by Dale and Patricia Keller, inadvertently were excluded from the recreation area.

Reed's letter said the 50 acres at Stinson Beach it wants to exclude are in two parcels, one of 10 acres on the east side of the community and the remaining 40 acres along Panoramic Highway. The bill allowed such exclusions to provide land needed for community expansion.

Reed said the additional acreage, pushing the total private lands to be bought to 16,534 acres, could be acquired without exceeding the $61 million allowed by Congress to buy the park. The rest of the land is owned by the Army, state and City of San Francisco.

Man Nabbed In Probe Of Burglary

A 21-year-old Fairfax man was arrested last night by San Rafael police on suspicion of committing two burglaries Wednesday night.

Richard Sheldon Knowles of 200 Bolinas Road was booked into Marin County Jail and released on his own recognizance by Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire.

Knowles has a record of about 20 arrests on suspicion of burglary and auto theft dating back to 1969. He last was arrested on Feb. 12 on suspicion of burglary after police found him inside the San Anselmo Veterinary Hospital.

His last sentencing for burglary was in November, 1971, when he was sentenced to nine months in jail.

His arrest last night was in connection with two residential burglaries on Aquinas Drive. Property worth $2,396 was reported stolen.

He will appear in Marin Municipal Court on Tuesday.

Plea Slated In Dissolution Of Committee

The Marin County Board of Education will consider member Lee C. Richardson's suggestion that it try to do away with the county committee on school district organization at its meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the county schools office.

Richardson has suggested the board petition the state Board of Education to get the committee's duties delegated to the board.

Also on Monday's agenda is a report on the Nature Conservancy's proposal that the county schools office take over the Marincello Headlands (now called the Martha Alexander Gerbode Preserve) as an environmental education area.

Charge Reduced To Misdemeanor

A felony charge against a 20-year-old woman, who set a fire in her jail cell after being returned from a psychiatric examination, was reduced yesterday to a misdemeanor.

Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court reduced a burglary charge against Bonnie Kay Lee at the request of Deputy Dist. Atty. Edward Torrico.

She was arrested March 21 by Sheriff's deputies who received a report of a burglary attempt at a homstead valley home. The next day she was committed to the Community Menatl Health Center for 72 hours after a jail disturbance.

The day of her return to the jail, she reportedly set a mattress on fire, resulting in the hospitalization of a deputy sheriff who tried to douse the fire.

A pretrial conference on the reduced charge is scheduled for Friday.

Tiburon Council To Study Land Purchase

The Tiburon City Council, meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the library at Reed School, will consider buying 4.75 acres of land from the Marin County Housing Authority for $36,000 to use as a park.

The council also will consider imposing a $25 fee on city council condidates; raising impound fees for animals taken to the Marin County Humane society's pound in Ignacio, and adoption of guidelines for environmental impact reports.

Burn Victim Is Reported As 'Poor'

A 39-year-old San Rafael man was listed in poor condition today at Marin General Hospital from second and third degree burns suffered in an early morning apartment blaze.

According to a hospital spokesman, Robert Knox of 1222 Fourth Street was admitted with third degree burns on his legs and second degree burns on his back.

San Rafael firemen said Knox was injured when flames swept through his bedroom at about 4:30 a.m., causing about $7,500 damage.

Cause of the blaze is under investigation, fire officials said. Damage was broken down as $6,000 to contents of the apartment and $1,500 to the building, which is located in downtown San Rafael.

Three pumper engines and one ladder truck responded to the fire, which did not endanger other occupants of the buiing, firemen said.

Right Waived To Hearing In Burglary Case

A 25-year-old Greenbrae man has waived his right to a preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court on a felony burglary charge.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Municipal Court ordered Edward John Bonadeo to appear in superior court Monday after Bonadeo gave up his right to the hearing.

A second case, in which Bonadeo is charged with concealing stolen property, was continued to April 11 for possible dismissal.

Bonadeo turned himself in to San Rafael police Feb. 21 after a San Anselmo officer recognized a $1,800 ring and a man's watch pawned in San Rafael as stolen property and traced them to Bonadeo.

The burglary charge stems from his arrest March 15 on suspicion of breaking into a parked car in San Rafael. Missing from the car was $201.

Felony Charge To Misdemeanor

A felony burglary charge against two Marin City teenagers has been reduced to a misdemeanor in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Peter Allen Smith reduced the charge against Calvin Andrew Eskue, 19, and James Edward Morgan, 18, at the request of Deputy Dist. Atty. Michael A. Gridley. The prosecutor said evidence problems forced him to reduce the charge.

The two were arrested March 9 near a Homestead Valley home. A babysitter in the house called deputies after she heard the front door being kicked in and voices and laughter inside the dwelling.

A pretrial conference for the two is slated for Monday.

Two Inmates Walk Away From Ranch

Two inmates walked away last night from the minimum security ranch outside the walls of San Quentin, prison officials said.

The men, both found missing at the 9 p.m. count, are Jimmy Mixon, 39, serving a term for credit card theft and possession of a counterfeit seal from Contra Costa County, and Eddie Berry, 33, serving a term for a grand theft in Solano County.

World War I Vets Set Election

Marin County barracks 550, Veterans of World War I, will elect officers at 1 p.m. Thursday in room 225 at the Marin County Civic Center, according to Cmdr. Lee Kentoski.

The meeting is open to all veterans of World War I, Kentoski said. Officers will be installed in May, but the time and place haven't been selected, he said.

Novato Candidates To Talk Wednesday

Eight candidates for the Novato Unified School District board will speak at a candidates night at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Loma Verde School, last in a series of four such meetings in Novato.

The series is sponsored by the League of Women Voters, American Association of University Women and nine local organizations.

Jews to emmigrate freely.

In the last several weeks, however, the Soviet government has indicated willingness to wave or even disregard the high exit taxes which emmigrants have been forced to pay in exchange for the free education they received from the state.

Rush praised the Soviet government for "commendable flexibility" on the issue, which has produced much controversy in the United States.

"There is a grave danger that we might —by pressing too hard legislatively —bring about a counter-productive reaction in Russia producing anti-semitism and reducing emmigration," Rush said. "We think that the best way is not limit the granting of MFN to the lifting of the exit tax.

"We hope and expect a very responsible attitude on the part of Congress. We hope to go forward with the proposed MFN treatment and at the same time have this tax waived by the Russians."

Ex-Convict To Return To Prison; A Part Of Plea

A 30-year-old ex-convict has agreed to return to prison as long as a more serious charge against him is dismissed.

In a plea bargain with Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court, LeRoy Raymond Quintana admitted being an ex-convict in possession of a gun when the judge said he would dismiss an armed robbery charge.

Quintana was arrested last Oct. 3 by San Rafael police after three men with whom he had been drinking told officers he pointed a gun at them and demanded their wallets.

Quintana served a previous prison term for kidnap, robbery and auto theft.

He is to be sentenced April 16.

Board Hopefuls To Talk Tuesday

A candidates night for hopefuls for the Mill Valley School District board in the April 17 election will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the library of the Mill Valley Middle School.

Each candidate will be asked questions by members of the co-soponsoring groups: the League of Women Voters of Southern Marin, the Mill Valley Parent-Teacher Association Council and the Mill Valley branch of the Amerikn Association of University Women.

Candidates for the three vacancies on the board are Eileen Bach-y-Rita, Cate Bauer, Thomas D. Spencer and Harold Drob and incumbents John G. Eliot and John H. Cutler.

Warning Issued On Earthquakes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An earthquake expert says if a temblor with the magnitude of the great 1906 quake hits the Bay Area 10,000 deaths "should be expected from building collapse."

There were 452 persons killed in the 1906 earthquake.

Karl Steinbrugge, a structural engineering professor, said Friday the 10,000 deaths would occur if the earthquake took place along the San Andreas Fault.

He said in a speech to the Commonwealth Club that 7,000 deaths would result if the quake hit the Hayward fault in the East Bay area.

Hearing Set In Pot Case

Preliminary hearing for a 19-year-old San Anselmo resident, arrested because police saw marijuana-like plants growing on his window sill, has been set for April 10 in Marin Municipal Court.

Stephen Thomas Clark was arrested March 16 in his home at 19 Tamalpais Avenue after an officer saw seven plants growing in the kitchen. Eleven more plants were found in the bathroom, police said.

Clark has pleaded innocent to a felony charge of possessing marijuana.

Hearing Is Monday On Superintendent

Trustees of the Mill Valley School District will hold a closed session at 8 p.m. Monday at the district services center, 70 Lomita Drive, to discuss hiring a new superintendent.

Four finalists for the post have been selected by a interview committee.

OBITUARIES

Anthony J. Simas Dies At 65

Anthony J. (Tony) Simas of San Rafael, who once worked on the Northwestern Pacific Railroad's trains and ferries, died today in a San Francisco hospital after a long illness. He was 65.

A native of Sausalito, he was a lifelong resident of Marin and resided at 120 Meriam Drive.

As a youngster, Simas used to hawk candy on weekend ferryboat excursions between Sausalito and Paradise Cove. The railroad, which operated the boats, hired him for errands and then gave him an apprenticeship in 1925.

He became a journeyman boilermaker in 1929, then switched from the Sausalito railroad shops to the ferryboat fleet, eventually gaining an assistant engineer's license.

Simas was a member of Native Sons of the Golden West, Seapoint Parlor, and the Sons of Italy.

He is survived by a daughter, Yvonne Katzer of San Rafael, five sisters, Josie Camara of Sausalito, Mary Burns, Delores DeRosa and Lydia Roberts of San Rafael and Nora Rodrigues of San Francisco and a brother, Joseph Simas of Manteca. He is also survived by four grandchildren.

Mass of Resurrection will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Sausalito. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

The family prefers contributions to the Cancer Research Fund, Harkness Hospital, San Francisco.

PROBE

obviously to permit him to continue his cooperation with both Senate investigators and the grand jury.

—G. Gordon Liddy, also convicted in the Watergate case and former finance counsel or the re-election committee, refused Sirica's orders to testify before the grand jury under the cloak of immunity. His attorney, who indicated earlier that such testimony might jeopardize his right of appeal, said Liddy would be called before Sirica Monday to face contempt proceedings.

—The Washington Post reported today that McCord told the committee that he had almost daily conversations with former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, then Nixon's campaign manager, last spring. This would be in conflict with Mitchell's statement that he had spoken with McCord only once or twice.

Rezoning Plans Before Council

The Rohnert Park City Council will hear two separate rezoning requests covering 246 acres at its meeting Monday at 7 p.m. at city hall.

Spivock Co. will ask residential and commercial zoning on 175 acres north of the Rohnert Park Municipal Golf Course, while Qantas Deveopment Corp. seeks single-family residential zoning for 71 acres south of Southwest Boulevard.

The council will also hear a report on plans to relocate the Rohnert Park branch of the Sonoma County library in Cotati.

STANLEY KERK

Stanley C. Kerk of Larkspur, a retired printing broker, died yesterday in a local hospital after a brief illness. He was 77.

Kerk, of 223 Magnolia Avenue, had operated his own business in San Francisco for 12 years.

Born in Philadelphia, Kerk moved to California a half-century ago and lived in Marin for 45 years.

He was an Army veteran of World War I.

Survivors are his wife, Mary Elizabeth Kerk; a daughter, Patricia Fuller of Mill Valley, and two grandchildren.

Private funeral was held today in Mill Valley. Burial was private. Memorial gifts may be made to a favorite charity.

ART NAPOLETANO

Art (Aristide) Napoletano, a long-time Marin County resident, died yesterday at a local hospital following a long illness. He was 78.

A native of Naples, Italy, he moved to California 64 years ago and to Marin 47 years ago. He resided with his wife, Anna, at 19 Taylor Drive, Fairfax.

Prior to his retirement, he owned and operated the Lathers Mat Manufacturing Co.

Besides his wife, Napoletano is survived by a son, Art Napoletano Jr. of Corte Madera; two sisters, Gemma Lofasso and Clelia Koch, and four brothers, Amedeo, Mario, Ugo and Renato Napoletano of San Francisco and Hayward.

He was a member of the Golden Gate Speranza Lodge 30, Free and Accepted Masons.

Funeral will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the Chapel of the Hill Mortuary in San Anselmo, under the auspices of the Golden Gate Speranza Lodge. Inurnment will be private.

The family requests memorial contributions to the Cooley's Anemia Blood and Research Foundation, 3366 Hillside Avenue, New Hyde Park, N.Y.

Magee Jury Is In Sixth Day

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The judge in the kidnap-murder trial of San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee promised to define today the meaning of "extortion" and "specific intent" to a jury entering its sixth day of deliberations.

Magee, 34, is accused of killing Judge Harold J. Haley and kidnaping five hostages during an abortive escape attempt from the Marin County Hall Of Justice in August 1970. Four persons, including Haley, were killed in a gun battle in the parking lot.

Angela Davis was acquitted last June of similar murder and kidnaping charges stemming from the incident.

DEATH NOTICES

Ex-Convicts Are Given Right To Cast Ballots

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Supreme Court yesterday gave ex-convicts their right to vote, ruling that their disenfranchisement is no longer needed to prevent election fraud.

The high court's unanimous ruling held that refusal to register former convicts who have completed their prison and parole periods violated the equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution.

The court struck down provisions of the State Constitution which prohibited voting by persons convicted at any time in the past of "infamous crimes." the Election Code listed 150 felonies and misdemeanors which fell into that category.

Acting in a case brought by the League of Women Voters, three other organizations and three ex-convicts, the court said that the historic reasons for denying ex-cons the franchise were no longer valid.

They were originally forbidden to vote to deter election fraud by "immoral and dishonest voters." When the State Constitution was adopted in 1850, the court said, free liquor, premarked ballots and transportation to the polls could influence election results.

"To do so in 1973, if possible at all, would require the coordinated skills of a vast squadron of computer technicians," the decision said.

Abran Ramirez, 43, a farm worker, was listed as plaintiff in the suit. Ramirez, who was convicted of assault 21 years ago in a Texas restaurant fracas and completed his parole 11 years ago, was denied the right to register by San Luis Obispo County authorities.

Peruvian Indians believe that a man who is struck by lightning and survives will be restored to full health by a sip of vicuna blood, National Geographic says.

Roll Back Of Rents Ordered

BERKELEY (UPI) — Berkeley's new rent control board has ordered landlords to roll back rents to their levels in August 1971.

The action was taken as the board declared that the rent control ordinance adopted by the electorate in the elections last June is now in effect.

The ordinance provided for a rent rollback 90 days after the election of the new board, and the board was elected Jan. 23.

The board also adopted procedures for staging public hearings for landlords and tenants. Another set of procedures was adopted to provide information on what rent levels in 1971 were.

National Parks Officials Say $28 Million Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National Park Service officials said yesterday they need another $28 million to keep parks from deteriorating but that the White House probably wouldn't let them spend the money even if Congress gives it to them.

The needed operating money, Park Service officials said in testimony before a Senate appropriations subcommittee, is not in President Nixon's budget for the 1974 fiscal year.

Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., chairman of the Interior appropriations subcommittee, suxcommittee, said the committee "just might add" the money to the budget and asked whether the Park Service would be allowed to spend it.

"I'm not sure we'd be permitted to spend it," Park Service Director Ronald H. Walker replied. "But I'd like to have the money."

Walker said he did not bebelieve the Office of Management and Budget would allow use of the money "at this time." Bible was critical of Administration plans for adding new areas to the National Park System while refusing to provide development funds for such areas and also letting existing parks deteriorate for lack of operating and maintenance funds.

"I believe it's an absolute crime to go running around waving flags and creating new areas while the old areas fall into disrepute," Bible said.

Assistant Interior Secretary Nathaniel P. Reed defended proposals for adding new park areas, saying development funds probably would be available after the fiscal 1974 "budget crunch" is over.

Reed also defended the Nixon Administration's emphasis on parks in urban areas despite Bible's citation of a study suggesting that the Park Service get out of urban recreation and work harder to preserve existing parks.

Reed said both Congress and the Administration had shown "great wisdom" in authorizing the Golden Gate National Recreation Area in San Francisco and the Gateway park at the entrance to New York harbor.

Reed and Walker both described the Golden Gate and Gateway recreation areas as "outstanding examples" of President Nixon's "Parks for the People" program.

But in response to Bible's questions, they admitted that there was not one cent in the fiscal 1974 budget for development of the two urban parks.

A rattlesnake's age usually can be determined by the number of its rattles, most having two rattles for every year of age.

HEAD OF BOTANICAL GARDENS

She Grows Greenery In Brooklyn

NEW DIRECTOR of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden in New York. Elizabeth Scholtz is the first woman to head the garden and one of the few women in directorial jobs in botanical gardens in the U.S. She calls it "the busiest 50 acres of this kind on earth."

(UPI Telephoto)

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of trees grow in Brooklyn for Elizabeth Scholtz. Also, other flora—in all, some 14,000 specimens of plant life over which she exercises her green thumb.

Miss Scholtz is the new director of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, the first woman to hold the past in the garden's 63-year history and one of the few women in directorial jobs in botanical gardens in the nation.

What sets her even more apart is the fact she's directing gardens in the heart of an urban area—"the busiest 50 acres of this kind on earth," she says of the parent gardens in Brooklyn.

In addition, the gardens have outreach stations of 600 acres in Westchester County, where much research goes on, and 12 in Nassau County, on Long Island, where plans are for a miniversion of the Brooklyn Garden.

Research goes on in Brooklyn too, but what makes it the "busiest 50 acres" are the visitors, some 1.5 million a year who come from all over the world to look at and-or study.

"WE'RE DEDICATED to people," said Miss Scholtz, who's a native of Victoria, South Africa. There are children's and adult classes with some 70 courses scheduled in a year.

In addition, there are more formal lectures on everything from the art of bonsai cultivation (the garden has a "fabulous" bonsai collection, she said) to plant hunting in the Himalayas.

Miss Scholtz explained that the garden gets some support from New York City but the bulk comes from endowments, gifts and fees from its 5,600 members in every state and 20 foreign countries. Members receive the garden publications and may come to the special lectures. But all admission to the garden is free.

I visited with Miss Scholtz just as the Japanese cherry trees were about to burst into blossom and as a host of golden daffodils was about to blanket a hillside with spring splendor.

"You should be outside two weeks from now," she said as we walked through greenhouses in full flower. "This place is enchantment."

THE DIRECTOR sort of backed her way into botany from a medical family. Her father and one brother are surgeons, her mother is a nurse and an "enthusiastic gardener."

The director holds a degree in botany but turned to medical research in the 1950s, both at Harvard and in the Cape Town, South Africa, hospital where Dr. Christiaan Barnard did the first heart transplant.

She "got to know" the garden through a South African researcher and in 1963, its management offered her a post. When Dr. Louis B. Martin, the director, went to the Chicago Horticultural Society as president, she served as acting director for a while until the "acting" was removed.

Role Of Environment In Learning Studied

By DAVID A. LAWSKY

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Some children who don't listen in school may have spent their infancy falling asleep to soap operas, the six o'clock news and Johnny Carson.

But it wasn't sad stories, bad news or tired jokes that turned them off. What happened, theorizes Dr. Kathryn Barnard, was that as infants they learned to block out a bombardment of sound so they could fall asleep. As children, they never quite tuned back in.

The process is only one of dozens Dr. Barnard is exploring for the National Institute of Health's Division of Nursing, to find out how environmental differences affect learning.

So far, preliminary work shows environmental differences are so important in learning that children from some environments do worse in school than even brain-damaged children.

NONETHELESS, ALTHOUGH sales exist for measuring what babies can do, there is no standardized measure for infant environment.

So Dr. Barnard set out to develop one. She knew that the children of poorly educated parents usually did poorly in school, while children of highly educated parents were generally also the ones with te money.

Such broad indicators told her little about how parents raised their babies. To find out more about the specifics of baby learning, she decided to videotape mothers with their babies.

Borrowing her approach from research done over the last 10 years, Dr. Barnard asked mothers to teach their babies tasks just beyond the children's achievement levels. Each lesson was recorded behind a one-way mirror.

The mothers knew they were being taped, but the mirror prevented intrusions by technicians and equipment on mothers and children.

The researchers studied the tapes with great care, sometimes spending up to eight hours viewing and reviewing a single segment.

BUT ALL work since the study started in July, 1971, has been preliminary to the major understanding that begins this spring. Dr. Barnard and her associates will follow 200 children from birth until at least the age of six.

Dr. Barnard will attempt to predict how each of the 200 infants will do as school children.

Dr. Barnard believes from her work so far that "we can find out more from listening to parents than by examining a child. Parents know if their children have a problem."

Listening to parents is exactly what Dr. Barnard's team plans to do, but as a control the babies will also be given development tests and be examined by a pediatrician. Dr. Barnard believes she'll be able to catch problems like mental retardation long before the pediatrician finds them.

For example, it would not be a doctor but a parent who notices that a baby prefers to learn by tasting and touching instead of by seeing and hearing. If questions catch that tendency, parents can be warned that trouble may lie ahead, because school learning of course depends on what a child sees and hears.

IT'S IMPORTANT to catch such tendencies young because, according to French child specialist Jean Piaget, a child learns the process of taking in information by the age of two.

If the study confirms Dr. Barnard's work so far, she'll compile her questions into a scale for parents. The parenting scale will reveal any problems the baby might have and pinpoint environmental problems.

Someone has to interpret the scale to parents once it's given, and Dr. Barnard believes that someone should be a nurse.

"Nurses are concerned with the nitty gritty problems," said Dr. Barnard, herself a professor of nursing at the University of Washington. "What other professional is concerned with teaching a mother how to bathe her baby?"

Should nurses be chosen to explain the parenting scale, they can expect an expanding role. Dr. Barnard believes the scale will become more and more important as the emphasis on health care continues to shift from treating illness to health maintenance and preventive care.

MOIRA SHEARER
Will appear in Marin

Moira Shearer To Be A.M. Series Speaker

Ballerina and actress Moira Shearer will present a program including a lecture, "Out of My Life," and the showing of her film, "The Red Shoes," for the next A. M. series program April 13 at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

The lecture will begin at 10:30 a.m., and following a break for lunch the film will be shown at 1 p.m.

Following three tours of the United States with the Sadler's Wells Ballet (now the Royal Ballet) the Scottish born ballerina made "The Red Shoes" in 1947. Her other films are "Tales of Hoffman" and "The Man Who Loved Redheads." She has also toured the United States with the Old Vic Company in Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

She and her husband, Scottish writer and journalist, Ludovic Kennedy, live in Scotland with their two daughters. She is a member of the Scottish Arts Council and the General Advisory Council to the British Broadcasting Company in London.

Tickets are available at the Marin Memorial Box Office.

ON THE AGENDA

Marin Branch Of AAUW To Host Civic Center Session Wednesday

Members of the Marin Branch, American Association of University Women have designated Wednesday as Civic Center Day 1973 and have invited members of the Mill Valley and Novato branches of AAUW and of the League of Women Voters to join them for the all-day program at the Marin County Civic Center.

Purpose of the program, according to the chairman, Mrs. H. James Compton, is to get to know the workings of local government and officials so members can be effective citizens and make government more responsive to their needs.

Participants will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the lobby of the main entrance, where a tour of the Civic Center will begin. At 10 a.m. in the board of supervisors chambers talks on city and county services will be given by Harold Truett of the Marin County Public Defender's Office, Marin County Administrator John Barrows and Sausalito City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr.

A luncheon will be held at noon at the Holiday Inn. Speakers will be Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini, Robert A. Roumiguiere and Arnold M. Baptiste, who will discuss local situations and issues, and Larkspur councilman Joan Sestak, discussing the role of the city council.

Copies of pamphlets, "Your County — Marin," by the League of Women Voters; and one on city government by Novato City Manager Charles Brown will be distributed.

Mrs. Marvin Licht of San Anselmo is luncheon reservations chairman, and other committee members are Mmes. John Grasham of Kentfield, Joseph Turina, R. J. Houston, Harry Bach and Edward Meyers of San Rafael and Lynne McClellean-Loots of Fairfax.

DIANE MAC MILLAN of San Rafael will be the speaker for the Women's Architectural League coffee and pastry party Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. at the Marriott Inn at the Berkeley Marina.

A briefing session for tour hostesses and guides for the American Institute of Architects convention on May 8 in San Francisco will also be held.

Mrs. MacMillan is the author of a cookbook, "Coffee Cuisine," and hosts the KTIM radio show "Kitchen Time in Marin." Her book will be for sale at the convention, and a portion of the sales will be donated to the league.

A PANEL discussion, "Women's Position in Today's Society," will be held by members of the Rohnert Park Women's Association Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Rohnert Park Community Center.

SEVEN MEMBERS of Upsilon Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will attend the April brunch of the Northern California Council of Beta Sigma Phi tomorrow at His Lordship's restaurant in Berkeley.

The members will present the chapter's donation to Cystic Fibrosis and the Kidney Foundations. Those attending will be Mmes. B. E. Epler, W. Charles Klug, Robert Berry, Charles Root, Franklin Beale, Ralph Gerrard and James Schyberg.

Spring Hats Small For Short Hair

For short spring hair styles, spring hats are small, says the New York Couture Business Council. Petite berets go well with the short page boy style. Tiny brimmed cloches, turned up or down, top short hair.

The turban is back and looks great with everything: it covers hair problems, frames the face and gives a neat, sculpted look, the council reminds.

The Trend This Spring Is Homespun

Spring takes to new dimensions in surface interest. Created-to-be-touched fabrics raise quite a what-to-do with homespun fibers. And, basketweaves have a picnic, pucker-picking.

The whole set-up designs fresh scenery for back-to-classic fashions.

Old-fashioned looks get a fresh revision. Eyelets are seen as apple blossoms, fancy fruit and all-over patterns. Of polyester-and-cotton or polyester-and-rayon fabrics, they appear softly for spring.

Of the same blends are plain or flocked linen-look fabrics. Their open air appearance calls to mind an Irish countryside influence.

Putting on natural airs are muslin-looks of polyester-and-cotton canvas in print and patchwork patterns.

Polyester, cotton and blends of the two may show up textured in slubbed wovens or knitted for a nubby effect.

Seersuckers with pucker power may combine stripes and crinkles in lightweight fabric blends.

Puffy mohair and fuzzy angora have taken off weight for pastel sweaters and evening dresses.

When the sun goes down, the stars come out. Nighttime's the perfect setting for romantic fashions in smooth flowing nylon jersey, softened rayon crepes, rippling cotton organza and feather-light nylon chiffon.

Some Toppers Are Suggested

What to wear as toppers this season: cardigan sweaters, fitted jackets, blazers and capelets, suggests the New York Couture Business Council.

Lengths vary this spring from something called the "baseball blouson" that stops near the waist, to longer looks to the hip.

Suits are back and the jacket may be a part of the two and three-piece outfit this year. The skirt may be pleated. Add a pair of pants and you have a basic wardrobe, suggests the council.

Top it all off with the flared tent coat, the wrap or the four pocket trenchcoat with drawstring waist.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Clothes-Washing Mom Makes Life Miserable For Daughter

DEAR RAP:

My mother goes through my dresser drawers and throws things out and washes my tops and dungarees because she thinks they aren't clean.

I don't mind her looking in the drawers, but she always shrinks my clothes. Seems like every time she puts them through the washer they're a little smaller.

I tell her I want to do these things by hand, but she figures "mother knows best," and I won't get them clean enough.

Then I asked her to stay out of my drawers, and she said "As long as you live here, I'll do whatever I want."

Then if I ask her to buy me new pants or tops (because they've shrunk) she says I don't need them.

I feel I'm entitled to — 1. Privacy; 2. The right to wash my own clothes; and, 3. To decide when they need washing.

She thinks I'm making such a big thing about this that I need a psychiatrist.

What do you think? — F.P., AGE 17.

DEAR F.:

What you definitely don't need is — a shrink. — SUE.

DEAR F.:

What you definitely do need is a mother who realizes a 17-year-old girl is quite capable of making her own decisions on cleanliness . . . not to speak of privacy, and hand-washed clothes. Hope she's listening! — HELEN

DEAR RAP:

This girl used to be swell until she went on a diet and lost 30 pounds. Now she thinks she's the greatest thing since Twiggy.

She poses in front of the mirror, and she even kisses her image once in a while. She's always calling other girls fat which we aren't, and she thinks she can get any of our boyfriends, which she can't.

I helped her reduce by talking her out of eating junky stuff and praising her for every pound lost. She repays me by chasing my guy. He says he can't stand her, but I see him looking.

What should I do? — TOO HELPFUL AND SORRY

P.S. It wasn't easy, making her lose, as she's a big eater by nature and always tempted.

THAS:

You might send her a big box of chocolates and hope for a relapse. — HELEN

TOO HELPFUL:

Or you might give her a little more time to gloat over her new image — before you tell her people who fall in love with themselves hardly ever win other people's love. — SUE

(Note to my co-pilot: It isn't nice to tempt Nature, Mother!) — SUE

DEAR RAP:

You said nothing helps baldness but a hair piece or transplants. I disagree.

A year ago my hair was getting thin (I'm female, but this works on males too), so I took the advice of a fashion designer and mixed (daily) three tablespoons of raw wheat germ in my food, along with drinking milk and eating eggs. My hair grew back in — thicker. You can get raw (not toasted) wheat germ at health food stores. — J.B.

DEAR READERS:

I'm not convinced raw wheat germ cures baldness, but it's crawling with vitamins, bloodbuilders, etc., so there's no harm in trying. You may come up healthier, even though no hairier. — HELEN

SUSAN IRENE WISE
To wed John Pfaff

Engagement Of Couple Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. John Sherwin Wise of San Anselmo have announced the engagement of their daughter Susan Irene to Glen John Pfaff of Fairfax.

Susan was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and the College of Marin. She is the sister of Mrs. Daniel Lochman of Texas and Elizabeth, John, Michael and Margaret Wise of San Anselmo.

She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Wise and Mrs. Jere F. Spillane, all of New Jersey.

Susan is employed with McCutchen, Doyle, Brown and Enersen of San Francisco and is a member of Voice for the Unborn.

Glen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Pfaff of Fairfax and the brother of Gary L. Pfaff of Walnut Creek. He is the grandson of John Scagliola of Fairfax.

The future bridegroom was also graduated from Drake High School and attends California State University, Chico.

Vietnamese Adopted

Mr. and Mrs. David O'Conner and their daughter Elizabeth of San Rafael have "adopted" a 13-year-old Vietnamese boy through the Foster Parents Plan. The boy, Ung Van Nguyen, lives with his family, which will also benefit from the plan.

SEW SIMPLE

The Basic Dress Gives Your Best Travel Wear

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I am taking a business trip for a long weekend. I am very limited in the amount of clothes I can take and want to get the most mileage I can. Can you suggest a basic dress?

MRS. M.H.

DEAR MRS. M.H.,

Since you didn't tell me where you are going, I'm at a loss about the weather. However, I will tell you about one of my favorites that could take you almost around the world, regardless of the temperature because of the versatility.

This basic dress can be worn several ways. First, it had a dropped sleeve which is much more attractive than a sleeveless dress. It has a jewelry neckline, perfect to accessorize with chunky beads, pins or scarfs. If the weather is cooler or you will be in air conditioning, this great jumper-type dress can be worn over a shirt blouse. It can be belted or worn straight.

The lines of this garment are simple and adjust easily to many figures. It can be made into a floor-length dress or a tunic-length to wear with pants.

I would suggest a fabric that doesn't wrinkle, a fibranne (rayon that looks like linen but holds up like iron), a woven polyester, a fairly heavy polyester knit, Italian silk and double woven cotton. Your choices are almost unlimited.

Mrs. Bjarne Haugen, Reynoldsburg, Ohio, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"When putting appliques on garments for children or adult, here's my method which is so simple and quick. Buy some of the fusible polyweb, cut it slightly smaller than each applique. Place the applique on top of the polyweb and place it in the correct position on your garment and steam press in place. If your fabric can't be pressed on the right side, lightly steam it in place and then turn the garment to the wrong side and press with the required heat and pressure of your iron. Using this method, one is not limited to the ready-made appliques. The fusing polyweb will hold the cutout without zig-zagging the outer edges, even through many washings."

DEAR EUNICE,

With all the new fabrics on the market and all the new names, I am very confused about what I am actually buying. I have noticed in ready-to-wear as well as fabric shops, many fabrics are made of fibranne. These look much like linen, but don't wrinkle. What is the advantage over Irish linen?

MRS. S.M.M.

DEAR MRS. S.M.M.,

There is a great return to woven fabrics in the fashion picture. It's quite a relief to those of us who love this kind of fabric rather than just knits.

Linen is also on the fashion picture. It doesn't wrinkle like it used to in the past. All the pure linen that I have seen is wrinkle resistant.

Fibranne is a rayon fiber that is woven to look exactly like linen. It is even more practical than real linen because it is completely washable, and you simply can't wrinkle it. In these days of easy care garments, it has become very popular both with better ready-to-wear and with the home sewer. Fibranne is also a fiber that is combined with silk, cotton, and wool for its wrinkle resistant qualities.

You will find that every asset has a liability. Because it doesn't wrinkle, the twisted yarns ravel much easier than most fibers. Therefore it is advisable to hand overcast your seams. You may do this on the machine, if you are sure your overcasting stitch doesn't draw up the fabric and tighten the outer edges.

DEAR EUNICE,

My spring jacket is double-breasted, and I am having difficulty with the buttons I have selected. They are not "sew through" buttons, and they have a shank. The buttons that are simply decorative on one side hang down instead of laying flat on the jacket. Is there any way these buttons will work?

MRS. L.P.T.

DEAR MRS. L.P.T.,

There isn't much that can be done with buttons that have a shank. Some of them really do extend quite far. No matter how tight they are sewn to the garment, they will still hang down.

Once in awhile you will find the shank is simply a twist of metal that can be flattened down on the buttons that won't be actually buttoned.

It's best to choose a sew-through button or else one that has the shank actually cut into the button instead of extending.

Incidentally, buttons are quite expensieve and so many are being used on each garment, may I suggest you purchase an extra one.

Tapestries from Europe

The most extensive collection of large wall hangings, miniatures, bell pulls and woven tapestry cushions will go on display and be available for purchase for a limited time.

Included are some fine examples of tapestry weaving from the Gobelin workshops in France and several recreations of medieval German wall hangings.

The exquisite handiwork and beauty of design are well suited for decorative use in Marin homes. This is the very first time, however, that a large selection has been available.

Individual pieces will be available for delivery at the conclusion of the showing.

ONE WAY STREET PATTERN
CENTRAL BUSINESS DISTRICT
CITY OF SAN RAFAEL

ONE-WAY STREET CONVERSION

These four side streets in downtown San Rafael — A, B, C and D streets — will be converted to one-way at 6 a.m. tomorrow if no rain has fallen within the preceeding 12 hours, according to Norris M. Rawles, director of public works. Weather permitting, A Street will become one-way northbound from Second Street to Fifth Avenue and C Street one-way northbound from First Street to Fifth. B Street will become one-way southbound from Fifth to Second. The day-long conversion will require staggered closings of the four streets, Rawles said.

Tam High Board Will Hear Pitch For Funds

The Tamalpais High School District board will be asked to approve spending $322,915 from special reserve funds for maintenance and rehabilitation at the district's three high schools at its meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Tamalpais High School student center.

Most of the money would be spent at the oldest school, Tam High. That school's total of $200,715 includes electrical and heating and wall reconstruction work.

The most controversial sum is $84,000 to renovate Redwood High School's athletic field, and the district's management council has recommended that work not start until engineering studies assure its subsoil problems can be solved. The field is on filled land.

Also before trustees will be requests for sabbatical leaves for six teachers.

Ferry Base Is Switched To Sausalito

The recent fire that destroyed San Francisco's Pier 7, and with it the Sausalito ferry's base, has led to expanded service because the ferry now is based in Sausalito.

New schedules, showing the additional early morning and late evening runs and several changes in afternoon scheduling, are available aboard the ferry and at the terminals. The changes were effective yesterday.

New to the weekday schedule is a 9:25 p.m. departure from San Francisco, arriving in Sausalito at 9:55 p.m. The last ferry from San Francisco under the old schedule was at 8:10. The only change in the weekday schedule was to shift the 2 p.m. departure from Sausalito to 1:55 p.m., arriving in San Francisco at 2:25 instead of at 2:30.

New to the weekend and holiday schedule are a 9:45 a.m. departure from Sausalito, arriving in San Francisco at 10:15, and an 8:20 p.m. departure from San Francisco, arriving in Sausalito at 8:50.

Other afternoon changes on weekends and holidays, ranging up to 15 minutes, appear on the new schedules.

The ferry now is berthed nights at the Army Corps of Engineers pier.

Major Rezone Requests Before Petaluma Council

The Petaluma City Council will hear two major rezoning requests in sessions at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Monday at city hall.

In the afternoon meeting, the council will hear the request of Young and Stokes for a planned community district between Casa Grande and Frates roads that would enable a K-Mart department store, apartments and single homes.

The evening session will center on the request of Arthur Condiotti Enterprises to rezone land on the I Street extension at Sunnyslope Road for the future westridge subdivision. A petition of opposition signed by 415 residents will be submitted.

Neighbors have complained the subdivision will create traffic and drainage problems.

Plea For More Bus Drivers Hit

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A minority of Golden Gate Bridge District directors, including San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini, yesterday blocked a staff plea for more bus drivers to prevent a cutback in commuter service.

Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White said after the vote that the cutbacks now seemed inevitable, and that they would be announced next week. He told newmen he did not know how serious the reduction in service would be.

White acknowledged he probably could stall the cuts until after the board's next meeting on April 13, thus giving time for reconsideration of his plea for 12 more drivers.

Bettini said he opposed the extra staff at this time because no provision had been made in the current district budget, although district auditor Robert Tough said $100,000 for the additional drivers, as well as for two more bus mechanics and a bus schedule analyst sought by White, was, in fact, included in the spending program.

The extra positions would cost about $285,000 next fiscal year.

The vote on the 15 new positions was 9-3, one short of the 10 needed. Six directors were absent.

Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, pointedly observing that Bettini's vote would hurt Marin commuters, branded it as "mischievous."

Wornum and Marin's third representative on the bridge board, Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley, voted with the majority.

Bettini, appointed to the bridge board by Wornum and his fellow supervisors, told the Independent-Journal after the meeting that he will reverse his vote if the issue first is reviewed favorably by the finance committee, meeting next on April 12.

Bettini also said after the meeting that he had not been forewarned that service cuts would be necessary without the additional drivers. Other directors, however, said the staff had made it clear in committee on Thursday that service cuts would result without the extra drivers. Bettini attended the Thursday meeting.

The mayor conceded the drivers "obviously are needed," but objected he would not vote for them unless "proper procedures were followed." He also said it was not certain that the finance committee would recommend the extra drivers.

The chairman of the committee, Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco, was one of those voting against hiring the extra drivers.

White told newsmen he has managed to operate 97 per cent of the bus fleet only by heavy overtime scheduling of drivers. State law, however, limits overtime for drivers, and the maximum will be reached in about two weeks, he said.

White said the service cuts will affect only commuter service since enough drivers are available to handle midday traffic.

Golden Gate Bridge District Board Also:

BIDS — Rejected, 10-2, a plea by Bettini and Lerer to use competitive bidding to select consultants for environmental impact studies. The San Francisco Branch of the American Society of Civil Engineers objected that engineers "are not more inclined to engage in competitive bidding for this work than are doctors inclined to give competitive bids for brain surgery."

TRANSIT — Postponed to April 13 discussion of a staff recommendation that a $1 million federal loan be sought immediately to start appraisals and purchase of surplus railroad rights-of-way in Marin for future transit use. Dist. Engineer Robert E. Shields said the Corte Madera line east of Highway 101 could be used as an exclusive right-of-way for buses within two years.

DUES — Voted 10-1, Marin Supervisor Wornum dissenting, to pay $1,500 in 1973 dues to the California Special Districts Association, double last year's amount. Wornum said there was no need for the association.

TUBE — Referred to the finance committee a $20,000 budget increase for Kaiser Engineers to study an underwater tube linking Southern Marin and San Francisco's northern waterfront. The citizens panel advising Kaiser asked for the addition to the study.

TOLL — Accepted a low bid of $400,000 by Abbett Electric Corp. of San Francisco for new registry and communications equipment for the toll gates.

TICKETS — Accepted a low bid of $14,625 from Globe Ticket Co. of Tacoma, Wash., for a six-months supply of convenience ticket books.

YOUTHS — Budgeted $35,000 to recruit 35 youths for the summer hire program.

DOYLE DRIVE — Received a report from the state Division of Highways rejecting a proposal by the bridge board that headlights be required during the day on the San Francisco approach. The division said the daylight headlight system works best on two-lane roads where passing is dangerous.

Muir Beach Association Is Formed

A new community association has been formed in Muir Beach to "give landowners a proper voice in affairs that affect our community," according to publicity chairman Charles R. Felix.

Called the Muir Beach Property Owners Association, the group will hold its third meeting at 8 p.m. April 10 at the home of Calvin R. Garrison, who was elected president.

All Muir Beach residents interested in "maintaining the traditional values of the area" are invited to the meeing, Felix said, but membership in the association is open only to property owners.

One of the group's goals is to "foster environmental and economic safeguards against overdevelopment and to reaffirm civic pride," Felix said.

Other officers are Edward Emig, vice president, and Jack F. Harris, secretary-treasurer.

Jack Magruder is executive director and chairman of the board. Other board members are Paula Havestad, Gilbert F. Allard, Ambeo Banducci Jr., Joseph Fouza and Emig and Felix.

Book Sale Set At Corte Madera Library

A book sale will be held at the Corte Madera Regional Library on April 14 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., sponsored by the Friends of the Marin County Free Library.

Books in all categories will be on sale, announced Mildred Bissinger of the Friends.

Family Dog Is Killed By Roaming Pack

A Black Point resident said yesterday the family dog was attacked and fatally injured by a pack of dogs.

Judy Stafford of 71 Oak Street, who said she wanted to alert area residents of the danger, told the Independent-Journal, the family pet, a 4-year-old Shelty mix, was attacked by an unknown number of dogs early yesterday outside the family home.

Mrs. Stafford said she awoke at 2:30 a.m. to commottion and an animal's cries. The Stafford pet, found lying in the street in front of home, was taken to a San Rafael pet hospital. It died after an operation.

One of the attacking dogs was described as a large German shepherd. She said roaming dog packs is a recurring problem in the Black Point area.

ESCROW EXPLAINED

Escrow is one of those terms we've all heard, but may not fully understand.

The Escrow Agent, usually a Title Company, acts as a neutral party between the buyer and seller of property. The Escrow Officer sees that all encumbrances are removed from the property, and also collects, holds, and distributes all funds and documents pertinent to the transfer of Title. The Escrow charge is normally paid by the purchaser along with the Title Insurance Fee, to insure a sound clear Title.

When Escrow is closed, all funds are disbursed to the proper parties, and the deeds are recorded. Your member Realtor of the Marin County Board of Realtors, can help you with any questions about Escrow, or anything else pertaining to the purchase or sale of property. And if you're selling a home be sure to place it on Multiple Listing. You'll have over 1000 salesmen selling it for you . . . the member Realtors of the Marin County Board of Realtors. ★WE CARE★
ABOUT YOU & YOUR PROPERTY

The personal service you want we can afford to give. Let us start with this seller's check list. Did your agent:
1. Take time to look at your home & surrounding amenities?
2. Did he prepare a competitive market analysis?
3. Did he research you and your needs & desires?
4. Does he have empathy?
5. Is he honest with you in the condition of your home & how to help you improve it to sell?
6. Is he there to help you sell & accept the responsibility?
7. Did he explain financing?
8. Did he call you often during the listing period?

If the answer is "no" to any of these, make a change. Put your hand in the helping hands of Berta Purdy, licensed real estate broker. Call 453-2229 or 456-5549.

INVITATION FOR PROPOSAL

Sealed bids will be received at the office of Marin Municipal Water District, 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, California until 10:00 A.M., April 11, 1973, at which time they will be opened and read in the Board of Directors room by the Secretary or his or her designated representative for the construction of Tiburon-Belvedere Pumphouse.

The general prevailing rate of wages in the locality in which work is to be performed has been ascertained by the District and published under the provisions of Section 1773 of the California Labor Code.

Copies of the prevailing wage rates are on file in the office of the Secretary of the District at 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, and in the office of the Marin County Clerk, and are available upon request from the Secretary at the above address and also from the Marin County Department of Public Works, Civic Center, Room 304, San Rafael, California.

Sundays and holidays shall not be less than two (2) times the above rates. The holidays upon which such rates shall be paid shall be all holidays recognized in the collective bargaining agreement applicable to the particular craft, classification or type of workman employed on the project.

It shall be mandatory upon the Contractor to whom the contract is awarded and upon any subcontractor under him to pay not less than the said specified rates to all laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by them in the execution of the contract.

Proposals will be considered for the complete job only. The proposal must be submitted on the form provided and must be accompanied by a Certified Check, Cash, Post Office Money Order or, Bid Bond as a guarantee that the bidder will, if successful, promptly execute a satisfactory contract and furnish bonds as required by these specifications. The Certified Check, Cash, Post Office Money Order or Bid Bond shall be not less than ten (10) percent of the total amount of the bid and shall be made payable to the Treasurer of the Marin Municipal Water District.

Proposals must be submitted in a sealed envelope addressed to the attention of Mrs. Norma L. Smith, Secretary, with the words "Tiburon-Belvedere Pumphouse, Contract No. 583," clearly marked on the outside of the envelope.

Specifications may be obtained at 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, the office of the District. The $25.00 deposit required for each set of specifications will be refunded when specifications are returned to the District. It is requested that those Contractors wishing a Water District representative to accompany them on their first visit to the site of the work, notify the District sufficiently in advance so that necessary arrangements may be made.

Progress payments will be made.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CIRCULATE PETITION FOR RECALL OF HOLMES S. NORVILLE FROM THE OFFICE OF TOWN COUNCILMAN OF THE TOWN OF CORTE MADERA, CALIFORNIA

TO: HOLMES S. NORVILLE

We, the undersigned, being duly qualified and registered voters of the Town of Corte Madera, State of California, do hereby give notice pursuant to Section 27504 of the Election Code of the State of California, that we intend to circulate a petition for your recall from the office of Town Councilman.

Said recall is, and will be, sought on the following grounds:

1) You have, with a reckless disregard for the expressed wishes of the majority of residents of Corte Madera, pursued a policy of unrestrained growth which threatens the small-town, residential character of the Town.

2) You have consistently and continually refused to take positive action on the numerous requests from individuals and citizens' groups for an Open Space Bond Issue to preserve the valueable natural assets of the Town while such action is still possible.

3) You have, as councilman and mayor, been greatly responsible for the largest increases in local property taxes in the history of the Town to finance such frivolities as riot control equipment for the police department and inordinate salary increases for town staff.

4) You were elected with 861 votes in April, 1970. As of the last General Election, November, 1972, there were 4,951 registered voters in the Town. The decisions facing the Town Council regarding the regional shopping center redevelopment plan, the updating of the Town General Plan, massive proposed residential developments, future tax increases and the acquisition of open space are too important to be entrusted to a councilman who represents only 17 per cent of the electorate.

As concerned citizens, we believe that public officials should be the servants of the people, responsive to their needs and at all times accountable to them. However, you have shown little but contempt for the thoughtful questions, well-intentioned contributions and honest requests of the public in your official capacity as Town Councilman. Therefore, we are seeking your recall from public office.

RESPONSE BY COUNCILMAN HOLMES S. NORVILLE TO A NOTICE TO CIRCULATE PETITION FOR RECALL FROM THE OFFICE OF TOWN COUNCILMAN, CORTE MADERA, CALIFORNIA

The reasons given for proposing to recall me as mayor and councilman are absurd, self contradictory and opinion rather than fact. Only the spelling of my name and the office that I hold is really correct.

I am belabored because property taxes for the Town were increased due to the cost of protective equipment for the police, wage and salary increases for Town employees, but not for the significant tax increases due to the cost of providing full time fire protection and an expanded recreational program. No mention is made that a comparable decrease in our Sanitary District taxes generally balanced the Town tax increase.

Certainly everyone wants open space, but how much can we afford? I am castigated for not putting this issue to a bond issue vote, but the citizens committee charged with recommending priorities for open space acquisition has not advised the relative priorities for potential acquisition. Until this is done we have no cost estimates, and you can not be told the cost of an open space bond issue.

Claims are made that I "... pursued a policy of unrestrained growth ..." This undoubtedly refers to my support of a proposed regional shopping center in Corte Madera. I favor this center because it can produce most of the revenues needed to provide excellent Town services and programs. Conversely, if this proposed shopping center is not developed in Corte Madera, then the only alternatives are to decrease existing Town services (Police, Fire, Public Works, Flood Control, and Parks and Recreation) or to increase property taxes significantly within the next several years.

These allegations do not seem to me to be the real reasons that certain individuals, and possibly some groups want me out of office. I believe the real reason is that I could not be coerced into making rash and unwise decisions. In particular, I refused to take an action which could be held as condemning private property. I believe such action to condemn that property could cost Corte Madera taxpayers millions of dollars.

If the citizens of Corte Madera want a local government that, willy-nilly, complies with the demands of any and all activists or pressure groups, regardless of the lack of merit of the demands, the effect on the Town or the cost and tax consequences to our citizens, then they do not want me or need me as a councilman and mayor. Under such circumstances I would not want to be a member of the council.

Finally, one must ask: "It the councilmen for whom recall is sought were so inept, so misguided, so blind to the attitudes of Corte Madera residents during the past seven years as implied by the recall petition, WHY IS CORTE MADERA TODAY ONE OF THE MOST CHARMING AND ADMIRED COMMUNITYS WHICH PROVIDES THE BEST PUBLIC SERVICES OF ANY CITY IN MARIN?"

To support this good government do not sign petitions for recall; if recall comes to vote, then vote against recall!

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CIRCULATE PETITION FOR RECALL OF HAROLD B. WAGSTAFF FROM THE OFFICE OF TOWN COUNCILMAN OF THE TOWN OF CORTE MADERA, CALIFORNIA

TO: HAROLD B. WAGSTAFF

We, the undersigned, being duly qualified and registered voters of the Town of Corte Madera, State of California, do hereby give notice pursuant to Section 27504 of the Election Code of the State of California, that we intend to circulate a petition for your recall from the office of Town Councilman.

Said recall is, and will be, sought on the following grounds:

1) You have, despite the appearance of deliberation, consistently voted in favor of further development and increased densities, which has materially contributed to a policy of reckless growth that threatens the small-town, residential character of the Town.

2) Your position as architect for numerous building projects in the Town raises considerably danger of conflict of interest in the performance of your responsibilities as Town Councilman. Your refusal to take positive action on the numerous requests from individuals and citizens organizations for an Open Space Bond Issue to preserve the valuable natural assets of the Town while such action is still possible evidences such a conflict.

3) You were elected with 976 votes in April, 1970. As of the last General Election, November, 1972, there were 4,951 registered voters in the Town. The decisions facing the Town Council regarding the regional shopping center redevelopment plan, the updating of the Town General Plan, massive proposed residential developments, future tax increases and the acquisition of open space are too important to be entrusted to a councilman who represents only 20 per cent of the electorate.

As concerned citizens, we believe that public officials should be the servants of the people, responsive to their needs and at all times accountable to them. However, you have shown little but contempt for the thoughtful questions, well-intentioned contributions and honest requests of the public in your official capacity as Town Councilman. Therefore, we are seeking your recall from public office.

STATEMENT BY HAROLD B. WAGSTAFF ANSWERING A NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CIRCULATE A PETITION FOR RECALL FROM THE OFFICE OF TOWN COUNCILMAN OF THE TOWN OF CORTE MADERA, CALIFORNIA

The alleged grounds on which the recall is based are ludicrous and untrue and represent a defamation of character, intimidation of my position as a Councilman, and a coercion of my own decisions relative to Town affairs.

1. On my voting record . . .

I have acted with care and deliberation on all matters of development and density brought before me. In some cases lesser density has resulted. Witness the rezoning of the 100 or more units on the Weigel-Priest parcel on Tamal Vista Blvd. (in early 1972) from R-4, residential back to M-1, light industrial. Witness my motion just one (1) month ago to reduce a multiple dwelling project on Paradise Drive from eight (8) units to five (5) units in order to secure more open space for public access and viewing of San Clemente Creek.

2. On criticism regarding my professional standing . . .

My professional standing as an architect has always, I believe, made me more sensitive to good planning than less; has given me and my colleagues the planning expertise at the Council level which we look for, indeed search for as a foremost consideration in the selection of Commissioners for our planning bodies. How could it be damaging or "dangerous" at the Council level?

3. On representing my community . . .

In 1970 I was elected with 976 votes which represents more than 50% of the 1,766 votes cast. I feel that I can, and have, given careful consideration and thought to every matter that has appeared before me in a fair and proper manner.

As a "concerned citizen" I feel that I have given my community more than most.

Ten (10) years as an active member of the Volunteer Fire Department

Eight (8) years on the Board of Design

Nine (9) years on the Planning Commission

Seven (7) years on the Town Council

I believe that as one looks at the beautiful Town Park, the modern new safety building, Town Hall, post office, nationally acclaimed library, the undergrounding of utilities, and the landscaping of our main boulevard (all accomplished in the last 10 years) that one must, if he is fair, recognize that we have made good progress in the development of our community.

In the matter of the marshes, I have a sincere commitment to the acquisition of public oriented recreation space in the bay front areas. That commitment will be in direct relationship to the Town's ability to sensibly pay for it.

I feel that the Council should not have to spend valuable Town time fighting a rear guard action brought about by a dissident faction of the community who rather than "thoughtful questions, well intentioned contributions and honest requests" seem intent on intimidation, and in the end, destroying the present Council. It is time to throw out these charges and to get back to the work of responsible Town government.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CIRCULATE PETITION FOR RECALL OF EDWARD W. COLTHURST FROM THE OFFICE OF TOWN COUNCILMAN OF THE TOWN OF CORTE MADERA, CALIFORNIA

TO: EDWARD W. COLTHURST

We, the undersigned, being duly qualified and registered voters of the Town of Corte Madera, State of California, do hereby give notice pursuant to Section 27504 of the Election Code of the State of California, that we intend to circulate a petition for your recall from the office of Town Councilman.

Said recall is, and will be, sought on the following grounds:

1) You have continually over the years of your most recent term abused the public trust of office to further your own personal career interests as Executive Director of the Marin Property Owners Association, which represents major developers and land speculators. These abuses became so flagrant as to necessitate your removal from the office of mayor in 1971.

2) Your careless public demeanor at official and semi-official public functions has brought disrespect and disgrace to both your office as Town Councilman and to the Town itself.

3) You have misrepresented the official policies of the Town before numerous public and private bodies, failing to distinguish between your position as a councilman representing the public and your personal preferances arising from your employment with the Marin Property Owners.

4) You were elected with 1,005 votes in April, 1970. As of the last General Election, November, 1972, there were 4,951 registered voters in the Town. The decisions facing the Town Council regarding the regional shopping center redevelopment plan, the updating of the Town General Plan, massive proposed residential developments, future tax increases and the acquisition of open space are too important to be entrusted to a councilman who represents only 22 percent of the electorate.

As concerned citizens, we believe that public officials should be the servants of the people, responsive to their needs and at all times accountable to them. However, you have shown little but contempt for the thoughtful questions, well-intentioned contributions and honest requests of the public in your official capacity as Town Councilman. Therefore, we are seeking your recall from public office.

RESPONSE BY EDWARD W. COLTHURST TO THE "NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CIRCULATE PETITION FOR RECALL OF EDWARD W. COLTHURST FROM THE OFFICE OF TOWN COUNCILMAN OF THE TOWN OF CORTE MADERA, CALIFORNIA."

Attacks upon the integrity, character and honesty of Public Elected Officials has become a way of life to some individuals. Such an attack has been brought to bear on me through the proposed recall petition.

As a member of the Corte Madera Town Council for fifteen years and the Mayor of Corte Madera for twelve of those fifteen, I have a feeling of deep satisfaction for the accomplishments made during those years.

Satisfaction for one of the finest public parks in Marin County. And a recreation program to compliment that park. Pride in the design and efficiency of a public buildings complex consisting of the Town Hall, and the Public Safety Building housing the Police and Fire Departments.

A special satisfaction for the Corte Madera Regional Library. This library, winner of National Design Awards, has been a great asset to the cultural life of the community. And a great joy to those of us who were responsible for its being.

Our streets, our flood control projects and programs, our landscaping, all maintained to a high degree of excellence.

All the beauty and charm of Corte Madera did not just happen. It is the result of long and arduous work by many people. It was not an instant recipe. To embark now on short-cut programs of doubtful value would result in mediocrity.

During my years as Councilman and Mayor, all the support services of the Community have been improved to a high level of standards. The Police, Fire, Public Works, Building Inspector, Zoning Administrator, Sanitary, Administration and the Recreation Department are headed by competent, qualified professionals. We have a high performance response to the public need.

Statements in the proposed recall petition such as "abused the public trust of office to further your own personal career", "Misrepresenting official policies of the town before numerous public and private bodies", "Necessitate your removal from the office of Mayor", are personal attacks upon my integrity and honesty. I expect to achieve a retraction through whatever means are necessary.

Throughout my public service to Corte Madera, I was determined that all matters considered by the Council would be evaluated and acted upon so that each decision would add to the well-being of all the citizens of Corte Madera. No special interests, no pressure groups, no name calling individuals would be allowed to force a decision that could adversely affect the normal services people have a right to expect to safeguard the health, welfare and safety of the townspeople.

Social, cultural and environmental amenities are a part of Corte Madera. They have been developed as part of an overall co-hesive effort that encompasses all the needs of the community, it is a balanced program and one that will continue.

I have been elected to the Town Council for four terms. This is a strong endorsement of my dedication and concern for the well-being of Corte Madera. It shows the respect and trust that is accorded me by the people of Corte Madera.

BUCKS WIN PLAYOFF OPENER

Warriors 'Maybe A Little Tight'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Normally you'd expect a group of professional athletes who have been around for quite a few years to take something like the first game of the first round of the National Basketball Association playoffs in stride.

Not so Friday night with the Milwaukee Bucks and the Golden State Warriors. And especially not so with the Warriors who committed 27 turnovers and shot only 37 per cent enroute to a 110-90 loss to the Bucks.

"I think the playoffs are a whole different thing," Bucks Coach Larry Costello said, "And maybe some of the guys were a little tight. But it wasn't the best game in the world."

For Al Attles and his Warriors it not only wasn't the best game in the world, it was in the running for the worst game right from the start.

"The turnovers just killed us," Attles said. "How can a professional team throw the ball away as many times as we did? Combine those turnovers with our lousy shooting and you can easily see the reason for the loss.

"Our guys have all the playoff experience before so it can't be that," he added. "I just don't know what it is."

The Bucks have played Golden State seven times this year and have won six of the games.

"It may look like there's a jinx if you're looking from the outside," Attles said. "But I sure don't feel that way."

"I don't know what it is," Rick Barry of the Warriors said, "But we don't play smart basketball against the Bucks. They don't do anything that surprises us, but we keep making stupid mistakes.

"We can play well for a few minutes and get close to them," Barry said "But then along come those mistakes and kill us. The Bucks are doing something that forces us to play dumb basketball."

And Bucks forward Bob Dandridge also talked about some kind of psychic thing the Bucks seem to have over the Warriors.

"I think maybe they've got it in their heads they don't want to play us," said Dandridge. "I don't know what it is but I hope they keep thinking it."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Oscar Robertson led the Bucks with 22 points each while Dandrige and Lucius Allen each added 20. Barry had 22 for the Warriors while Cazzie Russell and Nate Thurmond each had 14.

Thurmond left the game with 8:43 left after suffering a cut on his index finger that required six stitches. He is expected to to be ready Sunday at 11 a.m. when the Warriors try to even the series at one game apiece before the two teams move to Oakland for games Thursday and Saturday.

TRIUMPH IN FINALE

Champagne Corks Pop In Seals' Happy Quarters

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Champagne corks popped in the California Golden Seals dressing room, but the door to the Los Angeles Kings' quarters was barred to outsiders last night after he Seals 3-1 National Hockey League victory.

The loss ended the Kings' slim chance to gain a fourth-place berth in the NHL playoffs. They are three points back of St. Louis going into their final game on the season tonight in Los Angeles against Vancouver.

The Seals' celebration was not geared to the Kings' elimination of the playoff, but was an expression of relief to see the season ending with their longest winning string of the campaign. Two of their four windup victories came against the Kings whom they beat Wednesday in Los Angeles.

Coach Fred Glover, who came to the Seals after being fired by the Kings, denied he felt any special elation at knocking out Los Angeles. "We're glad to beat anybody," said Glover.

The Seals finished last in the NHL West with 16 won, 46 lost and 16 tied. Only the New York Islanders among the NHL's 16 teams did worse.

Attendance averaging about 5,000 was about half what the Seals hoped to draw, although the final game attracted 10,042.

"Now I wish the season wasn't ending," said Pete Laframboise during the Seals' celebration. "We are just starting to go right now."

Butch Goring's power play goal started the Kings off to a lead midway in the first period, but that was the only one of 24 shots to get by California goalie Gilles Meloche.

Stan Gibertson's backhand shot over goalie Gary Edwards' arm tied the score at 7:55 of the second period, and later in the period Reggie Leach's 23rd goal of the season sent the Seals ahead 2-1. Laframboise made it 3-1 on a breakaway with 1:38 left in the third period.

RAIN ABBREVIATES MARIN SPORTS SKED

Rain washed out all non-aquatic sporting events scheduled for yesterday involving Marin County Athletic League teams and College of Marin.

In baseball, Drake will play at Marin Catholic Monday while San Rafael will visit Redwood and San Marin will travel to Tamalpais Wednesday, all at 4 p.m. The ribbon-cutting ceremony for Tam's new dugouts will be held at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday prior to the game with Terra Linda.

In track and field, Terra Linda will visit Drake Tuesday, San Marin will journey to San Rafael Wednesday, and Novato will run at Redwood Tuesday or Wednesday, all at 3:30 p.m.

The golf match pitting Lincoln of San Francisco against Novato and tennis matches involving Redwood-Berkeley and Terra Linda-Lowell of San Francisco have not been rescheduled.

College of Marin's track meet at Solano College will be held April 25 at 3 p.m. The Tars' home tennis match against Contra Costa has not yet been rescheduled.

2nd Place Tie Stays In Marin Swim Race

San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools overwhelmed their opponents yesterday to remain tied for second place in the Marin County Athletic League swimming standings.

The Bulldogs defeated visiting Drake, 83-7, and the Trojans smashed host Novato, 61-34, to improve their MCAL records to 6-2, second to Redwood's 7-0. Redwood postponed yesterday's home meet against Tamalpais for the funeral of former Giant swimmer Andrew Stone, who died at his home Tuesday. San Marin drew a bye.

San Rafael got double victories from Joe Dunn, Jeff Kamler and Dave Kavrell. All three also swam in the winning 200 medley relay race. The Bulldogs swept all first places from winless Drake.

Sonoma Sports Sked Set Back

Rains forced postponement of all baseball games and tennis matches in Southern Sonoma County yesterday.

The Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park at Piner in Santa Rosa baseball game has been reset for Monday along with a tennis match between the two schools.

Petaluma High rescheduled its baseball game and tennis match with Montgomery at Santa Rosa for May 2.

Tigers' Boss Martin Back; Issue 'Dead'

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Billy Martin, the fiery manager of the Detroit Tigers who quit the team in a huff Friday afternoon, today changed his mind and has returned, it was announced by club General Manager Jim Campbell.

Martin, who quit the Tigers after a dispute with Campbell over the disciplining of moody outfielder Willie Horton, met briefly with the Tigers' general manager early Saturday morning and agreed to return to the club immediately.

"It was just an emotional thing as far as Billy was concerned," Campbell said. "We met briefly at my hotel room early this morning and as far as I'm concerned, it's now a dead issue."

Martin's dispute and hasty decision to quit erupted when Horton, a discipline problem through most of his career with the Tigers, left the Tigers' camp during an exhibition game and was fined by the manager. Campbell reportedly increased that fine later which led to the split with Martin.

Campbell also said that he did not believe any further action would be taken with regard to the problem with Horton and said that issue also "was dead."

"It's all been just a loss of 24 hours," Campbell said. "Now it's back to business as usual."

Oddly, the Martin-Campbell flare-up came only three days after Martin was arrested by Lakeland police when he tried to intervene in a bar-room argument that involved one of his rookie players, Ike Blessett. Martin stopped Blessett from a possible fight, but when he took the youngster out to the parking lot in effort to calm him down, police intervened and arrested both of them for the use of "profanity" in a public place.

A's To Test Pitching Of Giants

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — The Bay Area rival San Francisco Giants and Oakland A's meet for the third time this spring today in the world champs' home park with their series even at one victory apiece.

The A's took Juan Marichal apart two weeks ago in beating the Giants and San Francisco got even against Jim Hunter last week.

It's Marichal and Hunter's turns to pitch again today but it may not turn out that way. The Giants are expected to trot out Sam McDowell, who is fighting to gain a starting job before the season opens next week.

Ron Bryant, the Giants' other left, didn't hurt himself a bit Friday in going the distance on a one-hitter as San Francisco beat Milwaukee, 6-0. The A's, meanwhile, nipped the Chicago Cubs, 4-3, on Bill North's eighth inning pinch-hit single.

Bryant, who led the Giants in victories last season with 14, had a perfect game against Milwaukee for 7⅓ innings when reserve shortstop Domie Blanco bobbled Don Money's grounder for an error. Still, Bryant, in becoming the first San Francisco pitcher to go the distance this spring, kept his no-hitter going until John Vukovich rapped a single with one out in the ninth.

The Giants reached Brewers starter Skip Lockwood for five of their runs and 12 of their hits in the first six innings.

Giant manager Charlie Fox apparently has solved his problem of what to do about the third base and left field positions.

In the A's victory over the Cubs, World Series hitting hero Gene Tenace opened the eighth with a walk and went to second on a single by Mike Hegan. After Ted Kubiak popped up, North grounded a single to right to score Tenace and snap a 3-3 tie.

The A's were behind 0-2 when Billy Conigliaro's single capped a three-run seventh inning rally.

After the game, the A's announced they were sending Jack Heidemann, obtained from Cleveland last week in the Dave Duncan for Ray Fosse trade, to Tucson of the Pacific Coast League.

SHERRY LOSES TO BOXER DYE

SAN FRANCISCO — Paul Sherry, confronted last night by the golden gloves of Tommy Dye, was knocked out in the first round of the 147-pound senior division title bout of the Golden Gloves and Amateur Athletic Union boxing Championships at the Civic Auditorium.

Sherry, former Marin Catholic High School athlete representing the San Francisco Police Activities League, had advanced to the finals by decisioning Dan Kibby of Eureka Thursday night. His dubious reward was to meet Dye, of the Modesto Athletic Club, before the largest crowd in San Francisco Golden Gloves history, 7,163.

MARINITE IN HIGH JUMP

Gal Flies Upside Down

By ALISSA CRANDALL

Linda Daum and her duck have a lot in common. They both fly upside down.

"If you let her go in the air she rolls over on her back and flies — something like by 'Fosbury flop' style of high jumping," said Linda.

Miss Daum is a high jumper and currently the only female on the College of Marin track and field team.

"It's a great to be the only female on the team," claims Linda, a thin, spry and energetic 18-year-old. "I've met a lot of guys that are interested in what I'm interested in. I don't know — it's just really neat."

"Some of them ignore me. But most everybody else is always around giving me a bad time," she jokes. "They're always being funny about women's lib and saying, make her help carry out the pits."

Linda started high jumping as a sophomore at Redwood High School when a girl friend of hers was running track. Linda went out for the girls team but didn't know what she was interested in. Since there were only a few high jumpers and discus throwers she tried her hand at both. She wasn't heavy enough for discus throwing, so she concentrated on high jumping.

"I didn't like high jumping and I didn't know what I was doing, so I kept losing. About the second to last meet of the season I won. I don't know why, but then I started liking it."

Current College of Marin trackman Tom Malvino, who was a member of the boys' track team at Redwood at that time, helped Linda to improve her jumping. "I didn't know what I was doing until he helped me," Linda added. Tom also jumps in the "Fosbury flop" style.

As a junior at Redwood, Linda continuously out-jumped the girl on her own team who had been tops the previous year. As a result the girl quit.

"I was undefeated in my junior year, and then I got the captain's blanket, an award chosen by the team for the girl who shows the most promise in track and field. Before she left Redwood she had set a new Marin County Athletic League girl's record at 5 feet, 1½ inches.

Linda has not competed in any of the COM track meets yet, mainly because boys usually start jumping around 5-8, and the best Linda has ever done is 5-4.

"I'd sure like to compete in one of the track meets just to prove it can be done," Linda said. Then she shifted in her chair, she's not used to sitting still for long, grinned and said, "In high school I beat a guy. He was really mad. I only beat him by about an inch, but boy was he mad!"

Relating the high jumping experience Linda explains, "You stand there and pysch yourself out, and during the run you tell yourself whether or not you're gonna make it. By the time you get to the bar, if you've told yourself that you're gonna make it, then you do. But if your very last thoughts are that you'll miss, then you do. I don't think of anything when I leave the ground 'cause I'm either gonna make it or not."

Besides high jumping, square dancing, playing volleyball and bicycling, Linda also holds a senior lifesaving certificate, a first aid instructor's license and teaches physical education, reading, guitar and swimming to third graders at Larkspur-Corte Madera elementary school.

Linda goes into everything she does with unmatched enthusiasm. She has five guitars, all of which "have names and personalities of their own." She taught herself to play them, and has also recently taken up the accordion, which she named Stephanie.

Linda spends most of her spare weekends at Crazy Horse Campground near Sacramento, putting on puppet shows, teaching square dancing and leading campfires. Linda and her family often camp there. Last year after she had been playing the guitar and singing during a campfire, the owners offered her a job as a recreation leader.

They soon realized she could do more than lead campfires

Marin A.C. To Compete In Nationals

Marin Aquatic Club coach Don Swartz and 11 of his swimmers are scheduled to leave Marin tomorrow for Cincinnati, where the National Amateur Athletic Union Short Course Men's and Women's Swimming Championships will begin Wednesday.

The 11 swimmers, led by Olympians Rick DeMont and Robin Backhaus, will compete in 25 events over the ensuing four days.

Among Marin swimming fans, the Nationals are remembered as the place where DeMont first burst into national prominence. In Dallas last year, he finished third in the 1,650-yard freestyle, foreshadowing his later record-shattering performances.

DeMont will swim the 500 free Wednesday, the 400 individual medley Thursday, and the 1,650 Saturday. Backhaus will swim the 500, the 1,650, the 200 free on Thursday and the 200 butterfly Friday.

Five male swimmers will compete unattached to conform with Marin County Athletic League rules. Art Morrill will swim the 200 backstroke Wednesday, the 400 IM Thursday, the 100 back Friday and the 200 IM Saturday. Keith Strange, Jeff Miller, Warren Lager and Spencer Eldred will swim the 200 breast Friday.

Four female Marin A.C. swimmers qualified for the meet. Jo Hislop will swim the 500 free Wednesday, the 200 free Thursday and the 100 free Saturday. Maura Campion will swim the 500 and 200 freestyles and the 200 IM Saturday. Kim Hughes will swim the 200 back Wednesday and 100 back Friday, and Sue Secondo will swim the 200 breast Friday. All four will participate in the 400 medley relay Thursday.

Golfer Casper Floating On Air In Greater Greensboro Tourney

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — While Billy Casper is floating on air from a second round he says was his best in 200 years, he had better take a moment to look back to earth and check on Sam Snead in today's third round of the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

"My feet were hardly touching the ground," said the jubilant Casper after a 64 Friday that tied the GGO's two-day record of 131. A two-time winner here, Casper called his seven-birdie effort that thrust him into the lead my "best round in 200 years."

But Snead, two strokes back at nine-under-par and tied with Doug Sanders, was just as calm as could be as he began to sneak up on possibly his ninth GGO title.

"If you're a good putter and a good driver, you win tournaments," said the 60-year-old Slammer, who has to fight off advancing age in his left wrist with horse linament.

Snead nonchalantly told newsmen he was just trying "to keep the ball in play," and pointed out he hadn't missed any greens.

Casper was followed by Lou Graham, who's never won on the par 71, 7,021-yard Sedgefield Country Club course, while Sanders, another two-time victor here, tied with Snead at 9-under.

Graham, whose best finish so far this year was a tie for second at Jacksonville, also had seven birdies en route to a 64 Friday.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, Rod Funseth, George Knudson and Ken Still were bunched at 8- under, followed by Butch Baird and Buddy Allin another stroke back. Napa's Ron Cerrudo was at 140 along with 12 others.

A somber Lee Elder, 7-under as the first round leader, dropped back into the pack Friday with two successive bogeys and was 6-under after 36 holes.

A win here would make Elder the first black golfer ever in next week's Masters.

Snead suggested also that top golfers like Bruce Crampton and Jack Nicklaus who have bypassed the GGO in favor of a rest preceding the Masters, weren't making a mistake.

"I would probably pass this up if I had a number one chance of winning in the Masters," he said, adding that sponsors here could have probably drawn a better field if the $210,000 tournament had been held after the Masters.

Lakers Saved By 'Mr. Clutch'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Los Angeles Lakers know when you let out the clutch there's bound to be a shift toward the victory column.

Los Angeles let Jerry West, the team's "Mr. Clutch" take charge in overtime Friday night and he scored seven of the Lakers 13 points in the extra session to help beat the Chicago Bulls, 107-104, in the opening game of their National Basketball Association playoff series. Los Angeles defeated Chicago four straight in last year's playoffs.

The defending champion Lakers maintained their whammy over Chicago by posting their 13th win in the last 14 meetings between the clubs.

Los Angeles' guard tandem of Gail Goodrich and West totaled just 10 points in the first half as the Lakers trailed 50-41 at intermission. Goodrich finished with 28 points and West netted 17 for the game.

Bob Love, who led Chicago with 21 points, hit two foul shots with 20 seconds remaining to tied the score at 94-all after regulation time. Then West took charge. His three-point play broke a 96-all deadlock in overtime and when the Bulls closed to within one at 101-100, West tallied two free throws with 20 seconds left.

Milwaukee, first place leader in the Western Conference by virtue of a coin flip with Los Angeles, routed Golden State, 110-90, and New York beat Baltimore, 95-83, in an Eastern Conference playoff opener.

The annual New York-Baltimore series, in its fifth consecutive season, featured Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe combining for 48 points. A tight Knick defense limited the Bullets to 38 points in the second half. Archie Clark topped Baltimore with 22 points, while Frazier was high for the game with 25.

Jerry Lucas came off the bench to rattle the Bullets with five bombs from beyond the 20-foot mark.

"Luke was hitting from so far out, I couldn't see him," laughed Frazier. It was Lucas' long range cannonading that brought Wes Unseld and Elvin Hayes out from under the basket and allowed Frazier and Monroe to crash through for layups.

The second game in the three series will be held Sunday. Boston and Atlanta, the remaining two teams in the playoffs, also kick off that series Sunday.

A Near 300 By Mendell In Bowling

A Greenbrae man nearly bowled a 300 game Wednesday night in the Bankers League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

Rick D. Mendell reeled off 10 consecutive strikes before leaving the four pin on the 11th ball. He settled for a 289 game and a 634 series.

TOURNEY TIME. Some 128 bowlers will participate in the Native Sons of the Golden West tourney Sunday at 10:30 a.m. at Nave Lanes in Ignacio. Competitors will bowl six games, the first three in doubles play, second three in singles. Handicaps will be added to the three-game series scores in determining singles and doubles winners.

THE WEEK'S top three-game series in Marin was recorded by San Rafael's Frank Therriault. He rolled a 715 last Friday night in the North Bay Classic at Country Club Bowl. Therriault had games of 252, 221, and 242.

Graziano Wallops Way To Fight Title

By DAVE BRASE and TIM SIMONS

CHICAGO — The Chicago Stadium crowd on July 16, 1947, is anticipating the best fight of the year. Last September these same two boxers met and waged a war-like battle.

In that fight Tony Zale, the middleweight champion, came off the deck to knock out challenger Rocky Graziano in the sixth round.

Rocky has promised a turnabout tonight. Graziano is a popular fighter with tremendous power in both hands and the style of a wild man in the ring.

As the fight progresses through the first four rounds Zale is in command. He drops Rocky in the third and is scoring constantly with body-head combinations.

Round five begins and suddenly Graziano charges Zale in a desperate attempt to turn the tide. Some of his wild swings are landing! Zale is stunned by a left hook. Tony is in trouble as the round ends.

The torrid action continues in the sixth. Zale is fighting back viciously but he can't stem this awesome Graziano offense. A roundhouse right hurts Tony. Graziano senses the kill and goes wild. So does the crowd.

Zale staggers into a corner under an onslaught of punches. Referee John Behr steps in and saves the helpless champion at 2:10 of round six.

Rocky Graziano has taken the middleweight crown from Tony Zale in a slugfest to be remembered.

Robertson Shows He Is Ready For Start

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Bob Robertson showed Friday he is ready for next week's start of the major league baseball season.

Robertson led Pittsburgh out of its deep batting slump with three home runs and a double as the Pirates routed the St. Louis Cardinals 11-1.

Robertson, whose performance virtually assured him of the Pirates' starting left field job, broke Pittsburgh's string of 28 scoreless innings when he homered in the fourth inning off losing pitcher Rick Wise.

He homered to lead off the sixth and again in the ninth with Vic Davalillo on base. The ninth inning homer followed one earlier in the frame by Al Oliver, which came with Rennie Stennett on base. Robertson's seventh inning double scored Davalillo from second.

The four-for-five performance gave Robertson a .397 average for the spring. He has hit seven home runs and driven in 14 runs.

Elsewhere, Roger Nelson and Tom Hall limited Atlanta to five hits, including a homer by Hank Aaron, as the Reds beat the Braves 3-1; rookie shortstop Tom Veryzer's two homers and a single powered Detroit past Philadelphia 9-5; Boston used five pitchers who doled out six hits in the Red Sox' 4-2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox; and Bill North's pinch-hit single scored Gene Tenace with the winning run in the eighth inning as Oakland rallied for a 4-3 win over the Chicago Cubs.

Earl Williams' three-run bases loaded double in the first inning helped Baltimore beat Kansas City 8-4; Gerry Moses' three-run homer in the seventh inning carried the New York Yankees past Texas 4-1; Bert Blyleven pitched seven scoreless innings and drove in the only run of the game in Minnesota's 1-0 triumph over Houston; Vada Pinson scored in the bottom of the eighth on a fielder's choice to snap a 4-4 tie and give California a 5-4 victory over Los Angeles; San Francisco blanketed Milwaukee 6-0 and San Diego, despite being outhit 10-5, defeated Cleveland 2-0.

Raiders' Otto 'Doing Fine' After Right Knee Surgery

Combined AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — Oakland Raider veteran center Jim Otto was "doing fine" at Midway Hospital here today following a Friday afternoon operation to repair ligaments in his right knee.

Otto, 35, is the only member of the Raiders who has been with the club since its first season in 1960 in the American Football League. He started every game of the last National Football League season and has played 182 consecutive games.

Rather than interrupt the string, Otto played all of last season with the knee injury received in a preseason game instead of undergoing surgery. The only pro football player to have played more games in a row is Forrest Gregg with 188.

LOS ANGELES — Unhappy Los Angeles Rams quarterback Roman Gabriel has given up the idea of being traded to the Washington Redskins, but is now looking to two other National Football League teams, an attorney for the veteran

Tennis

ST. LOUIS — Bob Lutz of Sausalito suffered a double defeat yesterday in the $50,000 Holton Tennis Classic, losing in the singles quarter-finals to Cliff Drysdale of Australia, 6-1, 6-3, and in the doubles (along with Stan Smith of Pasadena) to Jim McManus of Berkeley and Ove Bengtson of Sweden, 6-2, 7-6.

NEW YORK — Chris Evert, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., yesterday advanced to the semifinals of the $30,000 Lady Gotham Classic with a 6-3, 6-4 triumph over Isabel Fernandez, Colombia.

VANCOUR, B.C. — Tom Gorman, Seattle, Wash., advanced to the semifinal round today of the $50,000 International Tennis Tournament by defeating Fred Stolle, Australia, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4.

Basketball

PHOENIX, Ariz. — John MacLeod, the 34-year-old head basketball coach at the University of Oklahoma, yesterday was named head coach of the Phoenix Suns of the National Basketball Association.

Bowling

AKRON, Ohio — Barry Asher,Costa Mesa, Calif., yesterday captured first place with a lead of 32 pins and advanced to the finals of the $125,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions.

Golf

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — Betsy Cullen, without a tour victory for the past year, battled gusty winds yesterday to fire a four-under-par 69 and take a three-stroke lead after one round of the $30,000 Alamo Ladies Open.

The only other golfer to break par over the wind-swept Woodlake Country Club course was Betty Burfeindt, who despite her agitation over slow play managed a one-under 72.

Gaillard To Stay As USF '5' Coach

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — University of San Francisco fans and alumni can rest easy —their successful basketball coach has decided to remain at home and build on a winning program.

Bob Gaillard was wooed by Long Beach State to take over for Jerry Tarkanian and the 49ers reportedly dangled a $56,000 salary offer as bait. But Gaillard, a young coach with priorities higher than salary, said he wasn't interested, and instead Friday signed a new two-year contract to stay at USF.

"I decided to remain at USF for two reasons," Gaillard said. "First, because I'm convinced there is no better place to live than in the Bay Area, and second, because I feel a strong moral obligation to the fine young men in our program at USF as well as to the prospects we have been recruiting for the future."

The opening at Long Beach, the nation's third-ranked college team this season, was created last week when Tarkanian left the $56,000 job for an even higher paying one at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

Gaillard also serves USF as athletic director. The school presumably gave him a boost over the $20,000 he received last year, but probably not anywhere near the Long Beach offer.

Gaillard did not indicate the terms of his new contract but he said he was pleased with it. It marks the first time the school has given any coach a contract for more than one year.

Classy Field For S. F. Track Meet

SAN FRANCISCO — When professional track debuts locally tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Cow Palace, fans will view possibly the greatest array of track and field talent assembled in San Francisco.

A gaudy field of American and world record holders will be featured along with a stout international supporting cast headed by two-time Olympic gold medalist Kip Keino of Kenya.

He will duel the heralded Jim Ryun in the mile. Ryun holds world records in the 880, 1:44.9; 1,500 meters, 3:33.1; and mile, 3:51.1.

In the sprints, the field includes Olympians Bob Hayes, Jim Hines, and John Carlos. The trio shares the 100-yard standard of 9.1.

Lee Evans, holder of the 400-meter mark of 43.8 set in winning the 1968 Olympics' event, will compete in his specialty. He will be sorely tested by Olympic gold medalists Vince Mathews and Larry James plus Mel Pender.

Three of the four field events feature men who possess Olympic gold medals and world records. They are: pole vaulter Bob Seagren, 18-feet-5¾; long jumper Bob Beamon, 29-2½; and shot putter Randy Matson, 71-5¼.

The women's sprint competition will feature two additional world record breakers, Barbara Ferrell and Wyomia Tyus. Between them they have won four Olympic gold medals.

The $4, $5, $6 and $8 tickets can be purchased at the Cow Palace.

and she is now the assistant manager of the campground.

Linda won her duck, "Doug-A-Duck", in a poker game one night after working at the San Francisco Sports and Boat Show for the campground. She and others were playing poker using matchbooks valued at $1,000 each when a kennel owner ran out of matchbooks and bet one of the ducks he uses to train his dogs. Linda ended up grand winner, and the next day she got her duck. What she found out later was that none of the man's dogs would follow it because it flies upside down. "Other than that it's a perfectly normal, healthy duck," laughed Linda.

As a freshman P.E. major, Linda plans to go to Sacramento State College, after completing her College of Marin courses. She will probably live in her trailer at Crazy Horse Campground and continue to work there.

Linda wants to pursue high jumping and sets her sights high, all the way to the Olympics. "I'd sure like to go to Montreal for the '76 summer Olympics. If I don't go as a participant I want to go as a spectator."

She's confident she can make it, even though she'll have to jump at least 5-10.

Gymnast Crosby Is Tourney Star In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — After two days, the National College Athletic Association College Division Gymnastics tournament is still pretty much a one-man show. That one man show is John Crosby of Southern Connecticut State.

Crosby took five firsts and a third Friday to lead his team to the national title. Jay Whelan of Southern Connecticut contributed two seconds a third and a sixth as the winners scored 160.75 points.

Individual titles will be settled this afternoon and Crosby, the NCAA record holder with seven titles, figures to add a bundle more today.

Crosby, the diminutive Olympian, took first in the floor exercise, horizontal, vaulting, parallel bars and all-around.

Larry Bilow of Northridge led the sill rings and Charles McGuire of Northridge the pommel horse.

Tennis Clinics Set In Sausalito

The Sausalito Parks and Recreation Commission will present two series of tennis clinics for Sausalito residents, city tennis director John Minton announced yesterday. Bill Strong, Sausalito's assistant tennis director, will be the instructor.

The adult series will be held on six Saturday mornings starting April 7 at 10 a.m. on the Martin Luther King School tennis courts. Men's clinic starts at 10 a.m., women's at 11. Cost if $4 per person per one-hour session.

For children eight and over, a three-session clinic will be conducted April 16-20 at the school. Children, ages 8-11, will be April 16 at 8 a.m.; youths over 12 will convene at 9 a.m. The clinic will continue Wednesday and Friday mornings of that week. Cost is $2.50 per child per session.

Sausalito Tennis Cards Available

Sausalito tennis players can obtain their resident cards before May 1, start of weekend courts reservation system for the Martin Luther King School complex.

A resident card is required to reserve a court, according to city tennis director John Minton, on weekends and holidays throughout the summer.

The cards may be obtained at the Department of Public Works, 530 Nevada Street, between 10:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays.

SCENE FROM 'SLEUTH' — Michael Caine Shakes an angry finger at Sir Laurence Olivier in a scene from "Sleuth." The film is currently in a run at Cinema I in Corte Madera.

BEST PERFORMANCE

Caine's 'Sleuth' Role Brilliant

By LOUISE SWEENEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — The hotel room door sighs open and behind it looms a tall man, his shoulders broad and faintly hunched under a blue silk shirt. His matching blue eyes are speculative behind square, black-framed glasses, but the smile and the handshake are warm. There is a hint of calluses past on the edges of his fingers, reminders of some long-ago and rougher job.

Today Michael Caine is riding the creamy crest of success as an actor, with the best performance of his career on view around the United States in "Sleuth," Fans who loved loathing him as "Alfie," shivered for him as Harry Palmer in "The Ipcress File," grinned at his breathless aristocrat in "The Wrong Box," may be in for a surprise. His performance as Milo Tindle is "Sleuth" is as paradoxically rooted in his own life as it is brilliant. ("Sleuth" is currently playing at Cinema I in Corte Madera.)

"The part had tremendous social significance for me, which I tried to play, which goes way beyond just a thriller," Caine said.

The Milo Tindle of "Sleuth" is the son of an Italian immigrant, a successful hairdresser who has slogged his way up out of poverty to a point where he can compete with the English upper class. And he does — for the wife of a games-playing, aristocratic detective novelist named Andrew Wyke (Laurence Olivier).

Caine, born a Cockney, came up the hard way, too. (He was borne Maurice Joseph Micklewhite, changed his name after seeing "The Caine Mutiny" on a marquee.) His father was a Billingsgate fish market porter, his mother a cleaning woman to help out the family finances. He began working at 12, delivering three or four newspaper routes to buy his own clothes. Before his first break as an actor he was a soldier, tea boy, butter packer, pneumatic drill operator, cement mixer, demolition worker.

"We didn't fight to play games, we fought to survive," is one of Caine's favorite lines in "Sleuth," and it is significant that it is the line which Milo snarls to the games-obsessed aristocrat Andrew.

"I don't want to read tremendous signifance into 'Sleuth' for other people, but for me it was there and the parallels with me in real life can be tremendous," Caine said.

"I can hardly go around now with enormous great chips on my shoulder saying working-class actors don't get a chance. That no longer applies. But I can remember the feeling of it, and the majority of acting is sense memory, isn't it really? It is remembering something that happened to you, and I can remember putting certain venom and fury into lines, working myself up to it deliberately based on, say, the class treatment of my own father.

"This is the whole social thing which is applicable in England from the class point of view, because that's the problem we had. In England we had a class system which was put there solely to create and preserve that class of serfs to do those sort of jobs. And my father was like a member of the last generation that was really a victim of that brainwashing."

Class was in a sense Caine's motivation for carving out a whole new kind of actor in English films. This man who looks like a handsome hawk, with his gold hair, heavy-lidded blue eyes, and aquiline nose, could easily have gone the matinee idol route. But he consciously chose not to.

A few years ago, in a magazine interview, he told me that English film actors had always looked "weak and entirely nontypical of the men I knew. It was a class thing, they were always sort of terribly terribly . . . I decided when I grew up I wanted to change that sort of image."

Talking of this again in our interview he says, "It wasn't really that I set out to create a different image. It was to correct an imbalance, inasmuch as a quarter of our population would have been middle class and upper class, yet 100 per cent of actors were middle class and upper class. So there was no representation of my class.

"I didn't set out with my grandiose idea of creating a new type of Englishman, I just thought there was one that they'd missed! And I thought it was a terribly important one because it was representative of three quarters of the population.

"Yes, I was a fan of American actors, like Burt Lancaster and Bogey. But they were folk heroes, in the sense of 'look at me.' What I think I try to do is say, 'Look at you.' I try to be a mirror rather than a picture for the people in the audience. The only trouble with that is that you don't get very good reviews because everybody says, 'Oh, that's easy, that's just like me!"

Redhaired Welsh playwright Alun Owen hand tailored Caine's role in his Emmy-award winning TV play "The Male of the Species" to Caine's own image, what he calls "the new Londoner." By that he means "with the Cockney lilt still in the speech patterns, still Cockney, but well dressed, working into a new class."

Caine, speaking of his favorite and major roles, says, "I think that Harry Palmer in 'Ipcress File' is different from Alfie, who is different from Milo Tindle. It is a progression. All those thje characters have a sort of London accent and were working-class people and were sophisticated in a way that also denotes a degree of intelligence and a quickness to grasp opportunities, even if they're only intellectual. With all those three characters half the laughs come out of the way they react to intellectual ideas."

Laurence Olivier, with whom he stars in "Sleuth," spoke warmly in a TV interview of Caine's friendliness, called him "brilliant" and said he was "vastly underestimated" as an actor.

Joseph Mankiewicz, who directed "Sleuth," speaks enthusiastically of his work with Caine: "It was a happy surprise." He says he found that Caine was "not just a leading man, from whom a performance had to be tricked out," but a "gifted young actor" well able to keep up with the formidable Sir Laurence Olivier. Director Mankeiwicz says that Caine is a much better actor than he himself knows, with a fine background in repertory. (In addition, Caine did 125 TV plays in England before he broke into film.)

Although Michael Caine won the New York Film Critics award as best actor for his performance in "Alfie," there are those who feel that his "Sleuth" role even better. Caine himself says, "The best thing I ever did was 'Sleuth' and why shouldn't it be? I'm more experienced now than I've ever been, I've worked on the best script (Anthony Shaffer's) I've ever worked on. With no detriment to anyone else, I've worked with the greatest actor you can work with.

"I mean really if I said to another actor who I've worked with, 'I think Laurence Olivier is better than you,' I don't think I've necessarily insulted the other actor. Of the majority of other directors I've worked with I must say the same about Mankiewicz. I've never worked with another director who has four Academy Awards.

"Joe is like all good directors, he's your first and most severe critic. The difference between a good director and a bad one is whether as a critic he's right or whether as a critic he's wrong, and Joe is, I think, extremely right. Also Joe is patient and will let you work your way up (to a performance) and he also protects you in ways. In as much as if you do something good, he will shoot it two or three different ways so that it's usable whichever way you go with the other shots. He does protection shots on you if you get something really good going."

Israeli Author Will Lead College Talks

Israeli author and journalist Sholom Rosenfeld will join College of Marin students and faculty Monday and Tuesday in a special series of conversations on "Foreign Policy, the Media, and the Middle East."

Sponsored by the college's office of community education, the seminars will be free to the public.

Rosenfeld, deputy editor of Israel's largest newspaper and a political commentator on Israeli radio and television, will discuss "The Two Israels" at 10 a.m. Monday in room 50 of the engineering building.

At 11:15 a.m. Monday, Rosenfeld will be in room A of the college center discussing "The International Politics of the Middle East" and later will head an informal lunchtime conversation about Israeli media at Zim's restaurant next to the campus.

Rosenfeld will offer another analysis of international politics of the Middle East at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in room 72 of the fine arts building.

The Polish-born Rosenfeld, a member of the Palestinian underground who was arrested three times by the colonial British government, was one of the founders of Ma'ariv, Israel's largest daily newspaper.

Woes Are Forecast In Building

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Small builders might as well stop constructing homes and "go fishing" instead if the price of lumber continues to rise, a construction industry spokesman said yesterday.

John H. Russell, executive vice president of the California Building Association, told the Assembly Natural Resources Committee the cost of lumber is forcing sharp increases in the price of houses, driving many low and middle income persons out of the market.

He said that could result in a decrease in the demand for new homes.

"Unless relief is found in the near future," Russell declared, small builders would be better off to "go fishing" instead of building homes.

Russell testified during the committee's hearing on the rising cost of lumber.

One member of the committee, Assemblyman Jim Keysor, D-Granada Hills, criticized the testimony of Russell and a lumber industry spokesman as "heavily slanted" in favor of their industries.

Keysor said statements that the export of logs to Japan were forcing a rise in lumber prices were "out of porportion."

He said the amount of logs exported to Japan constituted only about one or two per cent of the state's total timber production.

The assemblyman referred to a statement by John Davenport of the Western Forest Industries Association, a group of sawmill operators, that "outrageous prices" by Japan "have had the effect of driving up the American log, lumber and plywood prices."

Davenport said he favored an immediate embargo on the exportation of logs to Japan.

Gary M. Cook, acting deputy assistant secretary of the U.S. Department of Commerce, presented a statement to the committee declaring that his agency is reviewing the log export situation.

But he said the housing boom is the "principal cause" of the "imbalance" between supply and demand for lumber.

In a related matter, Sen. George Mscone, D-San Francisco, called for formation of an informal "action committee" of interested groups to investigate what steps the state can take to alleviate the problem of exportation of logs.

RETURN OF THE HUSBAND

Dominican College's Opera Workshop will present "Rita," a 19th Century one-act play at 8 p.m. Thursday and Saturday and 1:30 p.m. Friday at Angelico Hall on the San Rafael campus. The plot concerns the complications that arise when Gasparo (played by Clay Roni of Belvedere, left), who is presumed to have drowned at sea, returns to find that his wife, Rita (played by Carolyn Caton, San Rafael), has married Beppo (Peter Mendiara, of San Francisco, right) at the urging of Bartolo the butler (Philip Walters of Mill Valley, rear). On the same bill is Benjamin Lees's "Medea of Corinth." Both operas will be directed by Ted Blair.

Verna Dunshee 'Made It Happen'

IN ADDITION TO Point Reyes National Seashore and Muir Woods National Monument, Marin is blessed with five state parks — Mount Tamalpais, Stinson Beach, Tomales Bay, Angel Island and Samuel P. Taylor.

These did not come into being by accident. Saving them for the enjoyment of generations yet unborn was the work of a mere handful of dedicated conservationists of yesteryear.

Of that handful to whom we owe so much, perhaps the least well known to the general public was Verna Dunshee, who died this week at the age of 80.

She may also have been the most effective worker for conservation of that small group who, when measured by their accomplishments, must be acknowledged as giants.

Tireless worker on behalf of nature preservation? Verna Dunshee was truly that and more. She was perpetual motion on behalf of her beloved projects.

FOR DECADES she rarely missed a meeting of the county board of supervisors or the state park commission. For her to rise and address the supervisors or the park commissioners was as rare as for her to miss a meeting.

How, then, could she be so effective?

For one thing, nothing she ever asked for could be simply forgotten. It could not be referred to committee and allowed to die there. It could not be taken under submission and thereafter ignored. There was no way supervisors or park commissioners could ever put a conservation proposal out of mind. Verna Dunshee was always there as a quiet, smiling reminder that the matter still had to be dealt with.

Through her presence at meetings she came to know each and every supervisor and park commissioner as an individual. She often arrived ahead of time and chatted with individuals. Just as frequently she remained after adjournment and chatted with any and all who lingered.

Knowing each person as an individual, she became genuinely concerned with the personal problems of each — health, family, joys and sorrows.

And in these most pleasant, friendly, personal chats, she never failed to mention what was on her mind in connection with her conservation work. It was always pretty much the same: a certain piece of property which simply must be preserved for prosperity was at that moment available and if not acquired in public ownership would certainly be lost to private development.

Mount Tamalpais and Samuel P. Taylor state parks, along with Muir Woods National Monument, are each at least twice as large as they would be had it not been for the quiet persistence of Verna Dunshee. She knew the prevailing laws, regulations and red tape requirements. She knew what public and private funds could be available. Her informal, personal chats with supervisors and park commissioners served to inform them of points they otherwise might not be aware of.

In contemporary idiom, "She made it happen." Our state parks came into being and thereafter continued to grow ever larger.

YOU CANNOT reflect on the life and accomplishments of this remarkable woman without thinking of women's lib.

She was a devoted wife, mother and homemaker. She did serve as vice president of the Marin Conservation League for many years, but you would never know it from attending one of the annual meetings or from anything she would ever say about herself. She was shrinking, self-effacing, and grateful for even the smallest bit of encouragement toward her goals. She had all the manners of a lady.

She never held a public office. She never was in a position of "power." She made no claim to represent or speak for large numbers. She would never think of stooping to political threats against a public office holder. She would strongly disapprove of shouting, demonstrating or disrupting. She would view such action as abhorrent.

In short, she was the antithesis of today's woman's libber.

But she got the big job done. She unquestionably accomplished more, exerted more influence and leaves more evidence of her work behind than will any of today's loudmouth women's liberation advocates.

YOU CAN'T FIGHT City Hall!

Mrs. Dunshee would certainly agree. She would never fight against City Hall. She would merely explain her problem politely and persistently enough so that City Hall finally would come to see her point of view. Then she would simply sit there long enough to make sure they couldn't forget to take action. It might take five or 10 years, but in the end, they did what she proposed.

She was a human wonder to match the natural wonders she loved o deeply.

Those who knew her and watched her work will never, never be able to set foot in the Point Reyes Seashore, Muir Woods, or in any of the five state parks in Marin without feeling the presence of Verna Dunshee.

Politicians sought and received accolades for getting Point Reyes Seashore enabling legislation through Congress. It was appropriate that their efforts be recognized.

If you try to track back to see who it was that originated the imaginative idea of preserving all of the Point Reyes Peninsula in public ownership — who first "put the bug in the ear" of national park officials — your tracing will lead to Verna Dunshee.

Those who know the inside story know that Point Reyes National Seashore was Mrs. Dunshee's masterpiece.

Our national seashore and our five state parks are in truth her headstones, her real memorials.

Somewhere in one of them there should be a plaque or monument to let future generations know what they owe to this remarkable woman as they enjoy nature's wonders, preserved through her efforts.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Hunters Do Much To Perpetuate Wildlife

I thought Al Giddings' response to the lady who referred to all hunters as "cowards" and "jerks" was very eloquent. Her comments were so irrational and unfair that it is a wonder Mr. Giddings was able to make his rebuttals in so temperate a manner. Ever since Mr. Giddings began his column it has been the most enjoyable part of the I-J for me, and he has expressed perfectly my own feelings about the many positive aspects of hunting.

Certainly the hunters of the state, through their license fees and following the rules laid down by the Department of Fish and Game,have done more to perpetuate wildlife here than any other group. It's true some individuals by their stupid actions and attitudes do act like "cowards" and "jerks," but to say all of us who enjoy a pastime as old as mankind itself fit into the illegal minority is just plain bigotry.

Wildlife and wilderness are being diminished by asphalt, concrete and subdivisions, not by hunters and fishermen who take surplus animals under a strictly controlled limit system.

Humane Society Helps In Recovery Of Dog

A short time ago my dog was stolen from in front of my house, and as many pet owners know, this can be a heartbreaking experience.

Through the alertness of my neighbors and Tandra Rowland of the Humane Society, I was able to track down the thief, and my dog was returned.

A young man wanted to "borrow" my dog for breeding purposes, drove up to the house, picked him up and took him to his home. The dog had on a collar with license and a tag showing my name, address and phone, but he didn't bother to call. I searched for him until midnight, asking neighbors if they had seen anything suspicious. Fortunately, one neighbor remembered a young man asking about my dog, and she gave me a description of him. The following day I telephoned the Humane Society and Miss Rowland remembered a young man answering this description asking about breeding his dog. His phone number was given to me and shortly thereafter my dog was returned to me.

I doubt that the intent was to return him, but through the efforts of Miss Rowland and my neighbors, Dutch and Jean Goodrich, we are once again a happy family. Thank you all.

Correction On Officers Of Emergency Housing

Thank you for the coverage of our new organization in your edition of March 21. However, please make a correction: James Kilty, Jean Lovejoy and Margery Sell are not officers of Marin Emergency Housing, but incorporators, who signed our Articles of Incorporation. . .

Officers of Marin Emergency Housing are Olivia Duggan, Barbara Boxer and Gail Theller (as you noted) along with additional members of the executive committee: Carl Jensen, Tim Stanton, Dusty Doyle and William Braden.

Also, the "headquarters" of the organization is my home address only to the extent that it provides a temporary mailing address. As a member of San Anselmo's general plan committee, I would hate to be called on the carpet to explain an unauthorized business use of my residence!. . .

Felons Are Neighbors, Says Reader Silliman

Does Chicken Little write the I-J editorials? That's certainly the way it appears from the hysterical tone of the editorial of March 22 which described the report of Supervisors' Prison Task Force as "frightening." Perhaps if Mr. Little would remember that these "hardened felons" of which he so shrilly writes are, in fact, citizens of Novato, San Rafael, Tam Valley and the rest of the county, even Tiburon, then he will begin to understand why it is so important for the community to take the leadership of the criminal justice system. And since it has been demonstrated time and again that incarceration breeds MORE crime, not less, it seems a little bizarre for the I-J to continually espouse a "lock-em-up" attitude. Unless, of course, the I-J is procrime . . .

Moral Education Is Up To Parents

Throughout the uproar over the Drake High English exam, thus far, everyone has publicly voiced their (strong) opinions, objections, and condemnations. Also thus far, its been apparent that they have simply taken for granted, their freedom of speech rights . . .

The youth of the students would partially excuse their casual (automatically-assuming) attitudes. Particularly since prior to reaching their teens, its evident they haven't been made remotely aware of how fortunate they are, by their parents. (Is it possible? These might be the same persons having the standard lament and question of, "What's wrong with this younger generation, they have no patriotism"?) . . .

I think all parents (including the screamers) agree upon, "the basic, primary function of the school, is to academically educate our young".

How many would also agree that "a moral education should be formulated early, within the home, and by the parents"? . . .

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to two young Marin musical organizations that have been invited to participate in festivals abroad: Orchestra Piccola, which will attend the Spileto Festival in Italy this summer, and the Princes Charles Bagpipe Band, which will enter bagpipe competition in Scotland.

BRICKBAT to Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, for introducing legislation to block the much-needed widening of Doyle Drive.

BRICKBATS to those politicians who — although they certainly know better — keep saying that Marin is the victim of "uncontrolled growth" and that the alternative to further "uncontrolled growth" is the proposed countywide plan.

BOUQUETS to the Leagues of Women Voters of Marin for their new edition of "Your County, Marin," filled with information about county government, and to the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce for its new pocket visitor's guide.

BRICKBAT to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for increasing the expense account for meals and lodging of traveling county employees from a reasonable $32 per day to an exorbitant $55 per day. This is our tax money, gentlemen!

Watergate Scandal More Odious Than Those Of Harding's Term

WASHINGTON — Two months ago Richard Nixon was inaugurated for the second time as the 37th President of the United States. After a near-record landslide, this was the crown of perhaps the most remarkable comeback in American political history. Everything looked rosy, with the President himself predicting for 1973 one of the best years of our lives.

The transformation occurring in these two months is the difference between day and night. With the second devaluation of the dollar and the swift drop in the stock market, the economic picture looks far from bright. Inflation is pushing prices for almost every item in the household budget so high that consumers are in open revolt.

MOST DEADLY OF ALL is the Watergate scandal. The latest revelation by James W. McCord Jr., one of the convicted defendants in the bugging case, indicates that far more individuals were involved and that every effort was made from close to the top to put the lid on this odorous mess.

Everything the Washington Post reported, as coming from anonymous sources, seems about to be proved out. Repeated denials by the White House and denunciation of the newspaper have been shown to be futile in the attempt to hush up the whole matter. The trial of the seven, as forthright Judge John J. Strica said at the close, was a farce.

The scandals of the Harding administration were crude money scandals. Warren Harding himself was a bumbling incompetent who had insisted before his nomination that he was unsuited for the presidency. Proved tragically correct, he died before the men he had chosen for his cabinet were unmasked as bribe-takers and betrayers of his trust.

In the Truman administration the gift of several food freezers to one of the President's aides was blown up into a national issue. Under President Eisenhower poor Sherman Adams was driven out of office because he was found to have accepted a vicuna coat and a rug from an acquaintance with a petition for help from the government.

EVEN THE HARDING scandals were minor compared to what is coming to light today. They were examples of simple greed. The Watergate scandal and the reported scheme to sabotage Democratic candidates in their primaries were aimed at subverting the political process itself.

Directly related are the shenanigans in gathering in the $47 million for the campaign to re-elect the President. Merely on newspaper reports, the law appears to have been repeatedly violated. If prosecutions do not follow, the Department of Justice may be considered part of the conspiracy of silence.

Of the Republican presidents of this century, no two could be more unlike than Warren Harding and Richard Nixon. Harding's private weaknesses — women, whiskey and poker — contributed to his public downfall, as in his amiable way he surrounded himself with dubious friends whose standards were lower than his own.

MR. NIXON is the soul of probity. In his own private life and that of the members of his family he sought to set an example to the country of propriety — a counter to the lowering of standards in so many departments. This surely contributed to the landslide.

But for all his personal righteousness, the time has long passed when it is enough merely to deny that the White House is in any way involved in the Watergate scandal. Stretching the cloak of executive privilege to cover not only present but past members of the President's staff serves merely to feed the suspicion that something really rotten is at the heart of the whole wretched business. Nothing short of a complete and documented disclosure, with the President's imprimatur, will suffice.

It was all so needless. As the President said in his interview with the Washington Star-News, the election was decided the day the Democrats nominated Sen. George McGovern. Why, then, the amassing of such vast sums of money by sly and highly questionable means? Why the folly of the Watergate and the vicious effort to undermine the Democratic primaries? Until responsible answers are forthcoming, public suspicion is certain to grow.

It's About Time The Mafia Ended Ethnic Discrimination

WASHINGTON — Every time a newspaperman does a piece on the Mafia, he hears from hundreds of law-abiding Italian-Americans who are angered that only Italian names were used in the article. As one lady wrote to me after a piece I did on the Mafia's bitterness at not getting any royalties from "The Godfather"' "I am sick and tired of this whole degrading, damaging stereotype that writers such as you have perpetrated on the Italian-American. It is insulting, defamatory and downright cheap."

Now the main problem for writers when discussing the Mafia is that while not all Italian-Americans are members of the Mafia, all members of the Mafia are Italian. The anger of the decent, hard-working Italians should be directed against the Mafia and not the people who write about them.

THE SOLUTION to the problem, as I see it, is that the Mafia has to open its membership to other ethnic groups, regardless of sex, creed, religion or color.

For as long as the Mafia has been operating in the United States, it has been lily-white and open only to males of Italian extraction. This not only is un-American but is in violation of the federal law.

If the Mafia were just a social club, they would have every right to say who should and should not belong. But it is a proved fact that the Mafia is engaged in interstate commerce and is a profit-making organization dealing with the public.

It is time the members of the syndicate open their doors to women and blacks and people of Irish, Jewish, Polish and German descent.

According to all statistics, the Mafia runs the biggest business in the United States. If this is so, then they should be subject to the Equal Opportunities Act.

THE MAFIA has maintained that they could not run their enterprises except with Italian help. This is a 19th-Century idea which has been passed down to the present Mafia families. They are trying to maintain an aura of mystery around the syndicate. They are keeping out people who are as well qualified, if not better,to do anything that a member of the Cosa Nostra could do.

What is the big deal about running gambling and numbers rackets, white-slavery rings and drug syndicates? You don't even need a college education to do most of the jobs that the Mafia requires of its members. By opening the Mafia to non-Italian blood, I honestly believe the Mafia would be doing themselves a great service. They would get fresh ideas, inspired leadership and youthful vigor that the organization so badly needs.

Why does a godfather always have to be the head of a Mafia family? What would be wrong with having a godmother?

THE MAFIA will tell you, "This is the way we've always done it."

But times are changing. Everyone wants and deserves a piece of the action. There is no room any more in this country for an underworld organization that discriminates against a person because he is not of Italian origin.

Although the Mafia is probably the greatest example of free enterprise in this country, I think it's time for the government to step in and say, "If you won't hire women, blacks, Mexicans, Indians or WASPs, then we're going to close you down. That is the law of the land."

BUT NEVER ON SUNDAY

Pastor Is A Policeman

By DANIEL L. TAYLOR

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) - Five days a week, rookie policeman Charles Monty Willis puts on his blue uniform and silver badge, straps his .38 caliber police special to his side and patrols Galveston's high crime district. But never on Sunday.

On the seventh day, Willis dons a different uniform—a conservative business suit—and mounts the pulpit of the First Church of the Nazarene to address his congregation.

Willis, 26, is both an ordained Nazarene minister and a commissioned officer in the Galveston Police Department.

The idea to become a policeman evolved more than three years ago while Willis rode with patrolmen as the police chaplain. He entered the Police Academy last May and became an active force member July 1.

"From the first I think I fit right into being a policeman," Willis said. "When I was the chaplain, I rode in the cars and saw every kind of crime there was."

When Willis first hit the streets as a patrolman, Police Chief Glenn Stanford said he would be like any other officer, with no special consideration given to his status as a minister.

"I've worked pretty regularly in the high crime district and its been real good," Willis said. "I like to be active and answer calls. I've made a lot of arrests and come close to leading the department in arrests."

Like any policeman, Willis has had to draw his gun on occasion although he has fired it only on the police range. But he wouldn't hesitate to shoot if the situation called for it, he said.

"My number one thought is to take care of my life," Willis said. "I don't think many people like the thought of going to jail, whether it's at the hands of a policeman or minister or whatever. If the time comes when it is necessary to use a weapon, I'll do it.

"I have two children and a good wife and I plan to go home every night. I'm just a human being. I try to treat people as I would like to be treated, but I don't let my feelings as a minister override my desire to take care of myself."

Willis also said he has a responsibility to other policemen who depend on him in tight situations.

Willis enjoys both jobs but admits he has trouble finding time for both.

"There is definitely a difficulty finding time," he said. "I'm sure I don't get everything done but so far I have been able to do both jobs. I think my congregation and family don't mind and I haven't heard any complaints."

Before Willis joined the force, he told his congregation of his plans.

PASTOR-POLICEMAN — The Rev. Charles Willis, pastor of First Church of the Nazarene in Galveston, Tex., is also a member of the city's police department. Before going on duty as a police officer Willis, 26, takes time to study his Bible. Later, with a .38-caliber police special at his side, Willis patrols Galveston's high crime district five days a week. But never on Sunday. (UPI Telephoto)

"They gave me a vote of confidence and were all in favor of it," he said.

Willis, his wife, Emily, 26, and their two children, Charles Jr., 5, and Tawn Annette, 3, live in the church parsonage, a five-room, one story white frame house on a palm tree-lined street behind the church.

Mrs. Willis said she is proud of her husband and doesn't worry about his police work.

"I'm really pretty excited about it," she said. "The potential danger really doesn't bother me. I just figure everybody has his time and if it comes I have to accept it."

Mrs. Willis and her husband, a man of medium height with brown eyes and brown hair, is dedicated and immovable when he believes he is right.

"He is dedicated to everything—his church, his family—to everything," Mrs. Willis said. "He doesn't let anyone sway him if he thinks he is right, concerning the law, morality or whatever."

She said her husband often uses experiences from his beat in his sermons.

"When he talks about sin and what he has seen of alcoholics and prostitutes, the congregation listens," she said. "They know he isn't talking about something from a book, he is talking about what he has seen. And because of his religious convictions, he is able to tie it all together."

Willis said many people ask him if there is a conflict between the roles of minister and policeman in society.

"I really don't see any conflict," he said. "When I started as a policeman I was impressed with the amount of education necessary to be on the force. Today's requirements are stiffer and more is expected of policemen today.

"I hope I can keep doing both." I do everything I can to keep myself clean as a minister. I want to be the best minister I can and the very best policeman I can."

Golden Gate Baptist Seminary To Host Evangelism Program

I-J Special Report

STRAWBERRY — Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Strawberry will host a public lectureship on evangelism, April 3-5. Dr. Leonard Sanderson, evangelism director of the Louisiana Baptist Convention, will be lecturer.

Sessions will be held each morning at 9:50 in John A. Broadus Hall Chapel on the campus. Dr. Anderson also will conduct an evangelism workshop on Tuesday and Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. in Room 210 of W. T. Conner Hall.

Tuesday morning Dr. Sanderson will be speaking on "Evangelism Is a Life Style," on Wednesday, "Evangelism Is for People," and on Thursday, "Evangelism and the Pastor."

Dr. Sanderson is a former director of the Division of Evangelism of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, Atlanta, Ga. He has organized and directed evangelism campaigns in a number of countries in South America and the Orient.

He has authored three books, "Personal Soul Winning," "Using the Sunday School in Evangelism," and "Strength for Living."

The evangelist was Chairman for Evangelism for the seven-denomination Jubilee Advance Program and led the nationwide crusade in 1959. He was also a delegate to the World Congress on Evangelism in Berlin, Germany in 1966.

The Lectureship on Evangelism has been linked by Seminary President Harold K. Graves to the Seminary's campaign to begin a Chair of Evangelism within the next year.

Jewish Center To Host Editor

The Marin Jewish Community Center, Congregation Kol Shofar, and Temple Rodef Sholom are jointly sponsoring a talk by Shalon Rosenfeld, the editor of 'Ma'ariv,' the leading Israeli afternoon newspaper.

Sabbath services will be conducted by Rabbi David Davis and Rabbi Jacob Milgrim, beginning at 8:15 p.m. on Friday, April 6 at Temple Rodef Sholom, 170 No. San Pedro Rd., San Rafael.

Following the services, Rosenfeld will speak on "The Two Israels: Ashkenazi and Sephardi." During the Oneg Shabbat, there will be an opportunity to ask questions and talk with Rosenfeld. Refreshments will be served.

Bethel Baptist Missionary Conference Set

Bethel Baptist Church in Novato, 1929 Novato Boulevard, will hold a missionary conference April 6, 7 and 8.

On Friday at 7:30 p.m., Rev. and Mrs. Clark Wyly will tell of their work at the San Francisco Gospel Mission. Saturday a potluck dinner is planned at 6 p.m. with guest speakers Mr. and Mrs. Kemp Pallesen of Wycliffe Bible Translators, missionaries in New Zealand and the Philippines.

Sunday the 11 a.m. worship service will feature Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Bryant, director of missions, American Baptist Churches of the West.

Sunday at 7 p.m. John N. Dick will tell of the activities of Family Stations, Inc., which now has short wave broadcasting reaching most of the world.

Serra Club Offers Family Program

The Serra Club of Marin, a Catholic businessmen's association, will present a program entitled "Opening to the Dimension of Service of Others" for parents and students at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Marin Catholic High School.

The Rev. Miles Riley, head of the communication center for the archdiocese in San Francisco, formerly assistant pastor at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael, will speak.

Adventists Slate Youth Meetings

The Seventh Day Adventist Church in Novato is sponsoring a series of 15 youth meetings at the church, 495 San Marin Drive.

Sessions will be held tomorrow and Fridays and Sundays thereafter at 7 p.m. Motion pictures will be shown at each session, according to Pastor Preston Smith.

Ministry Starts For The Retarded

The Church of the Open Door of Mill Valley has started Sunday School and worship services for retarded and educationally handicapped children. The program is an unstructured mixture of art work, games, stories, "rhythm band," and snacks.

The class meets from 10 a.m. to noon at Scout Hall, 177 E. Blithedale, Mill Valley, the facilities presently being used by the church. Pastor Robert Hymers says, "Any child who doesn't fit into regular classes, for one reason or another, is most welcome."

SPEAKER — A look into the question of whether men need liberating as much as women will be provided tomorrow by Bettye Doty, associate minister of the Unitarian Fellowship of Marin. Her sermon at the 11 a.m. service is entitled "Both Sides Now." The church is located at 240 Channing Way, San Rafael.

Scientists Will Hear Jules Cern

Can human problems be solved through wholly spiritual means?

Jules Cern, C.S., will present his answer to that question in a public lecture on Christian Science to be given in San Rafael on Thursday, April 5.

"Divine revelation is always relevant to human tribulation," Cern says.

An internationally known lecturer, he will speak in the San Rafael High School auditorium, 185 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, at 8 p.m., at the invitation of First Church of Christ, Scientist, in San Rafael. Child care will be provided.

A native of Dallas, Cern has been engaged in the healing ministry of Christian Science for many years.

Drawing on his experience, he will describe how individuals have overcome poverty, harmonized human relationships, and healed disease through spiritual means alone.

As a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, Cern has lectured in nearly all parts of the world. He is a former advertising manager and actor, having appeared in plays on Broadway

OF GOD AND MAN

Loving Others Is Not Enough

By LOUIS CASSELS

Is a determination to act lovingly toward others all the moral code a person needs?

Many contemporary theologians would answer Yes. They subscribe to what Episcopalian Joseph Fletcher calls "situation ethics." Its essential principle is that Christian behavior consists not of obeying rules, but rather of being guided by love in the particular circumstances of a concrete situation.

This view has gained such wide adherence in recent years it now amounts almost to the conventional widsom of our time.

It is sharply challenged by Stanley Hauerwas, a professor of theology at Notre Dame University, in the current issue of Cross Currents, one of America's most distinguished quarterly reviews of Christian thought.

Hauerwas argues that loving others —while clearly a primary Christian duty to which Jesus gave very great emphasis —is not by itself a sufficient guide to moral behavior.

One weakness of a simplistic "love ethic," he says, is that it tends to assume that all moral problems can be reduced to questions of being kind in interpersonal relationships.

Actually, our ethical dilemmas frequently "involve more than person to person interaction," he says.

"We exist as social creatures, and as such we confront social problems that require not love but justice. For example, the emergence of black power is the result of the black man's perception that he no longer wanted to be loved by the white. What he wanted was justice —that is, he wanted power to protect his own interest in a way that did not continue to depend on the good will of whites."

Even in purely personal relationships, Hauerwas says, the real ethical question often is not whether to hurt someone else, but rather who is to get hurt in a situation where some hurt is unavoidable. In many circumstances, "even good will cannot act without hurting." Refusing to face this reality can reduce a "love ethic" to mere sentimentality.

Realistic, genuine love "may require us to do what appears unloving" in some situations. It may call not only for a willingness to suffer personally, but, more difficult, "to let others suffer" in order to do the right thing.

For example, he asks, "what is the loving thing to do for a young man with a new family who is hospitalized with incurable cancer?"

"His family thinks the loving thing is not to tell him he is dying to preserve the happiness that is possible in the time left him." But such a conspiracy of silence will "cheat this young man of the agony of learning to die well."

Moreover, Hauerwas points out, keeping bad news from the person principally affected may be motivated not only by compassion for him, but also by a selfish desire to spare ourselves the emotional trauma of sharing his suffering as he awaits death.

"What we must face is that love is not the saving of others from suffering, but the willingness to continue to love them in their suffering, and patiently hold the pain and guilt that such love cannot help but bring. If we are willing to do that, we might begin to understand ethically why Christ came ... to die and be raised, that the world and we might live free from the fear of reality."

Israeli Airline Executive Will Speak In Marin

A special program sponsored jointly by Congregation Rodef Sholom and the Jewish Community Center of Marin will be presented Wednesday, April 4, at 8 p.m., at Congregation Rodef Sholom, 170 No. San Pedro Rd., San Rafael.

Captain Leo Gardner, executive director of the northwest region of El Al Israel Airlines, will be the guest speaker. He will speak on the importance of Israel's 25th anniversary, and the Congregation Rodef Sholom tour and pilgrimage to the Holy Land, scheduled for departure on June 25.

Aaron Lor, director of education at Congregation Rodef Sholom, says, "Captain Gardner provides a new perspective to the understanding of what Israel is all about and its full historical implications. He is fully convinced that there is an historical vacuum existing in religion."

The informational meeting is open to the public at which Israeli wine will be served and there will be Israeli folk dancing.

DARLENE TIPTON

Mrs. Tipton To Address Methodists

Darlene Tipton of San Rafael, wife of the founding pastor of the Novato United Methodist Church, will speak at a Methodist Women's meeting at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday (April 3) at the church, 1473 South Novato Boulevard.

Mrs. Tipton will tell the Easter story with slides she and her husband, Ervin C. Tipton, took on trips to the Holy Land and sacred art pictures.

The story will be augmented by special music by the church choir and those who attend have been requested to bring flashlights, which will be used in a part of the service.

Lutherans Name Coordinator Of Indian Efforts

SAN FRANCISCO (LC) — A full-time coordinator of American Indian Ministries has been named by the California and Nevada District of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

He is Andy Reinap, who for six years was director of King of Kings Center, serving a predominantly Black and Chicano community in Fresno. Reinap will administer the new program from Davis, where he recently completed additional studies for the post at the University of California and DQ University.

Sensitizing Lutheran congregations to the needs of Indian people, working with various coalitions to secure funding for Indian-deceloped programs, improving communication between Indians and white people, and possibly initiating some direct services are major components of the new position, Reinap said.

California's Indian population more than doubled during the decade ending in 1970, Reinap reported.

HOW CAN YOU TALK WITH YOUR TEEN-AGER?
There doesn't have to be a gap between you. Not when you let God help you communicate.
The Christian Science Sunday School supports happy family relationships. Here a teen-ager can get a deep, practical understanding of God. Through the Bible, he can discover his God-given stability and tenderness, blessing both himself and his family.
Why not offer your teen-ager an opportunity to attend our Sunday School? It could help to keep the communication warm and alive between you.

Tender Treatment Is Needed In Execution Of Trump Cards

A very strong trump suit can usually stand rough handling, but this isn't always true. The trumps in today's hand, for example, need tender treatment.

VERY NATURAL

East took two top hearts and led a third heart, all very naturally. South ruffed with the king of spades, and West discarded a low diamond.

It looks as though South can afford to lead a low trump to dummy's ten, but this play would surely cost him the contract.

South should lead a club to dummy's king and return the deuce of spades from dummy. This is the only proper way to handle the trumps.

East can gain nothing by playing the ace of spades at once. If he does so, and then leads a fourth high heart, South can ruff with the queen of spades and can easily draw the rest of the trumps with dummy's ten and his own jack.

EASY PLAYS LOW

East therefore plays low on the first round of trumps, and South wins with the queen. Only now can South afford to lead a trump to dummy's ten.

East wins with the ace and leads a fourth heart, but he is too late. South ruffs low, and West is out of trumps. Now South can draw the last trump with the jack.

A LOW TRUMP

See what happens if South begins the trumps by leading a low trump to dummy's ten. East takes the ace of spades and leads a fourth high heart. South must ruff with the queen to shut West out. Now South can draw a sscond trump with the jack, but East then has a high trump.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your right, bids one spade.

You hold:
♠ - K Q J 5 4 3
♥ - 5 2
♦ - A J 3
♣ - A 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

If the opening bid is legitimate, you certainly want to stay out of the bidding. If the bid is "psychic," you will have other opportunities to intervene.

Commune Raid Brings Arrests

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Thirty police officers raided the controversial Good Earth commune in the Haight-Ashbury district Thursday night and found assorted drugs and a stolen revolver.

The raid took place after an undercover agent allegedly purchased a half-ounce of cocaine from a member, police said.

Four persons were arrested for possession of narcotics in the raid, which turned up a kilo of marijuana, small amounts of heroin and cocaine and the revolver, said officers. It was the third raid on the commune in two years.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Talk of the town! People born today have had a lot to say, but did they really say this? Asnwer "Yes" or "No."

1. DAVID EISENHOWER, 25 today, is being released from the United States Navy on his birthday. Thinking about a future career, he recalls the advice given him by his grandfather, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, and says: "He told me to get a law degree and that's exactly what I intend to do. Some people say my life has been too structured but frankly, that's the way I like it."

2. CESAR CHAVEZ, 46 today, organizer of the United Farm Workers union, which has stirred controversy by its insistence on grape and lettuce boycotts, was asked why he did it, answering: "... when the growers refuse to sit down at the bargaining table there is no alternative ... All we want from the government is the machinery — some rules of the game. All we need is the recognition of our right to full and equal coverage under every law which protects every other working man and woman in this country."

3. RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN, 38 today, got tired of being stereotyped by his TV role on the "Dr. Kildare" series and went to England to startle everyone by succeeding as a Shakespearean actor. Asked why he did it, he replied: "If I had suggested playing Hamlet in Hollywood, they'd have said, "Who do you think you are? Get back into your white doctor's coat." But the British were helpful and kind . . .

4. RENE DESCARTES (1596-1650), French philosopher and mathematician, has been called the father of modern philosophy because he attempted to apply the scientific methods to philosophy. Looking for truth, he said he had found its beginning in these words: "Cogito, ergo sum — I think, therefore I am."

A DOCKING AT COLLEGE

'2001' Author's Solution To Meat Prices—Eat Oil

By PAT PERRY

Science fiction writer Arthur. C. Clarke, inventory of the communications satellite, came down to earth last night at the College of Marin and offered a futurist's solution to high meat prices.

Eat oil.

Microbiological engineering is the answer to the world's food problems, said Clarke. The world's first large-scale factory to use such a process is already turning oil into protein in France, he added, and the Japanese are planning million-ton plants.

"Three per cent of the world's oil production could feed the entire human race. We could make steaks for 15 cents a pound. Isn't it time we stopped burning oil and eating it?" he asked an audience of close to 2,000 in the college gymnasium.

Explaining that similar microbiological processes have been used for centuries to make wine and cheese, Clarke whose appearance marked the opening of a two-day "Future Fare" at the College, added: "We've got to face the fact that natural meat production is so hopelessly unproductive it will be prohibited in the next century."

It takes 10 pounds of fodder to make one pound of meat, on the hoof, he said, and by the time the meat arrives on the table the ratio is so ridiculously inefficient "it's not worthy of comment."

Clarke, who co-authored "2001: A Space Odyssey" and

ARTHUR C. CLARKE
Solution to food problems

has written more than 50 books, confessed he likes meat and views the prospect of processed protein with dismay.

"But we can't continue to use good agricultural land on animals. Perhaps we can continue meat production on marginal land for new animals like antelope, with the swampy land for hippos. And eat seal."

He also suggested whale ranching — "a cow producing half a ton of milk a day is an interesting economic proposition" — but questioned the ethics of slaughtering an animal with a brain larger than man's.

Clarke, an Englishman who now lives in South Ceylon, painted a picture of what he thinks life will be like by the year 2001. (He warned, however, that if contact with extra terrestrial intelligence is made, or if thinking machines emerge, "all bets are off.")

We will live in autonomous self-contained homes constructed of light, space age materials. Using technology developed in the closed-ecology recylcing system of space capsules, homes won't need sewage, water or utility pipes so they can be moved by helicopter.

And he told of plans by his friend Buckminster Fuller to put one of his geodesic domes right over New York City, and theorizes that the hot air generated by the metropolis will cause the entire dome to rise . . ." so you'll have New York floating south to Florida for the winter . . ."

All the food a family of the future needs will be delivered in a 100-pound package once a month, Clarke predicted. "Eighty per cent of food is water — all you'll do is reconstitute the food with water and there it is, perfectly cooked in ten minutes."

Some innovations will come much sooner than 2001, said Clarke. In a decade, he predicted, American homes will have a central communications console, with a television camera, screen, microphone, keyboard and speaker.

The communications console will eliminate most of the communications of the 1970s, he said.

"It'll be the end of the paper newspaper . . . just dial the local newspaper service, or any newspaper in the world, there it is thrown up on the screen. Telephones will be obsolete. Every book that's ever been written will be in your room because the device will be plugged into the global electronic library," said Clarke.

"All the knowledge of the world will be available when you dial the correct . . . number."

Clarke, who first conceived the idea of the communications satellite in the 1940s, said the world is on the verge of the greatest communications explosion ever, and attributed it to the satellites and to the development of solid state physics.

And he suggested that planet-wide communications will mean the demise of most languages. "I suspect in fifty years' time there will be three basic human languages — Mandarin, Russian and English. Later just one global language, but I don't know which one."

He made no attempt to suggest everything will be rosy.

"Ninety per cent of the things anyone does will be able to be done without leaving home. It'll mean the end of a commuting society and solve traffic problems. Cities will be obsolete. But if you eliminate 90 per cent of human activities, our descendants face a life of utter boredom."

"We're really aiming for full unemployment. Already there's no place for manual laborers. Tomorrow there will be no place for clerical or executive skills. Soon there will be no place for college graduates."

"The greatest industry of the future will be education," he said. The second greatest will be entertainment. And I think the two should be synonymous."

"If I had to sum up the greatest problem of the future in one sentence it would be: "Riasing the school leaving age to 120."

Plea Made To Felony Auto Crash

An 18-year-old Novato youth, involved in a fatal auto accident, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to manslaughter and two felony counts of casuing injuries through drunken driving.

Preliminary hearing for Gregory T. Giuliano was set for April 10.

Killed in the crash March 18 on Virginia Avenue in Novato was William Edward Porter, 61, of Novato. Porter's wife and another passenger. Helen Mae Doggett. 75. of Vandalia, Ohio. were hospitalized with broken bones.

Giuliano was hospitalized until this week with a dislocated left hip.

Witnesses to the crash told police Giuliano's car was speeding, missed a turn and crashed into the Porter car at Virginia and Grant Avenue.

The force of the head-on collision shoved the Porter car back 185 feet into a utility pole, police said.

Trio Is Arraigned On Holdup

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Three Richmond men, suspected of a holdup at a Corte Madera savings and loan office, were arraigned yesterday before U.S. Magistrate Richard Goldsmith, who set a preliminary hearing for April 9.

The men — Kenneth Gerald Taylor, also known as James Williams, 22, and Edward Barnett and Raymond Bonitto, both 20 — were arrested Thursday after a 90-mile-per-hour chase across the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge.

Authorities said two of the men had entered the Civic Federal Savings and Loan Association office on Tamalpais Drive, forced two tellers to lie on the floor at gunpoint and fled with $1,100 in a stolen car driven by Barnett.

Since bank robbery is a federal offense, the case was turned over to federal authorities by Corte Madera Police.

Goldsmith ordered Taylor and Bonitto held on $25,000 bail each. Barnett was released without bail. Goldsmith said it appeared Barnett was forced to drive the getaway car

Arrest Made In Home Entry

Fairfax police today arrested a man who they said was trying to force open the front door of a home with a screwdriver.

Police said Laura Rutherford of 292 Forrest Avenue called them at about 5:45 a.m. to say she heard a burglar outside the house.

Police arrived and arrested James A. Gronczewski, 42, who gave his address only as Lagunitas. He was booked at Marin County Jail on suspicion of attempted burglary. No bail had been set.

New Trial Is Ordered On Drunken Driving

When suspicions arise that a juror in a drunken driving case is himself drunk, it's time to start the trial over again, a Marin Municipal Court judge decided yesterday.

Judge Robert A. Smallman declared a mistrial in the case of Leo Herbert Strauss, a member of last year's Marin County Grand Jury after questioning a juror about his sobriety.

The judge said he didn't think the juror was drunk, "but he gave all the appearances. There isn't any question about that."

The question arose during the second day of the trial when two bailiffs told the judge they smelled liquor on the breath of the juror and watched him behaving strangely.

The case was continued to Friday to set a new trial date for Strauss, 51, of San Rafael, arrested last June 9 by the California Highway Patrol.

Strauss, executive vice president of Hospital Corp of America, was a grand juror at the time of his arrest.

Behr Sees Confusion On Social Programs Funding

"A basket of snakes" was the description used yesterday by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, for uncertainties surrounding federal funding of various social programs.

In addition to confusion in Washington, Behr said that there is no plan at the state level for "how we are going to share the funds we don't know the amount of."

He spoke at the first meeting of the Marin Agencies Council, a group being formed to include representatives of all county agencies, both public and private, which deal with health, welfare, recreation and social planning.

Behr offered little encouragement to the representatives that cutbacks in various social programs would not be made by the Nixon administration. He suggested, however, that the agency representatives have an "opportunity to go to work" to make their desires known in Washington since no firm plans exists now.

He credited public pressure with delaying federal cutbacks for child care centers at least until July.

Steven Shefler, Northern California field representative for Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., told the group, meeting at the Marin Civic Center, that "luckily California has a surplus" and may be able to finance some programs at the state level.

Shefler described a shift in emphasis at the federal level for spending on social programs. He said that the Nixon administration intends to bring all drug abuse programs "under one cover," including treatment, prevention and policing.

There will be cutbacks in mental health spending, especially in training programs, Shefler said, but the "type of work" now done by Planned Parenthood "may well receive sizeable support" under the Family Assistance Planning Bill.

Arnold M. Baptiste, chairman of the Marin Board of Supervisors, said that if it is difficult to ascertain at the federal or state level the funding situation, "it is even harder to see what is going on at the local level."

Baptiste said "we are going on the assumption that we will have more control locally" over spending and said there is a "desperate need for more coordination in social services" in the county.

Thousands Facing Mississippi Flooding

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Hundreds of persons from Illinois to the Gulf of Mexico may have to flee their homes today, as the rain-swollen Mississippi River and its tributaries continued to flood low-lying areas.

Late Friday, however, the situation was reported under control in the hardest hit areas, including Mississippi, where more flash flood warnings had been issued.

Red Cross officials here said that volunteers and staff members were ready to shelter and feed "hundreds of families" who may be forced out of their homes between Ballard County, Ky., and Vicksburg, Miss.

Montz, La., 25 miles up the Mississippi from New Orleans, once 600 feet from the river, had to be abandoned Friday after water began lapping at the foot of the levee that protected the hamlet of 30 families.

Private levees gave way around the 58,000-acre Louisiana Delta Plantation in hard-hit Catahoula Parish in central Louisiana Friday, and that land was added to the 210,000 acres of farmland in the parish that has been under water for more than a week.

Some 105 families—about 525 people—fled their homes in Catahoula earlier this week, and an undetermined number more left Friday as the National Guard was called back in to help with evacuations.

Heavy rains across the nation's mid section the last few weeks had already caused the inundation of 350,000 acres of rich farmland in Kentucky, Missouri, Tennessee and Mississippi.

Red Cross spokesman Pat Guibao in Memphis said a grade school in Finley, Tenn., was ready to shelter 200 persons who could be forced out by high waters, and space for 200 was also available at Vicksburg, Miss.

Guibao said 80 refugees from previous flooding in Mississippi already were in public facilities at Greenwood and 82 at Holly Buff.

Rain continued to fall across much of Mississippi Friday, but most officials reported the situation under control. Earlier officials had said more heavy rains for the state could be "catastrophic."

Levees in flood-weary LeFlore County were reported to be holding, despite the hard rain. At Vicksburg, lowland flooding was described as "serious but not critical."

Campaign Launched In Fighting Venereal Disease

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — With such matchbook slogans as "Let's get V.D.", Gov. Ronald Reagan and his advisers have launched a venereal disease awareness campaign for the month of April.

The slogan, in bold letters on brightly colored matchbooks, was only one part of the many faceted effort to grab the public's attention and focus it on California's No. 1 communicable disease.

In a statement issued Friday by the Venereal Disease Advisory Council, Reagan urged all Californians "to become more informed about the dangers of V.D. and the programs which are aimed at preventing its spread."

The governor and his advisers listed informatin to be used in the awareness campaign:

—For the 11th straight year, V.D. headed the list of reportable communicable diseases in California, with 111,000 cases recorded in 1972.

—It is estimated that more than half a million Californians have eithher undetected or unreported venereal disease.

—Venereal disease costs the citizens of California $36 million annually in taxes and medical bills.

—It is estimated that one of every 10 persons between 15 and 25 has V.D.

Reagan said the April V.D. awareness program will combine the cooperative efforts of state agencies and local venereal disease control programs under the Health and Welfare Agency's Office of Special Services.

The slogan, "Let's Get V.D.," was an effort by the Sacramento Area Venereal Disease Association. There will be others by different groups, each telling V.D. victims where to go for help. Spot radio announcements are also planned.

"The spread of V.D. can," Reagan stated, "be arrested through public education and proper prevention and treatment."

Added Scott R. Winders, chairman of the newly-formed advisory council, "With this kind of a team we are going to overcome the ... lack of public knowledge."

"Venereal disease programs are finally getting the high priority attention they need," he concluded.

Recital Set In Tiburon

Three Marin residents will present a recital at 8 p.m. April 15 at the Community Congregational Church of Belvedere-Tiburon, 145 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon.

Performing will be Judith Phillips of Ross, on flute; soprano Kay Collett of San Rafael and Audrey Jarach of San Rafael on piano.

The program will include two new works by Jon Sutton as well as pieces by Thomas Arn, Hans Werner Henze, Handel, Schumann, Roussel and Bozza.

New Round Of Fighting In S. Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — More post-truce fighting was reported in South Vietnam yesterday and U.S. warplanes struck for the 23rd consecutive day in Cambodia. Hanoi said now that U.S. troops are out of South Vietnam, President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime is finished.

The Saigon command said Communist gunners launched a heavy artillery barrage on a 600-man government ranger base 50 miles north of Saigon that killed one trooper and wounded 25 others.

The shelling of the Tong Le Chan base yesterday occurred on the first anniversary of the opening of the North Vietnamese spring offensive of 1972 — the last major Communist campaign of the war.

Radio Hanoi, in a broadcast monitored in Saigon, said the United States completed the withdrawal of its last troops from South Vietnam Thursday and said American servicemen "will not come back so easily. Nobody will be able to save them (the Thieu administration) now."

Thieu leaves today on a globe-circling tour that takes him first to the United States for a discussion with President Nixon on South Vietnam's future. Throughout his tour, Thieu is expected to seek financial and political support for his post-war government.

Burglary Case Hearing Set

Preliminary hearing on a burglary charge against a 19-year-old San Rafael youth has been set for April 12 in Marin Municipal Court.

Christopher Jay Wootton pleaded innocent Thursday to the felony charge, which grew out of delivery of a stereo, two speakers and two radios Tuesday to Al's used furniture at 634 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael.

Police also arrested the store owner, Frank Albert Tatum, 64, of San Anselmo, on suspicion of concealing stolen property, and Wootton's companion, Frank Joseph Grace, 26, of Woodland, Yolo County.

The district attorney has declined to charge Tatum pending further investigation. Grace is to appear for arraignment Wednesday.

Police said serial numbers showed the items delivered by Wootton and Grace were stolen from the Elizabeth A. Davis home on Deer Park Avenue.

Swedish Envoy To Give Talk In Marin

Jan K. Eliasson, first secretary of the Royal Swedish Embassy in Washington, D.C., will speak on Swedish-American relations at a meeting of the World Affairs Council's Marin chapter at 8:15 p.m. April 11 at the Sausalito Yacht Club.

Eliasson served several years in Bonn before coming to the U.S. His next assignment will be as U.S. desk officer in Stockholm. His talk also will involve Swedish foreign policy.

Belvedere Hearing Set On Housing

The Belvedere City Council, meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at city hall, will hold a public hearing on a housing element to the city's general plan.

The element, required by state law, will serve as a guideline for the city to follow on housing matters and stresses the need for low and moderate-cost housing in Belvedere, where housing prices are the highest in Marin.

Also on the agenda is a proposal that Tiburon's police dispatcher answer calls to the Belvedere Police Department when Belvedere's officers are out on calls. At present that service is performed by the Marin Sheriff's Department.

The council also will receive a reply to a request that buses of the Golden Gate Bridge District limit their service to the city to four hours daily during commute periods.

Display Scheduled

Photographs by Nancy Bechtel of San Rafael, taken on three African safaris, will be on display at the Depot Gallery at Vintage 1870 in Yountville, Napa County, from April 7 to May 31.

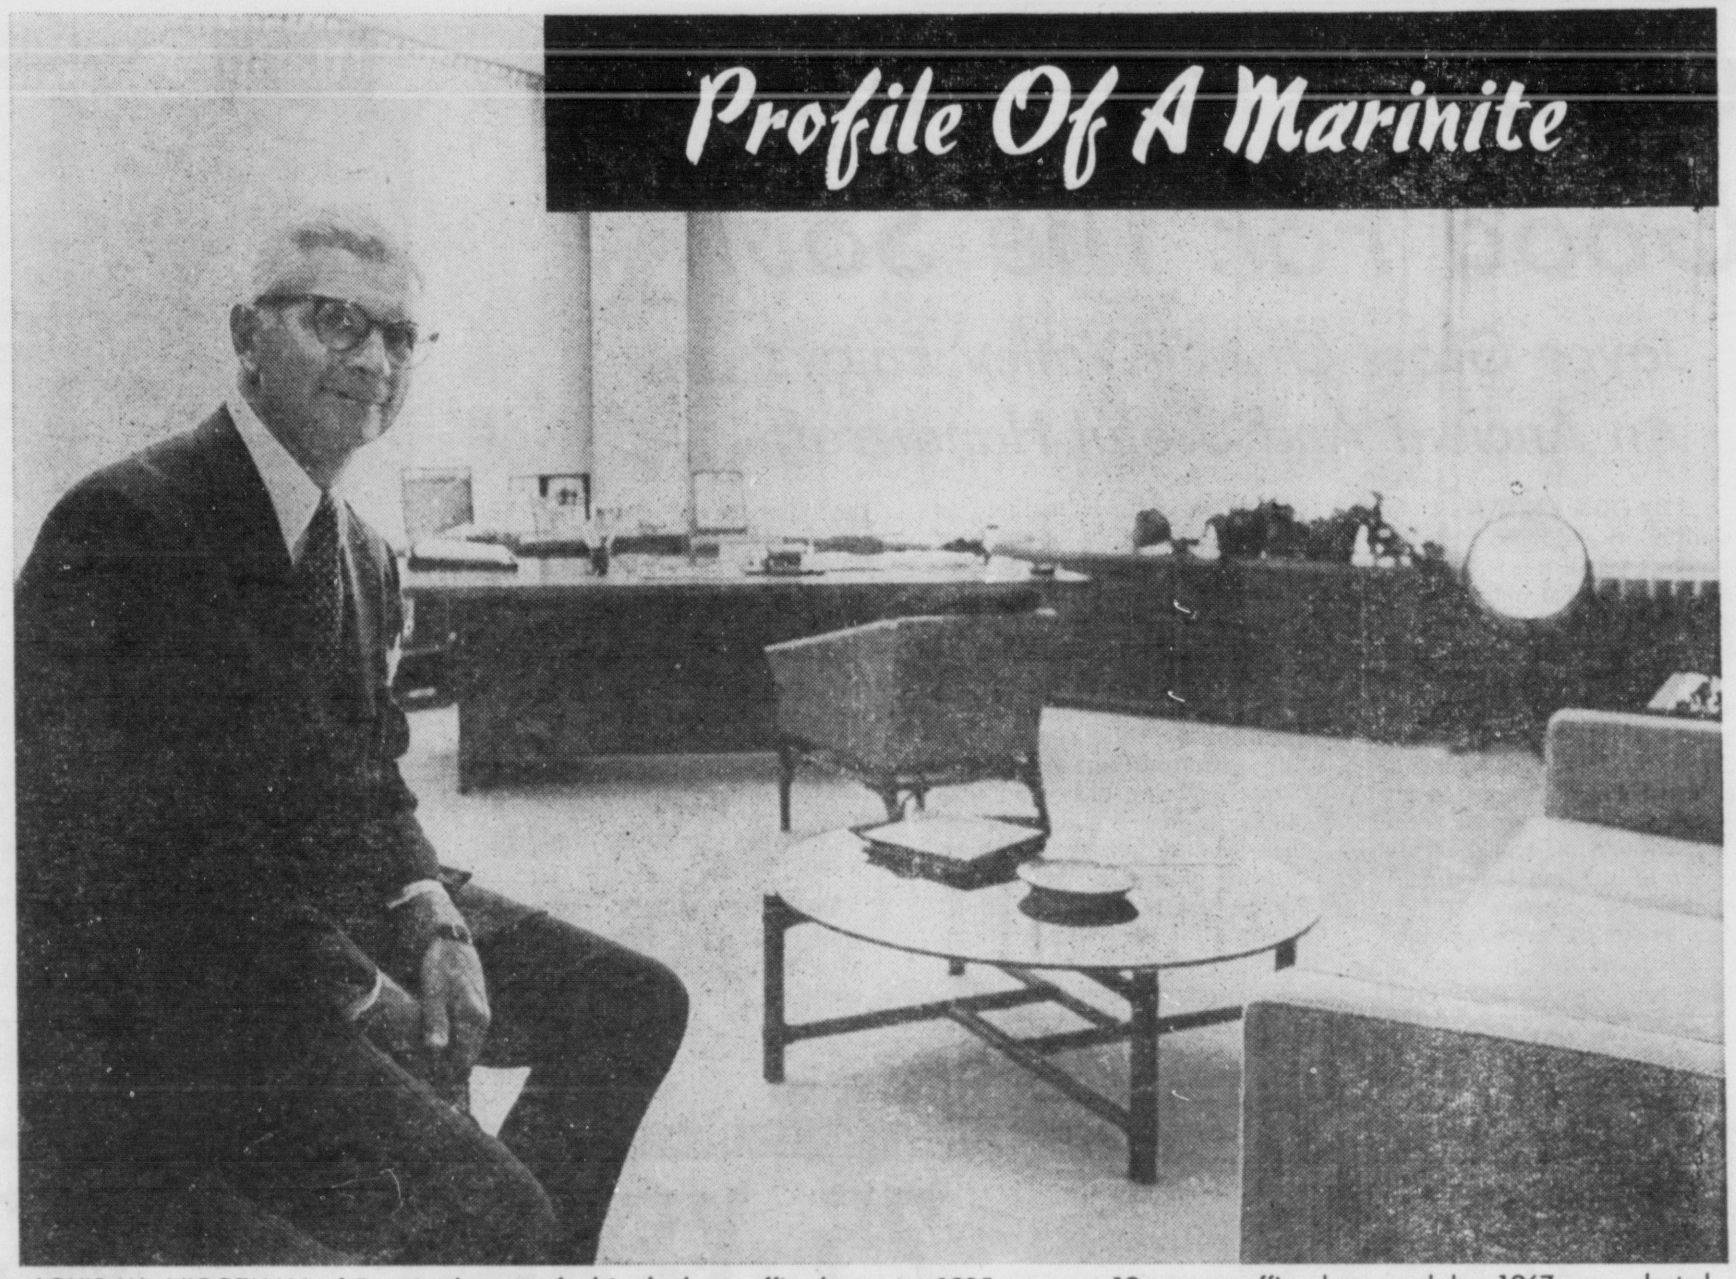
He's The Chairman Of The Board—

Profile Of A Marinite



LOUIS W. NIGGEMAN of Ross is photographed in the huge office he occupies in San Francisco as chairman of the board of Firemen's Fund American Insurance Companies. Niggeman began his insurance career in 1935 at age 19 as an office boy, and by 1967 was elected Firemen's Fund president. He's also a vice president of the parent American Express. (Independent-Journal photo)

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

As head of the nation's seventh largest insurance company, Louis W. Niggeman of Ross is used to unfavorable public feelings about his profession.

He'll even concede that feelings run to hostility.

"We haven't been able to convince people that we in effect back the credit system for most of the world," he said in his huge San Francisco office at Firemen's Fund American Insurance Companies.

"Society says that if you have injured someone you are responsible for your negligence. The average individual can't carry that exposure on his own account, so he looks to an insurer to do it."

PEOPLE NOT only misunderstand insurance, he said, but after paying for it, resent ending up with only a piece of paper which promises to do something if something happens.

"We promise to pay, but you can't see it. It only comes into play at a time of adversity, so it isn't a popular product. When everything is good, when you are driving along a freeway and don't hit anybody, the insurance doesn't seem to do any good."

What the public buys with insurance, however, is "peace of mind for the exposure," he said. "Even though there isn't a loss, we still have had the exposure because there could have been a loss."

Perhaps the biggest reason for public hostility, he suggested, was that roughly half of all people in auto accidents get no insurance payments to cover their injuries or loss of income.

COMBINED WITH the skyrocketing cost of auto insurance, the result, he said, is widespread disaffection toward insurers — and the rising prospect the government may take over the business of insuring drivers.

No-fault insurance is the answer to the dilemma, Niggeman said. Under it, negligence is disregarded in most accidents and everyone gets compensated for injuries and loss of income. The present system would remain in use only for severe injuries.

Niggeman noted that his company was among the first to support no-fault insurance. A bill adopting the system in California died last year in the state Legislature, primarily because of opposition from attorneys handling auto injury cases. Niggeman predicted its chance was better this session in Sacramento because public pressure for its adoption has increased.

HE SAID HE preferred state-by-state no-fault insurance to allow experimentation with variations of the new system. To start with federal no-fault insurance would foreclose a chance to see which variation works best, he said.

If "no-fault" failed, Niggeman cautioned, "the alternative is always government. But if you are on your toes, do your job, and believe that you can outperform government, then there is nothing to worry about."

Niggeman's devotion to his profession goes back to 1935, when as "a product of the Depression" he dropped out of college at age 19 and went to work as an office boy for an insurer in his native New York City. "I had to eat," he said of his choice of profession.

"There was no looking around for training programs. Everybody started the same way, no matter what your background. And you started at the mail desk.

"WE'D DELIVER all of our downtown New York mail. Stamps were two cents, but it was cheaper to have someone run around. By running around downtown New York delivering envelopes you learned where all the clients and underwriters were, and you learned the streets.

"You did that about a year, then you were moved up into a department where there was an opening." That was how he got into the business and became an expert in marine insurance.

It was only a few years to 1942, when at age 26 he was ordered to Washington as chief underwriter for the Wartime Insurance Division of the Wary Shipping Administration.

The division insured ships, cargoes and crews. It was, he said, "the largest steamship company the world ever put together; the whole support facility of the American military effort and all of the economic products coming in."

NIGGEMAN WAS only 26, but so few new persons had been hired by insurance companies during the Depression that there was no middle generation to go to Washington. He and a handful of marine underwriters, were the only ones with "basic training" who took the war-time jobs. Senior men were too laden with responsibilities to leave for Washington.

"I was told I had to go — simple as that. Two days later I was on my way. It wasn't the military draft, but it was the same thing."

A later attempt to get a release to go into the Navy was rejected.

BY THE END of the war, he was director of wartime insurance and closed up the shop with a six million dollar profit for Uncle Sam.

Niggeman then joined Firemen's Fund in New York. Working his way up the corporate chain, he moved west to world-wide headquarters in 1953, settling in Marin. He was elected president in 1967, chief executive officer in 1971 and chairman of the board last year.

He also heads the company's operations in some 100 other nations and is a vice president of of American Express, the corporate parent of Firemen's Fund.

Firemen's Fund, Niggeman noted proudly, has doubled its business since 1963, and figures it will again by 1980. One result is headquarters has run out of space.

THE SOLUTION was to move the computer operations to Marin, and a new plant is being built on Highway 101 at Lucas Valley. It will have about 700 employees when it opens late next year, and about 1,000 by 1978.

He added that Marin was chosen for the new facility because of its easy access from San Francisco, not because he lives here.

In all, the company has 10,500 employees throughout the country plus 3,500 abroad. Premiums passed the billion dollar mark last year, leaving eight more years to hit the two billion mark. Niggeman noted premiums were 60 million dollars when he joined the company.

Of the shift to environmentally sensitive Marin, he observed, "We're a relatively clean operation. We shuffle a lot of papers, but we don't burn them. About the only thing we do that might be criticized is put traffic on the highway, but in the reverse pattern."

AMONG A HOST of other positions, he is past chairman of the Greater San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, second vice president of the California Chamber of Commerce, past president of the International Hospitality Center of the Bay Area and treasurer of the Episcopal Diocese of California.

He has been an avid skier since 1930, which goes back to pre-lift days when few Americans ventured up the slopes.

When he is home Saturdays, he hikes eight to 10 miles on Mount Tamalpais. He also cuts all his own firewood.

His other hobby is travel, although he still hasn't managed to get to Asia. He said he has "a great desire to go Nepal and trek, and if I don't hurry up I'm going to be too old."

NIGGEMAN AND his wife reared their daughter, Susan, and sons, Jon and Peter, in Sleepy Hollow. They moved later to Ross because "the commute was too much." Susan is married and lives in Madrid, John is in the reinsurance business in New York and Peter works in London in the international insurance brokerage field.

THIS CONCERN with the community has led him into Resource Exchange, a group of executives who meet at breakfast monthly with young persons active in community affairs. They provide office furniture and fixtures, accountants who can set up books, attorneys to draw up organization charters — resources, not just money.

"I don't believe the American business will be any better than the community around it," he said, "and therefore we have an obligation to make the community around us better."

"I don't believe the American business will be any better than the community around it," says Louis W. Niggeman of Ross and Firemen's Fund. He, therefore, works hard for a better community.

Quiltmaking—'It Is Good For The Soul'

Joyce Gross Of Mill Valley Enjoys An Ancient And Useful Handicraft

By DON KEOWN

Quilting is enjoying a grand comeback because it is a congenial and practical activity that appeals strongly to today's nostalgic yearnings, believes Joyce Gross of Mill Valley, who is very much a part of that renaissance.

"It is one of the few art forms that permits a woman to sit down and express herself creatively, without the world accusing her of wasting her time," amplifies Mrs. Gross.

And as for the nostalgia factor: "I have yet to meet a person who doesn't have fond memories of their mother, an aunt, grandmother, great aunt or a neighbor doing quilts."

Among family heirlooms, quilts remain one of the most treasured possessions.

MRS. GROSS, a native Californian, herself, remembers her grandmother doing the "piecing" for crazy pattern quilts in her Alameda home, then sending her work off to a church group in the Middle West, heartland of American quilting, for the actually stitching.

"The charge was $10 a quilt, and that was a lot of money in those days," she adds.

Those years, the 1930s, with money scarce and Americans forced to resort to handiwork and ingenuity to meet many of their needs, was also one of the periods in U.S. history when quiltmaking experienced an upsurge in interest and activity.

Quilting, however, goes much further back in history, and had a male origin.

THE CRUSADERS, returning from the wars, brought back with them to Europe the technique of quilting which the Arabs had used on silk to fashion garments under their armor for warmth and to prevent chaffing.

At one time quilted material had served as the armor itself. But as weapons grew harder and sharper and gained in velocity, it was replaced first by leather, then by metal, and became the undercover.

Back in Europe, in the 13th Century when the continent was shivering under the impact of the Great Freeze, the women began taking the quilting from the backs of their men and putting it onto the beds in the form of bed quilts.

FOR CENTURIES it was to provide man with warmth as he slept, enjoying periods of great popularity alternating with periods of relative neglect.

Quilting Revival Felt In Marin

A Comeback For A Craft

with them to America. With fabric at a premium, the practice was to use even the tiniest scraps and bits to form "crazy pattern" quilts, a colorful creation that has retained a popularity today.

Quilting enjoyed a high spot as an art form in the 1860s through the Victorian age, when quilters often worked with more exotic materials such as satins, silks, velvets and ribbons, and sometimes painted on the velvet.

OFTEN, A technique of tying, rather than the true quilting stitchery of joining the two layers of fabric, with filler in between, was used. But the general practice was to refer to the finished product as a quilt, regardless of the bonding method used.

The term "comforter" or "comfort," well earned, was commonly applied to the finished bed quilt.

Mrs. Gross' own interest in quilting began three years ago.

"I had always done a lot of sewing, needlework and designing, but I had never tried quilting," she says.

AT THE TIME she was the proprietor of a boutique, "and working very hard. I, and three other women with the same problem, agreed we needed some king of a day-off activity that would provide relaxation, and yet more satisfaction than just sitting around. We hit upon quilting as our solution."

Joining Mrs. Gross in the quilting sessions were Sally Garoutte, Lou Norton and Ellen Binckley.

And from those gatherings came the organization of the Mill Valley Quilting Authority, and an increasingly serious interest in quilting.

The Mill Valley Quilting Authority consists of a half dozen or so devotees of quilting, loosely organized, but extremely active in the craft.

FOR A FIRST project, the women collaborated on a bed quilt. Since then, each has gone her own way, fashioning the quilt creations she herself has chosen. That work, and quilting examples acquired elsewhere, are displayed and discussed at "show, tell, and ask" meetings.

The Mill Valley Quilting Authority collaborated on a large show of antique and contemporary quilts at the Mill Valley Recreation Center last October, preceded by six months of work, travel and study to arrange for the event. Quilts were brought from other areas for the display, "most of them family heirlooms — only one came from a museum."

ADMIRING SOME OF the fine quilts collected by or produced by Joyce Gross are the co-chairmen of the 1973 Stitchery Faire of the Planned Parenthood Auxiliary of Marin, Mrs. Charles Bowman of Ross, left, and Mrs. Paul Juliet of Lucas Valley. Mrs. Philip Lamoreaux of Mill Valley is the exhibits chairman for the faire in which quiltmaking will be a featured handicraft. The faire runs next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley.

And 2,300 people attended the show in its two days.

A SECOND quilt show will be held this coming October at the same place.

Two of the Mill Valley Quilting Authority members, Mrs. Gross and Marian Wilkie, have been teaching classes in quilting.

The authority has also brought a series of experts to Marin for lectures and demonstrations on quilting.

And a quarterly Quilters' Calendar issued from 27 Oakdale, Mill Valley, subscription price $1.50 a year, has had an astounding response, with 1,500 subscribers now on the lists.

"We have been overwhelmed," Mrs. Gross admits. "We didn't expect anything like this."

NEXT WEEKEND, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Mrs. Gross will have another opportunity to spread the message of quilting and its satisfactions.

She will participate in the third annual Stitchery Faire of the Planned Parenthood Auxiliary of Marin, to be held at the outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley, demonstrating quilting procedures and also exhibiting some of her work.

The Stitchery Faire, open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on each of the three days, will also feature demonstrations and displays of needlepoint, crewelwork, crocheting, embroidery, knitting, macrame, weaving and other crafts.

BOTH PROFESSIONALS and amateurs will participate, and a variety of handcrafted items, kits, books, etc., will be offered for sale.

One highlight of the faire will be the display of the historic Douglass Quilt, designed by San Francisco architect Ben Irvin as a graphic portrayal of the life of civil rights pioneer Frederick Douglass, and executed by the History Quilt Club of Marin City and Sausalito. The quilt will be on loan from the Howard Thurman Educational Trust in San Francisco.

Luncheon will be available in the garden, weather permitting.

MRS. GROSS says other Marin quilting enthusiasts will no doubt also be represented, "and given the current interest, I wouldn't be surprised if quilting turns out to be the feature of

THE NIMBLE FINGERS of Joyce Gross work at "piecing," the first step toward the realization of a bed quilt. Quiltmaking has enjoyed a revival of interest across America, and Marin County has been no exception. Taking a leading part in the surge of activity in the craft locally has been the Mill Valley Quilting Authority, of which Mrs. Gross is a member.

Quilting—A Creative, Congenial And Practical Craft

Mill Valley Women Have Taken The Lead In A Marin Revival Of The Skill

this year's event."

Since her own introduction to the craft and her participation in the first Mill Valley Quilting Authority cooperative quilting project, Mrs. Gross has been producing clothing, using the quilting technique, and also has made a number of baby quilts.

Rather than the large quilting frame, she works with the help of a smaller hoop, bringing out the big square frame only for lecture and demonstration purposes.

"I AM A traditionalist in that I work with cotton," she says. "It is the easiest of the materials to quilt, and the most durable. We don't know how long the synthetics will hold up as quilts. And some of them can be stiff and difficult to work with."

Nevertheless, she tells of a woman in Oregon who works regularly with a polyester-cotton blend "and turns out marvelous things."

Some quiltmakers can work an eight or 10 hour day at the craft without undue stress and even with enjoyment, she says. Calluses on the fingers can be one indication of this kind of a dedication to quilting, although other long-hour quilters avoid this by wearing fingerguards, thimbles or band-aids.

"ABOUT THREE hours at a time is my limit," Mrs. Gross admits.

She and husband Edmond, a commercial artist, have a large nine-room home at 1 Roosevelt Ave., Mill Valley, "and two of those rooms are devoted to quilting — literally filled with it."

Nevertheless, she says, her own keenest interest now lies, not so much in doing quilting, as in historical research on quilting and the collecting of quilting.

"I have done quite a bit of traveling in connection with that interest," she says.

TWICE SHE has made trips to Los Angeles to view collections. Most recently she returned from the Midwest where she saw quilt collections at Thayer Museum at the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kans., at the Chicago Art Institute, and at the Denver Art Museum.

Too often, she finds, because they are difficult to display, these great quilt collections are kept in the backrooms of museums and rarely seen by the public.

And everywhere she goes, she finds interest in quilting on the rise.

"I am in regular contact with the woman who does the Quilting Newsletter out of Colorado," Joyce Gross says, "and she tells me her subscription list has grown from 10,000 to 25,000, just since October." And the largest number of those subscribers reside here on the West Coast.

MEN FEEL the same nostalgic affection for quilts and quilting that women do, Mrs. Gross claims.

"When I displayed one of my quilts in a Mill Valley shop, the proprietor said more men than women came inside for a closer look at it, and to ask about it," she says.

And the very young have taken up quilting with enthusiasm, too.

She tells of her meeting in Kansas with two young girls who were doing traditional quilting. "They talked of how, by quilting twice a week, they had slowed the hectic pace of their lives considerably, and were getting more enjoyment from everything they did. And they were turning out some beautiful things."

"IT HAS REALLY been fun, and you see some marvelous things," Mrs. Gross says of her newfound interest. "It is such a congenial thing. Quilting can be practiced in a group. Or, at the same time, it can also be done in solitude. It can be either a social or a contemplative activity. Either way, it's good for the soul."

So if in some niche in your mind you hold fond memories of a warm comforter quilted by grandmother, or of some loved one now departed working calmly, lovingly by the fireside upon a bed quilt, then you, too, are a likely recruit for the growing "army" of quilting enthusiasts.

A good way to begin your enlistment, Mrs. Gross suggests, is to attend next weekend's Stitchery Faire in Mill Valley, and to see for yourself how it is done, and some of the creative things that can be produced by this old and honored craft that has served mankind so well.

"It is one of the few art forms that permits a woman to sit down and express herself creatively, without the world accusing her of wasting her time," says Joyce Gross of the fine old handicraft of quiltmaking.

The Australian Terrier: He's A Rugged Little Individualist

Marinites Are Among Those Who Have Learned Virtues Of Breed

(Editor's Note: Word of the death of Barbara Carle earlier this week reached the Independent-Journal after the story appearing on these pages had been written and set in type. At the suggestion of her friends, and because of her interest in Australian Terriers, the story has been run as originally written.)

By DON KEOWN

The Australian Terrier is not one of the better known dog breeds in this country.

But its popularity is on the ascendancy, and with good reason, claim those fortunate enough to own one or more of the rugged and intelligent little terriers from the continent Down Under.

Among those owners and proponents of the Australian Terrier are two Marin women, Margaret Coder and Barbara Carle, who share an apartment in Larkspur, work together for an insurance company in San Francisco, and own jointly two pedigreed Aussies.

Their Glori's Speedy Miss recently captured best of breed honors in the big Golden Gate Kennel Club show in San Francisco, winning out in a field of 23 Australian Terriers, a figure that in itself attests to the growing popularity of the breed.

THE MISSES Coder and Carle also own a second Australian Terrier show dog, Regency's Cy's Bound for Glory, better known as Peter or just plain Pete.

Speedy Miss' Golden Gate Kennel Club triumph was their first taste of victory in the show ring, and all the sweeter because Miss Carle, for the first time, worked their own dog in the ring. But, they are confident, it will not be their last such win.

Speedy Miss and Pete are just at the beginnings of promising show ring careers.

It all began with Margaret Coder's desire for a dog — not for show purposes, but as a pet.

"I HAD OWNED mixed breed dogs before," she says. "But this time I decided I would get myself a purebred."

Not then personally knowledgeable in the dog field, she began studying American Kennel Club literature and other books, looking for the breed that best suited her.

And she was struck by the Australian Terrier — its appearance, its minimum care with no special cropping or grooming requirements, its character. But there were other breeds that also appealed to her.

Her next step was to visit a Golden Gate Kennel Club show in San Francisco personally for a close look at the terriers and their rivals. First she looked at some of the mature Australian Terriers and, she admits "I really didn't like them very much."

"THEN," SHE continues, "they brought out the Australian Terrier puppies, and it was all over. I knew that was what I wanted."

Margaret (Peg) Gloe, Mill Valley breeder of Australian Terriers who has since moved to New Mexico, was approached and asked to be on the watch for a suitable puppy. It was she who directed Miss Coder to Speedy Missin February of 1971, co-owned by Pat Rice, former Marinite, and Victoria Ryan of San Francisco.

Speedy Miss comes of proud parentage, her sire being a show ring champion, Plesant Pastures Puffinstuff, and her dam Glori's Anastasia, who wasn't shown.

THE SIRE belonged to Jerre McCulley of Los Altos, the dam to the Rice-Ryan partnership.

At her new Larkspur home, Speedy Miss promptly became the co-property of Barbara Carle who joined Margaret Coder in sharing her affection and responsibility for the new arrival.

"After we got her home, we didn't see her for three days, she ran so fast and so much," laughs Miss Carle. "Hence the name."

A year and a couple of months later, Peg Gloe proposed a mate for Speedy Miss — Pete.

HE IS FROM a litter of Peg Gloe's Champion Armac Duke of Derby C.D., bred with Champion Regency's Lady Lorena, an eastern bitch co-owned by Ida Ellen and Alice Weinstock, sisters and proprietors of the Regency Kennels in Pennsylvania.

Pete was shipped from Pennsylvania at six months old in April, 1972, to join the Misses Coder and Carle and Speedy Miss in Larkspur.

Margaret Coder admits that she had taken no prior interest in dog shows. "I had always thought the conformation events rather silly," she says, "and what interest I had was in obedience training and trials."

STILL, SHE and Miss Carle had on hand two obviously fine examples of an attractive breed of dog. Friends began urging that Speedy Miss and Pete should be shown. And so the Misses Coder and Carle decided to do so.

"We agreed that it would be nice to have that title Champion if it could be earned," they say, "and when the puppies come along, it is always a help to have show dog parents."

"We finished Speedy Miss at the Contra Costa show," says Miss Coder. "But the San Francisco win was our first real victory, and a great thrill."

AUSTRALIAN Terriers are becoming more and more popular, the two Marin women say, and their owners are becoming better organized.

They belong to the Australian Terrier Club of Northern California, whose secretary is Jerre McCulley, 169 Marin Ave., Los Altos, 94022, and to the Australian Terrier Club of America, recognized by the American Kennel Club.

Mrs. McCulley is a fount of information about her favorite dog breed.

"The Australian Terrier was originally known as the Broken-Haired Terrier," she says, "and the breed originated in Australia.

"DESPITE THE Australian origin, the Aussie has much of the early British terriers in his background: the Skye (length of back, the neck ruff and the front coat apron that afforded hunting protection); the Dandie Dinmont, the soft-haired top-knot (that protects the eyes when burrowing); the Cairn (erect ears); the Yorkshire, coloration in blues and tans); and the old Scotch Terrier, weather-proof coat, and not to be confused with today's Scottish Terrier."

"Similarity between the small working terrier breeds is the result of mutual general ancestry, as well as the introduction of distinct breeds during the process of establishing each variety," Mrs. McCulley explains.

Still, for all his British roots, the Australian Terrier is an Aussie, and thus qualifies as one of but two American Kennel Club recognized terrier breeds who do not come from the British Isles.

THE OTHER is the Miniature Schnauzer, from Germany.

The Australian Terrier developed Down Under to share the rugged life of the immigrant, to guard his home and the gold mines, and to help control varmints.

He had to be rugged enough to withstand hot summers and cold, wet winters. He had to be companionable, affectionate and loyal enough to help heal the loneliness of people who were often living in remote points in solitude. He had to be good-looking enough for display in the household and in public.

Aussies From Marin—

BARBARA CARLE remembers reading an article about the Australian Terrier's special role in the guarding of the gold mines.

"While he wasn't large or vicious enough to actually serve as the guard dog, what he did do wonderfully well was to serve as an alarm for the real guard dogs," she relates. "He has wonderfully acute hearing, so that he could immediately detect the approach of an intruder. His job, then, was to wake up and alert the real guard dogs."

The first Australian Terrier Club was formed in Australia in 1887, narrates Jerre McCulley, and shortly thereafter the Aussies were exported to Great Britain. They were granted a separate registry by the Kennel Club of England in 1933.

COMPLETELY RELAXED and catching a few winks in her favorite napping spot is Glori's Speedy Miss, the Australian Terrier for which Margaret Coder and Barbara Carle have championship aspirations. They describe the Aussies as "small, rugged and smart," each with its own individualistic personality.

THE BREED was introduced to America some 35 years ago. In 1957 it made its debut at the big Westminster show in the miscellaneous class. And in July, 1960, the Australian Terrier was officially recognized by the American Kennel Club, becoming the 114th breed to be entered in the AKC Stud Book, and the first addition to the Terrier Group in 24 years.

"The Aussie is not a glamorous dog," admits Mrs. McCulley. "His popularity, however, continues to grow, for he is small, rugged and smart.

"He is adaptable to all conditions and climates, and is as happy in a city apartment as on a country estate. Each dog possesses an individual, interesting personality. He is built for speed and maneuverability, and can be a fine hunter as well as a responsive and protective companion.

"THE AUSSIE is loyal and affectionate, and is good for children of all ages."

Misses Coder and Carle also speak of the Aussie's "self-assured manner" that carries over into his carriage as well as his attitude.

They say the affectionate Aussie will be close to a whole family, "although he may be especially close to one member." And "polite to outsiders, with a long memory for friends. He likes to be with people and with other dogs."

"THE AUSTRALIAN Terrier should be a house dog to realize its full personality potential," they believe. "If so, they will seldom wander. The females like to sit on your lap, the males usually sit nearby, when quiet."

And finally, "they make good watchdogs with their extremely keen hearing, yet they are not yappy or snappish."

The Larkspur women offer this physical description of the breed:

Size — About 10 inches at shoulder height, and slightly longer than they are tall; color — blue-black or silver-black, with tan markings, or sandy, or a clear red coat — outer coating is harsh and straight, about two and a half inches in length, while under coat is soft and short, with a gradual shedding; other characteristics — black nose, small and dark eyes with a keen expression, medium bone structure, and small, cat-like feet.

MISSES CODER and Carle have put their two terriers through obedience training and enter them in obedience trials as well as conformation shows.

"Terriers are not noted for their performances in obedience competition," Margaret Coder says, and smiles: "Perhaps they are too much the individualists."

"Still, while our dogs haven't done anything as yet in obedience trials, we feel that they have benefited from the training and experience, both at home and in the show ring," she adds.

AHEAD FOR Speedy Miss and Pete, and the Misses Coder and Carle, lies a busy season for dog shows, with the hope for additional successes and trophies to go along side the big one captured in the San Francisco show.

Margaret Coder, you can be sure, no longer looks upon dog shows as silly. She is very much in the grip of the enthusiasm that takes hold of every owner, once he or she sees her pedigreed pet performing in the show ring against the proudest canines of the area.

And as for Australian Terriers, Margaret Coder and Barbara Carle are in complete agreement that "we are going to stick with them. It has been said that Australian Terriers are a disease — once you have been exposed to them, you have the fever, and you are unlikely to forsake them for any other kind of dog."

SO FAR THE fever for Australian Terriers is not too prevalent in Marin County, the women admit.

"We know of only about half a dozen in the county," they say. "Peg Gloe must have taken half of Marin's Australian Terrier population with her when she moved to New Mexico. With her went seven of the Aussies."

But, the two women are convinced, the time is near when more and more Marinites will learn the special virtues and merits of the Australian Terrier.

The Sandspit Was Named Limantour

By JOHN D. YATES

In February and March of each year Drakes Bay sparkles, the sky is clear, the winds are gentle, and the sands are washed by the high spring tides: a visit to the beaches at this time will guarantee to clear the eye and the lungs and uplift the most dejected spirit.

In the summer and the fall the areas is often shrouded in a cold and very damp fog; but even then it can be a joyous escape place, and a happy retreat from the searing heat of other parts of the county and any place east of that. The beach in the fog does not sparkle but it is like another fascinating world, mysterious and clammy.

And all of this has not changed a bit since our swashbuckling friend from Devon, Sir Francis Drake, beached his Golden Hinde here in 1579, and the unfortunate San Augustin ws wrecked here in 1595.

THE WEATHER has not changed — and amazingly neither has the view; and all of this within an easy commute distance of our famous metropolis. The sweep of the Bay is the same view that Drake had (let's hope for his sake that the fog did lift), the bordering cliffs, the hills and everything in sight.

There is one change but it is a natural phenomenon and not man-made. Limantour Spit, that elegant finger of sand separating an arm of Drake's Estero from the ocean, has been changed in configuration and length by the actions of the winds and tides, and the damming of some of the branches of the Estero, over the last 150 years.

And two years ago the first half mile of the Spit was lined with weekend houses, bungalows or what-have-you, plus an ugly line of utility wires. But the U.S. Department of the Interior has now completed the purchase of the area and the owners of the bungalows have been paid a price by the federal government, and the enlightened staff of the Point Reyes National Seashore have removed all the structures.

THUS THE area has been allowed to revert back to nature; even the little frontage road (so holey and ruinous to car springs in the old days) is having its surface scraped up, and it too is "reverting."

VISITORS TO the Limantour Estero, standing on the sand dunes of the spit, are treated to the special attraction of a distant deer swimming back to the mainland. The sandspit has had a colorful history, and figuring prominently in it was Jose Yves Limantour, the colorful Frenchman who gave it its name.

A piece of a suburban county coastline reverting to nature in the era of over-build, development and concrete — good heavens! How is this possible?

It is possible because Uncle Sam has seen the light, and has been persuaded that our minds and bodies do not require hot-dog stands and other garish concessions. (And there are no federal-type comfort stations; however it is only a thin budget that postpones that construction.)

On Oct. 23, 1841, the bark Ayacucho set sail from Monterey for the Bay of San Francisco. The vessel flew the tricolor of Mexico and her cargo was typical of a trading vessel of the day — a mixture of the necessities and luxuries of life from Europe to be traded for the hides and tallow of the Californios.

THE "SUPERCARGO" (the officer in charge of the cargo and the commerical concerns of a merchant vessel) on board was a 28-year-old Frenchman, Jose Yves Limantour. The voyage would take two days, and by the 26th the captain realized he had over-shot the entrance to the Bay. He therefore attempted to turn south, but in putting the vessel about, he came too close to Point Reyes and ran directly onto the sand spit.

Within a day or two it became evident that the Ayacucho was very firmly aground and was a total loss.

Limantour had most of the cargo landed and then set off for San Francisco by land. He and his companions secured horses along the way, and were directed to the Saucelito adobe of Capt. Gullermo Antonio Richardson, the Englishman and Mexican citizen and captain of the Port of San Francisco.

Limantour did much more than give his name to a sandspit on which his vessel lay with a broken back. But we will return to this enterprising, out-

Limantour Spit—Its Colorful History, And The Charm It Holds For Visitors Today

THIS AERIAL VIEW shows Limantour Spit, at bottom of the picture, as it exists today, jutting out to separate an arm of Drake's Estero from the Pacific Ocean. In old maps, the spit barely reached the first big inlet of the estero.

IN 1973 LIMANTOUR Spit has a lot of things going for it under the watchful eye of its federal caretaker.

Three years ago a roadway was completed, but it was only linked up and put into operation last June. It leads off the road about a half-mile from the Bear Valley entrance and the Point Reyes National Seashore headquarters; through meadowlands for a beginning, and then up Inverness Ridge, sweeping through lofty pines and steep grassy cuts in the hillside.

You catch glimpses of the flatlands and a birds-eye view of Point Reyes Station as you climb, and there are moments when it seems you are on a major Sierra highway — the curves, the grade and the trees seem to match those of a grander scale. The road fades at the top of the crest into the county lane where it used to link up with Balboa Road which led up from the Inverness Road.

YOU SOON take a steep dive down the other side of the ridge along a patched but otherwise substantial surface, into a valley and up an equally steep grade the other side. You are now passing through typical coast type rolling scrub country from which you can see the curve and the sparkle of the Bay; and if you are lucky, and you kee your eyes peeled, you might be able to see some of Dr. Millard Ottinger's famous fallow deer (there are about 350 head). They were introduced into the area from San Francisco Zoo in 1947; the very white ones are not albinos but European fallow deer and they come in four colors — white, faded white, mottled (the commonest markings of the fallow deer), and light brown. In the low scrub they stand out for miles and silhouette dramatically on hill crests.

There are also some 250 head of Axis deer from India and Ceylon, and they thrive just like the fallow deer.

All exotics (or all animal and vegetable life not native to the area) do very well here — even better than the natives. Take the case, in the vegetable world, of the European Dune Grass which acts as an efficient and colorful groundcover on the sand banks on the spit and holds them together so that they can earn the name — Dunes.

AT THE END of the narrow, undulating road or lane, near the east end of the spit, there are two spacious parking lots where on less-crowded days cottontail and jackrabbits abound; and from where you left the car a pathway leads over the dunes to the beach. The Spit is then to your right for the next three miles; and twice as long as it was in the 1850s.

On the land side is Limantour Estero, an arm of Drake's Estero, where egrets, herons, willetts, ducks and many other species pick strange things out of the mudflats.

At the end of the spit on the Estero side, beneath the shelter of the last block of dunes, is a haven for harbor seals who bask and snooze luxuriously under the watchful eye of the sentinels. They do not seem to care whether the sky is clear or overcast, but when they are not taking it easy you can see their heads bobbing in the Estero or in the entrance between the Spit and Drake's Beach.

There are sharks there too; and once in a while a swimming deer that crosses the Estero to graze in the dune grass on the Spit (there was a swimmer on our last visit.)

ON THEOCEAN side there is always something going on and something to watch besides the frantic comings and goings of the sandpipers and little petrels.

One day we saw a beached porpoise — he seemed lively enough but would soon dehydrate seriously in the bright sun unless he was returned quickly to the water. Three strong boys with difficulty pulled him into the waves, but he came right back and beached himself again, and wagged his tail and looked up with beady eyes. After the third try we finally launched him and away he went, gamboling in the waves in the manner of all dolphins and porpoises.

Chief Ranger Ray Murphy told us of a big whale which was beached only last month; this time it took 15 people to persuade him to resume his life in the ocean — they had to roll him down the beach.

After the hike up and down the Spit (nearly six miles), with the possibility or probability of seeing either whales, porpoises or seals, there are always the dunes to explore — the grassy dunes to lie down in, to look at the sky in and listen to the wind in, and for some people to take off their clothes in. (The latter is a very popular pastime, says Chief Ranger Murphy.

AND THEN THERE is surf fishing, good at high tide for perch, rock bass and other weird and wonderful California fish.

This year, next year, and the year after that, the Spit is the best easy-spot to get away from it all; and in the last year 120,000 other people thought so, too.

As Monsieur Limantour gave his name to this finger of sand, he deserves to have his story completed, however briefly.

We left him at Sausalito with William Richardson who was briefed very quickly about the young Frenchman's predicament. As it happened Richardson's friend, Captain Paty, was in port with his substantial vessel Don Quixote and arrangements were soon made to pick up the beached cargo of the Ayacucho over at Drake's Bay. Most of the cargo could be saved, and the Don Quixote transported half to Yerba Buena (San Francisco) and half to the warehouse of Richardson at Sausalito. In about two months the cargo was disposed of quite profitably.

Limantour decided to stay in California, at least for a while, and look around for trading opportunities.

AT ABOUT THIS time, because of the fear of a large influx of foreigners into Mexico's northern province, Alvarado, the first native-born Californian governor, was replaced by Gen. Manuel Micheltorena who combined the duties of commanding general and governor. The Mexican treasury was as usual in dire straits and Micheltorena was hard pressed to clothe and arm his troops, let alone pay them; and then he met up with Limantour who had been turning a few dollars to his advantage in ome more trading ventures. Limantour agreed to loan Micheltorena between $10,000 and $12,000, and in repayment took a draft on the Mexican Customs House in Mazatlan.

When the draft was due to be honored, Limatour found out that monies collected by customs at Mazatlan were paid into the account of a merchant firm to be dispersed to Micheltorena, and to buy supplies on which that firm would make a profit. Lmantour decided to get into the supply business to the governor, and to cut a long story short, was soon the Californian governor's creditor to the tune of $56,000.

In view of the favors done to the governor (or so Limantour claimed in one of the most famous land claim cases of all times), Micheltorena granted to Limantour 16,000 acres in San Francisco, Alcatraz Island, Point Tiburon, Yerba Buena Island and the Farallones.

WHEN HE CAME to prove his title before the U.S. Land Commission in 1853, the land alone in San Francisco was worth $13,000,000. The documents supporting the claim appeared to be in order and the commission confirmed the claim; and Limantour went around to people holding land in the area involved and offered them quitclaim deeds for 10 per cent of the assessed value. In this way he cleared very quickly about $250,000.

But then the claim was appealed, and the upshot was that the claim was proved to fraudulent in the U.S. District Court (and here photography came into play for the first time in a court of law). The official seal on the Micheltorena documents were found "to be spurious — the paper is different, the writing is different . . ."; and this was proved by photography.

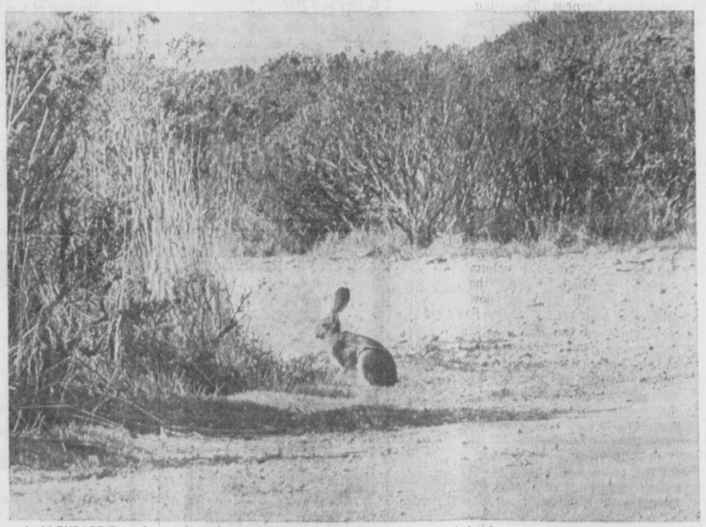
Judge Hoffma gave his opinion on the case in November, 1858, — 56 pages long. But Limantour was long gone, never to reappear in California again.

THE FAMOUS case fills volumes, but Kenneth M. Johnson, the attorney and prolific and entertaining writer on Californiana, analyzed the case brilliantly in 1961, in his book "Jose Yves Limantour v. The United States," and it is fascinating reading even for the layman.

Such was the man for whom the Spit was named: some say the case is still unproven and that the Frenchman has been unfairly maligned. At any event he was a true opportunist, energetic and enterprising — and he nearly got away with it.

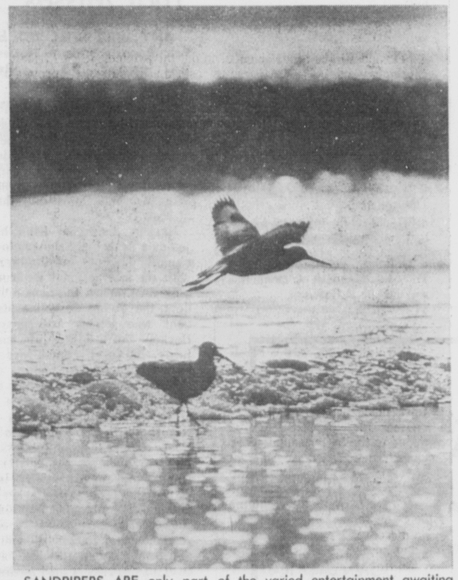
So think of him next time you visit that part of Drake's Bay.

CHIEF RANGER Ray Murphy stands near the tip of Limantour Spit and looks back along its sandy length. Last year on estimated 120,000 visitors came to the Spit to enjoy the dunes, the water, the wildlife, the brisk sea air and the sense of isolation from urban cares and tumult.

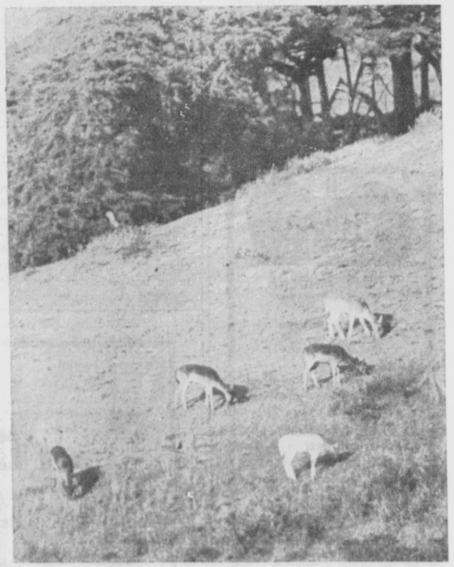


A JACKRABBIT in the parking lot at Limantour Spit serves as a symbol for the newly arriving visitor of the rich biological life that he is going to encounter on and around the formation that bears the name of Jose Yves Limantour.

(Independent-Journal photos by Alfred M. Arn)



SANDPIPERS ARE only part of the varied entertainment awaiting visitors to Limantour Spit. On the land side, egrets, herons, ducks and willetts patrol the mudflats.



THE SIGHT OF the fallow deer, introduced by Dr. Millard Ottinger from the San Francisco Zoo in 1947, from the road to Limantour Beach is a special thrill for the motorist.

From Failure Came Greatness

GANDHI THE MAN: Compiled from the Perspective of Eknath Easwaran of the Blue Mountain Center of Medication, by Jo Anne Black, Nick Harvey and Laurel Robertson; Glide Publications, 157 pages; $7.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

"Gandhi the Man" is a difficult book to catalog.

Neither biography nor historical analysis, it comes closest to being a religious tract with the avowed purpose of inspiring its readers to transform their lives as Gandhi transformed his.

Gandhi's greatness grew out of failure. A British-trained lawyer, he was unable to develop a successful practice in India. Hoping to improve his fortunes, he took a job as a company laywer in South Africa. There, is a hostile environment, working on a case that required accounting skills he did not have, he conquered the case and his deficiencies. There he learnt the true practice of law. "I had learnt," he said, "to find out the better side of human nature and to enter men's hearts. I realized that the true function of a lawyer was to unite parties riven asunder."

After this discovery, he tried to combine service to others with a successful legal career. He found the double burden unsatisfying and decided to simplify his life in accordance with the strictures of the great Indian holy book, the Bhagavad Gita.

By reducing his needs to the simplest essentials of food, shelter, and clothing, Gandhi prepared himself for the task of freeing his country from British domination.

With a quiet determination, he built a politico-religious resistance movement based on non-violence and stubborn perserverance. This movement survived every pressure the world's greatest empire chose to bring against it and resulted in the withdrawal of Britain from India.

"Gandhi the Man" is written from the "spiritual perspective" of Eknath Easwaran, religious teacher, founder and director of the Blue Mountain Center of Meditation in Berkeley. The test is lucid and draws heavily on Gandhi's own words. The photos are remarkable and include many closeups of Gandhi at different stages of his life.

For students of Gandhi, "Gandhi the Man" is not enough. For readers seeking to enrich and control their own lives through meditation, "Gandhi the Man" provides an oversimplified case study.

From Creator Of Eddie Coyle: The Digger

THE DIGGER'S GAME by George V. Higgins; Knopf, 214 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Walt Weyman.

The Digger, a large-size shanty Irishman of the Boston area, is the proprietor of a workingman's bar. He also possesses a sexy wife, four children, and an educated brother who is rising rapidly through the priestly ranks of the archdiocese.

Born with larceny in his heart, Digger has served one stretch in the pen. His brother working through the Catholic chain of command, and with the assistance of some well-placed money has obtained a pardon for Digger. The pardon is necessary for Digger to get his name on the bar license.

A number of years later Digger approaches his brother in the rectory of his parish church with a plea for money. Digger has been to Las Vegas and the cleaners. His name is on a marker for $18,000. The marker is in the hands of a high interest rate money lender called the Greek, who wants either the entire sum within a week or weekly usurious interest.

The Digger's brother can give him only the $3,000 he had been saving for a new car.

Digger, desperate for the other $15,000, ties in as a major partner on a fur heist.

This is to involve him in new problems with a potential squealer, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Mafia.

The dustjacket says the author's first book, "The Friends of Eddie Coyle," make him the new boss of "bullet lettres." It may well be. He does a great job on dialogue, but, if he would eliminate the four-letter words the book would be reduced to three-quarters its present size. I know the type of characters involved use those words, but in sentence after sentence in a book? I can recall with relish the bullet-laden novels of Dashiell Hammett, Earle Stanley Gardner and Mickey Spillane in which there was profanity, yes, but not an endless procession of those four-letter words in all their tenses.

Reading time, a bit under three hours. Good entertainment.

Spy Thriller That Misses

ANY WAR WILL DO by Eric Pace; Random House, 241 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

So much spy thriller fiction is being writte these days on a generally high level that a new novel must be superior in order to deserve attention. Average or routine simply won't do, and "Any War Will Do" is only that at best.

Harker, dismissed from his job as a news magazine photographer, accepts employment with an international gun-running firm. When the firm murders the young Sorbonne student who is his sweetheart, Harker shifts allegiance and joins the intelligence forces seeking to learn the identity of the gun-running leader and to bring him to a kind of justice.

There's a variety of scenes — the U.S., Paris, the Middle East, Algiers, Lisbon, Nigeria. But the novel has a superficial sheen, and never really involves the reader in Harker's heroics or problems. With his background, Eric Pace, a 35-year-old foreign correspondent of wide experience and an Overseas Press Club award-winner, should have done much better with this, his second novel.

Unlocking Secrets Of Tut's Land

X-RAYING THE PHAROAHS by James E. Harris and Kent R. Weeks; Charles Scribner's Sons, 193 pages, $10. Reviewed by Richard B. Lyttle.

Here you will find fascinating reading on what the authors bill as the most important breakthrough in Egyptology since the discovery of Tutankhaman's tomb.

While the riches of King Tut's previously unmolested tomb caused a sensation in the press, it seems that X-ray pictures of the mummies is more on a par in iportance and impact with translation of the hieroglyphs on the Roesetta Stone.

The pictures collected during the five-year project tell of diseases and pains, from polio to bad teeth, suffered by the ancient rulers of the Nile. They tell the age of the pharoahs when they died and even reveal family similarities.

The X-rays, in fact, will force a restudy of long established chronology by Egyptologists.

The pictures also revealed hidden artifacts and gave a better understanding of the various methods of preparing mummies.

James E. Harris, a dental researcher at the University of Michigan, and Kent R. Weeks, an Egyptologist associated with the American University in Cairo, give enough background for the lay reader to understand the significance and to share the excitement of the X-ray project, and they take pains to avoid technical confusion.

While the text is rather brief for the price, the book is profusely illustrated with photos, including four pages of color. All amateur archaeologists will be entranced, and their numbers have grown greatly in the past few decades.

The Whole Earth Catalogue Gets A Younger Cousin

"He was not, as later many were to believe, a maverick genius. His roots lay deep in a rich, unspoiled folk culture. He had learned at first hand from the masters of his art, had listened to every important soloist in jazz, either on record, or by catching them as the name bands passed through Kansas City. He was determined, dedicated, tireless, and ambitious. Jazz had become a way of life, jealous of his entire time, energy, and being." Ross Russell of the young Charlie Parker in "Bird Lives!"

Sad Saga Of Charlie Parker— Jazz Artist And Drug Addict

By DON KEOWN

BIRD LIVES! by Ross Russell; Charterhouse, 404 pages, $8.95.

Charlie (Yardbird) Parker flared brilliantly across the American jazz scene in the second quarter of the 20th Century. But like a meteor, he burnt himself out, leaving physically only a cold cinder to be buried in the soil of his native Kansas City.

"The Bird," as he was known to admirers of his music, was perhaps the most superb reed instrumentalist in the annals of jazz. He was also a drug addict and an alcoholic.

His talent with the saxophone brought him fame. His addiction brought him misery and disgrace, and eventually death.

His gift with the instrument came from inborn talent, plus an almost desperate dedication to his music. His weaknesses for drink and dope came partially from personal flaws, and partially from a social system that thrust him into the limelight without background or preparation for such a role, and then alternately applauded his artistry and disdained his black skin.

In a new biography, "Bird Lives!," Ross Russell succeeds spelndidly in capturing both aspects of Charlie Parker, the artist and the addict. It is a difficult undertaking, and Russell recognizes the irony of an attempt by an establishment-educated, middle-class white man to tell the story of a man so much his opposite. But, he adds, the job fell to him by default, for no black scholar came forward to do the work, and the ranks of those who knew Charlie Parker and who could testify concerning him and his music were growing thinner year by year.

Anyway, Ross Russell is better qualified as Bird's biographer than might seem likely at first thought.

He knew Parker personally, and in fact was a partner in the small firm that made the pioneering records of Bird's music. Parker quarreled with him, but this did not diminish Russell's appreciation of his music. And Russell's enthusiasm for Afro-American music has developed into an obsession, making him one of the country's most knowledgeable men on jazz — a writer, teacher, lecturer and impresario.

His evaluation of Parker's saxophone work then is an expert one, with the added advantage of personal knowledge of the musician: "Here he was... articulating imperious messages over the saxophone. Listening required real concentration. Nothing glib came out of the horn. Every solo was played with high seriousness. The saxophone cried of love, rage, and black power.

"The elements heard in black music since the first rural bluesman had drifted to the urban ghettos had been contained and contemporized. There was nothing of Louis Armstrong's archaic ministrelry. Nor of Lester Young's bittersweet romanticism. This was the real grit that Bird put down.

"An evening with Charlie Parker was not an entertainment. Listening to Charlie was a demanding, moving, often chilling experience — like an evening with Lenny Bruce."

Bird had succeeded Lester Young as the saxophone king, even as the latter had succeeded Coleman Hawkins, and as Parker would be followed by John Coltrane, Sonny Rollins and others. With Dizzy Gillespie, once his close friend, later his arch-rival, he was the co-architect of the new direction for jazz, from swing to bebop.

"Jazz style from 1920 to World War II seemed to flow from Armstrong. Charlie Parker changed the course of that river and set up a new complex of forces. Almost singlehandedly he emancipated time and sound for those to follow." (Parker-partisan Russell feels Gillespie has been overcredited by others for his part in music's new wave, and tends to overcompensate in the other direction.)

"Charlie's accomplishments were many," Russell writes. "He had revealed new dimensions in saxophone playing, enabling the horn to complete its evolution from a fatterner of orchestral textures to the most expressive of instruments. Charlie updated the timeless blues song, and contributed some of its finest performances. He had metamorphosed the Tin Pan Alley ballad into a tightly-knit, often recondite composition based on the idea of the Kansas City riff, a repeated melodic figure underlined by a strong rhythmic pattern.

"With perfect taste and intuition he had abstracted the body of music before his time, purging it of anachronisms and irrelevancies, and endowed it with a compelling vocabulary."

How could this man, so talented and so utterly serious about his music, waste much of his life and end it prematurely with heroin and alcohol?

"Just why alcoholism and narcotic addiction have been the classic occupational hazards of the jazz business, and cirrhosis of the liver its most common occupational disease, has always intrigued the outsider," notes Russell. "From 1900 to 1954... the conditions under which jazz was played varied little. Barrelhouses, honky-tonks, joints, lounges — these were mere passing names for cabarets, the locale where jazzmen worked. They were operated by gangsters who offered music or flesh to bring in the business, and profited from the sale of liquor. If one adds to such cheap, overstimulating places of employment the other significant factors — long hours, the reversed hours of work and sleep, the insecurity of the musician's trade, and the pressure of competition, not to mention the frustration of essaying the role of creative artist in such an environment — the appetite for toxicants becomes understandable... Booze and dope were the jazzmen's escape hatches."

The black musician, of course, worked and played under the added ordeal of race prejudice, frustrated by a double standard that made him an admired artist on the bandstand, an inferior being when the music ceased.

But Ross Russell's biography makes it plain that Charlie Parker's own personal attributes contributed to his addictions and frequent difficulties. He was a man of excesses, overindulging not only in drink and drugs, but in food and in women and in everything he did, not excluding his horn-playing. Long gigs in clubs were customarily followed by longer jam sessions in other clubs when a more disciplined, more sensible man would have been in bed or otherwise relaxing.

"Bird Lives!" is superior biography, exhaustively researched, carefully compiled, interestingly written, its value enhanced by the keen perception of the author, his determined objectivity, and his many contacts with the men who knew and worked with Charlie Parker. It follows the subject from boyhood in Kansas City, lugging a beaten up old sax given him by his mother from club to club, all of which he was too young to enter — legally —, and hearing the greats of the 1930s jamming there, through his own career up a hard and trying road for which he was artistically but not personally prepared, to his tragically early decline in stature and to death. And to something of a cult status, after death.

It is a story alive with the great names of the jazz world, and with tidbits about them. But mostly it is the story of one man who played the saxophone like no one ever played it before him, and lived — or destroyed — life in a manner few have ever lived it. With his playing, he left his mark upon American music — a heritage. For his living style, he paid the fullest price and cut short the music, almost in mid-tune. Fortunately, he had played more than enough to leave his imprint.

Indeed, it is true that "Bird lives!," not in the sick cultist sense intended by those who scratch that message on walls out of an admiration or envy for what they mistakenly regard as an exciting existential existence. Charlie Parker's life was one of pain and degradation that does not commend itself to imitation. But his music — that endures. Not because Charlie Parker was a ghetto-scarred addict, but despite it.

DEATH IN THE SNOW by Richard Martin Stern; Scribner's, 181 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The Johnny Ortiz mystery novels by Richard Martin Stern have to be one of the most consistently pleasing series in the genre today. The stories are always entertaining, always soundly plotted and written, and always respectful of the reader and his tastes.

This time a body found under melting mountain snows sets Santo Cristo's part Apache police lieutenant off on the trail of a killer. There are three other deaths — these from poisoned heroin. And a proposed mammoth real estate development further threatens the peace of the New Mexico community.

The familiar characters of past Ortiz yarns are on hand again including Johnny's girl friend, black anthropoogist Cassie Enright, rancher Ben Hart, Congressman Mark Hawley and Police Sgt. Tony Lopez — decent, interesting people. Some of the newcomers aren't so decent. But they have a tiger by the tail when they attempt to bring the organized crime of the East into Johnny Ortiz' town. Great stuff!

REFLECTING the very high interest in cycling, the past couple of years have seen a rash of bicycle books, the most recent being the softcover "Back to the Bike" by ecologist Clifford Humphrey, published by San Francisco's 101 Productions.

The $2.95 manual covers bicycle selection, bike maintenance and learning to ride, plus a section on the bike's role in transportation.

REMEMBRANCE

The past fills hollows of emptiness
Honing the mind's edge
Like a knife on wet flint,
Reaching to remember
Loved ones who passed
Those moments so special,
Like precious gems
Remembrance is dulled
But the past will shine,
When the memory is polished.

THE VISITOR TO Southern California's fabled Death Valley is greeted by unblemished sand dunes, tortured rock formations, the ever-present mesquite — and a sense of space and stillness that can be found in few other places in America today. And right now the harsh, forbidding terrain is softened by the spring show of wildflowers — and by the cooler temperatures that precede summer's hot breath.

In The Basement Of Our Hemisphere

By DAVID DIETZ

DEATH VALLEY — For all its High Sierra ruggedness, its bountiful coastline and its stately redwoods, California was never like this. Never, baby!

And to hear the incredulous guffaws from co-workers upon learning we had planned a journey to the basement of the Western Hemisphere, you'd have thought we were going to Des Moines in the winter of something.

"That place! What on earth do you want to go to that place for?" was the comment of one doubter.

THAT'S JUST it. The trip, made earlier this month, was spurred on with the understanding that Death Valley is a "that place" — hot, desolate, gnarled, freaky, ghostly and, alas, empty. Or so we thought.

While Northern Californians seem to look upon the region as sort of a Los Angeles without grass or shade, Southern Californians long have since found and enjoyed places such as Badwater, Zabriskie Point, Dante's View, Scotty's Castle and Mosaic Canyon.

And so has the rest of America. They come in big, six-wheeled rigs bearing the license plates of Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Texas, New York and Florida to squat in graveled parking lots which pass as campgrounds.

And so we came with our $50 L. L. Bean tent for four days of just poking around to look at the sights.

THERE'S MUCH to see, do and experience. Above all, the most incredible experience, if you can shut from your mind for a moment the presence of your camping neighbors, is the feeling of nothingness; it's like stoking up your Coleman lantern in the middle of the Sea of Tranquility.

Often the only sound is the muffled signal of a gathering wind that finally whistles through the mesquite trees hard by the campsite. But the evidence, if not the sight, of man is clearly here.

No matter that the gnarled mesquites, which send their roots up to 125 feet into the ground in search of water, are the lone tree cover for hundreds of yards around. Ax-bearing plunderers have thoughtlessly hacked at the branches to feed campfires, giving some mesquites the appearance of amputated denizens of the desert.

MAN HAS BEEN here with brick and mortar, too.

With the appearance of a misplaced sanitarium, the Furnace Creek Inn, offering daily rates as high at $60 with three meals (no thanks), rises near the center of the national monument. And Scotty's Castle, once the pride of a millionarie, and home of his pal named Walter Scott, looms at the head of a canyon near the park's northern border, a mini-San Simeon heavy with Moorish opulence.

The lay of the land is best.

We were fascinated by the sand dunes (it's almost a shame to see footprints on the whipped cream surface), enchanted by Mosaic Canyon, where fused rock gives the appearance of huge slabe of butterscotch and vanilla ice cream, and exhilarated by a walk beyond Natural Bridge to a spot where a natural amphitheater has been carved from rock by the elements.

SPRING, AND especially March, is a good time to visit. Summer's searing breath has not yet exhaled on the valley, and nature is doing its thing. Along the main roads, fragile wildflowers, giving it all they've got on only two inches of rain a year, paint a carpet of yellow, purple and white. They'll be there through April.

Some say it's a record year in the valley for wildflowers, but you could fool me. I don't even know the names of the little things.

Count on a lot of driving and hiking. The park is 3,000 square miles, and Scotty's Castle, for instance, is 86 miles round trip from Furnace Creek, the park's hub.

Take your wallet. Premium gas is 52 cents a gallon at Furnace Creek.

Madrid Gets Wax Museum

Madrid's newest tourist attraction is a wax museum which rivals the famed Madame Toussaud's in London in richness and imagination and outdoes it with special light, sound and motion effects.

The "Museo de Cera Colon," located on two floors of a new building in Colon Columbus Square, displays more than 300 contemporary and historical figures. The array is notable for both those who were included and those who were left out.

Not included were Generalissimo Francisco Franco and other contemporary Spanish political figures.

Also left out were all famous Communists except for Josef Stalin, who stands with Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini in a group depicting victors and vanquished of World War II. The idea of showing Fidel Castro was dropped in view of the 100,000-strong colony of Cuban exiles living in Madrid, a museum spokesman said.

The three and a half million dollar museum is the work of filmmakers who were hit by the current slump in the Spanish movie industry.

On Speaking British

By JOY STILLEY

Americans who visit foreign countries often hire an English-speaking guide. When they visit England they might do well to hire an American-speaking guide.

Failing that, they could resort to a new book by Norman W. Schur, "British Self-Taught: With Comments in American." It's a dictionary that bridges the communication gap between those who speak American and those who speak British.

An American in England can be bewildered to learn that you can go by motor coach, by tram or by underground to a shop, where you take a lift to an upper storey and buy a reel of cotton, some nappies and a pram. Unless you have enough notes in your notecase to give the shop assistant, you'll have to use hire-purchase.

WITH THE HELP of Schur's glossary it's easy enough to figure out that what you can do is go by bus, by streetcar or by subway to a store, where you take an elevator to an upper floor and buy a spool of thread, some diapers and a baby carriage. Unless you have enough bills in your billfold to give the salesman, you'll have to use the installment plan.

Schur is a lawyer in New York — a solicitor in England, where he spends five months a year and has a special license to practice. He began collecting Briticisms after a conversation with his British-oriented son during which he realized they were speaking two different languages.

"I have always been interested in words, syntax, usage," says Schur, who in addition to American and British speaks Italian, "creditable" French, "decent" German, "a bit of" Spanish and "not so bad" Yiddish. "I began making a list of words I came across in books, letters and conversation. I expanded it with comments and somehow or other it became a book."

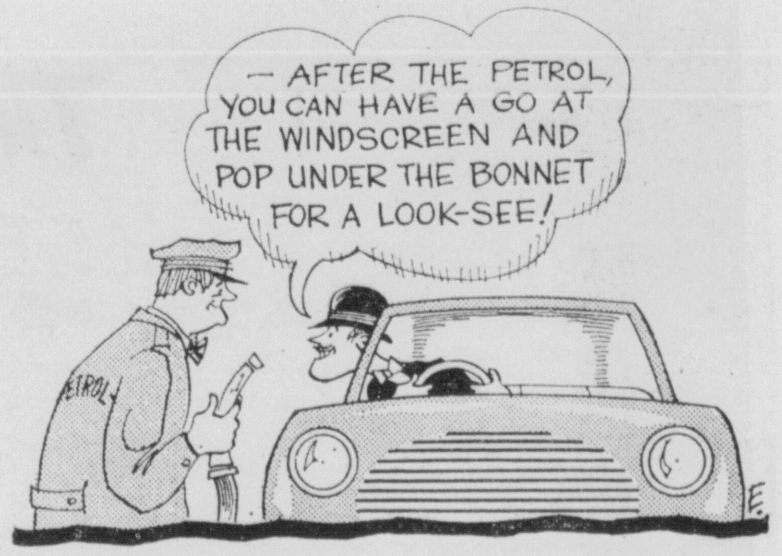
SOME DIFFERENCES are only a matter of spelling, he points out, such as those ending in -our (colour, honour); the re group (centre, theatre); the -ise words (criticise, agonise) and -xion words (connexion, inflexion), plus variations such as tyre and kerb.

"There's so much back-and-forth traveling now that they're picking up our Yankeeisms and we're picking up their Briticisms, but I think we're giving them more than they're giving us," says the Boston native. "Their flat is becoming an apartment, they're substituting radio for wireless and not long ago they wouldn't have known what a T-shirt is."

Though Americans don't actually have to use sign language in order to talk to their British cousins, there are a few things they would find handy to know, he notes. "For instance, a 'public convenience' is what is often a private necessity — a restroom. And don't ever ask an English friend to hang his coat in a closet, which means toilet. Ask him to hang it in the cupboard."

"THEN, OF course, you fill your motor car with petrol at the petrol station," Schur explains, "and perhaps the chap there will wash your windscreen and check your sparking plugs."

Beware of asking for a martini, he warns, or you'll wind up with a glass of vermouth. "If you really want a martini ask for a gin and French."



What The Visitors Fail To See: Hidden Treasures In Caribbean

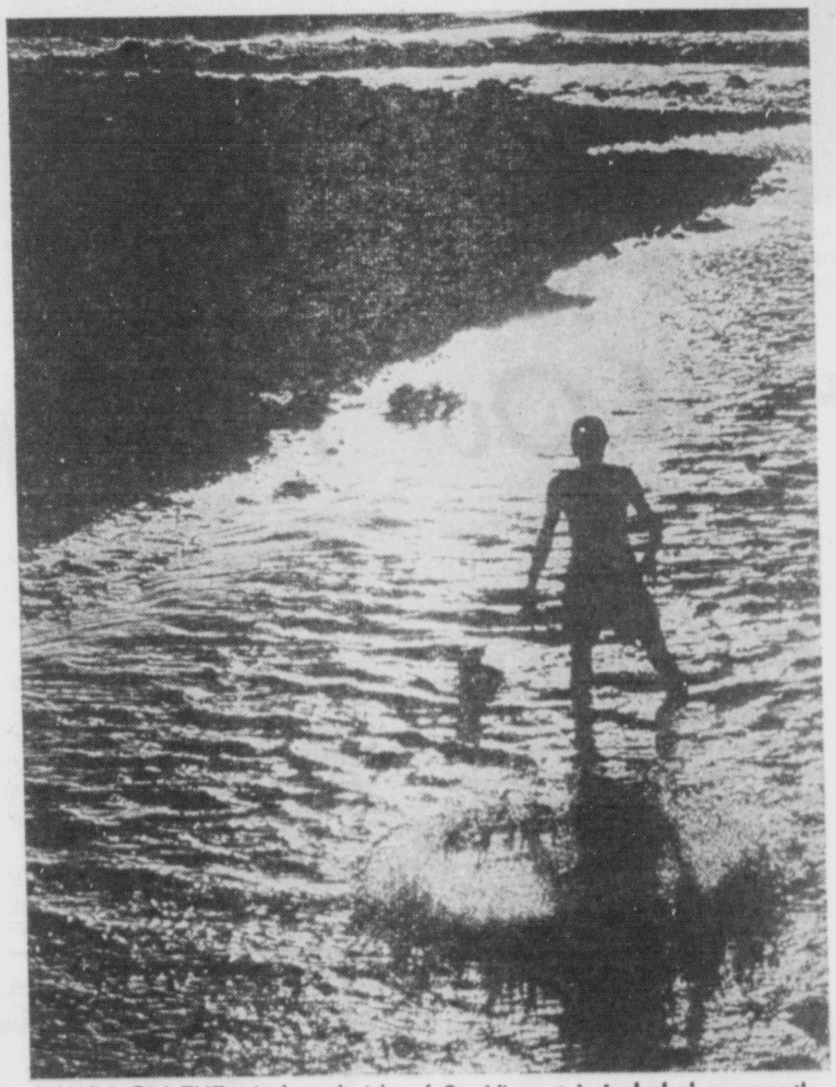
With travel to the Caribbean at its peak, thousands of tourists will be exploring the silent beauties of underwater coral reefs, marveling at the delicate plant and bird life of these unique islands, or entering the colorful and throbbing world of the carnival.

Yet most visitors depart without ever having really understood what may be one of the most fascinating aspects of the Caribbean — its incredibly rich and dramatic heritage.

ACCORDING TO Fred Ward, photojournalist and authority on this region, "No archipelago on earth has so many political divisions, such a complex past or so large an impact on the world's most powerful nations as the Virgin Islands."

Together with Ted Speigel, another photojournalist who also became fascinated with the area, Ward has produced "Golden Islands of the Caribbean," the first volume of its kind to guide the reader through all the complex forces that have shaped the entire archipelago stretching from the Virgins to Trinidad and Tobago — the Lesser Antilles.

For those spending a few hours in flight, a few days traveling by sea or simply armchair exploring, here is an engaging tale of one of the most visited, but least understood areas on earth.



DAWN ON THE windward side of St. Vincent is included among the more than 100 photographs in the new guide, "Golden Islands of the Caribbean," by Fred Ward and Ted Speigel, a Crown Publishers book.

EACH CHAPTER offers a group of islands linked by geography or historical circumstance, and presents its own marvelous cast, ranging from Columbus, Hawkins and Drake to such flamboyant characters as Edward Teach (known as Blackbeard) who studied the psychology of piracy and "determined that surprise and terror were paramount in overpowering the victim."

Ward gives some fascinating background information on even the lesser-known islands:

Bequia, a whaling island in the Windwards where, each February, lookouts on the hills still watch for signs of the great mammals.

Barbuda, just over Antigua's northern horizon, where an unrevealed slave experiment was carried out and an attempt was made to produce a strain of "super slaves" by breeding large healthy Black males with African women arriving on incoming boats.

The Isle of Nevis, once Europe's favorite spa, where London society used to come for a thermal cure.

St. Barts, the rock-strewn island, peopled with descendants of the Swedish or French, unique amongst every other Caribbean island where descendants of Africans brought in slavery make up the population. (The absence of Customs makes St. Barts a liquor buying paradise and no cheaper prices exist anywhere.)

DISCUSSING THE economics of the sugar empires of the islands, Ward offers some fresh insights into the cruel slavery upon which these industries were founded, and in his accounts of the many military battles over control, the reader learns how some of the islands changed flags more than a dozen times in the 17th and 18th centuries.

Illustrated with over 100 photographs, many in color, plus 40 historical prints, maps and photos (some of which appear here for the first time), "Golden Islands of the Caribbean" reveals a heritage four centuries old, surviving in a tropical presence that is eternally captivating. Crown is the publisher.

BAHAMAS TREES STAGE OWN SHOW FOR TOURISTS

Have you ever seen a hura crepitans, looked at a casuarina equisetifolia or a swietenia mahagoni? (If not, and a visit to Nassau or adjacent Paradise Island in the Bahamas is in the offing, you're "barking up the right trees."

The tree life around the popular Bahamas capital continues to be a source of tourist interest and it's not necessary to go out of the way to view several unusual species.

There are some two dozen trees along bustling Bay Street, the main thoroughfare lined with smart shops and equally smart shoppers. One full-branched tree, located near the Royal Bank, is appropriately named a "sandbox." Before the days of blotting paper, its large seed capsules were filled with the fine sand sprinkled on newly-written documents.

In front of the Savoy Theater, visitors can inspect a mahogany tree — the tree whose wood is valued for furniture and ships. It is even more valuable to the Bahamians during scheduled parades, since youngsters climb into the sturdy branches for better vantage points. This will again be the case during the 1973 Goombay Summer Festival when weekly events will include Bay Street dancing and musical performances. (The festival is on tap between June 3 and Sept. 9).

Over in Rawson Square, where vacationers can hire a horsedrawn surrey, or watch skilled straw workers making lovely hats, handbags and other items for sale, they'll witness yet another use for the local trees. They will see bargain priced dresses hanging from the limbs of a large almond tree in an attractive display.

One of the common but highly versatile trees that sightseers will find is the casuarina pine — not really a pine at all.

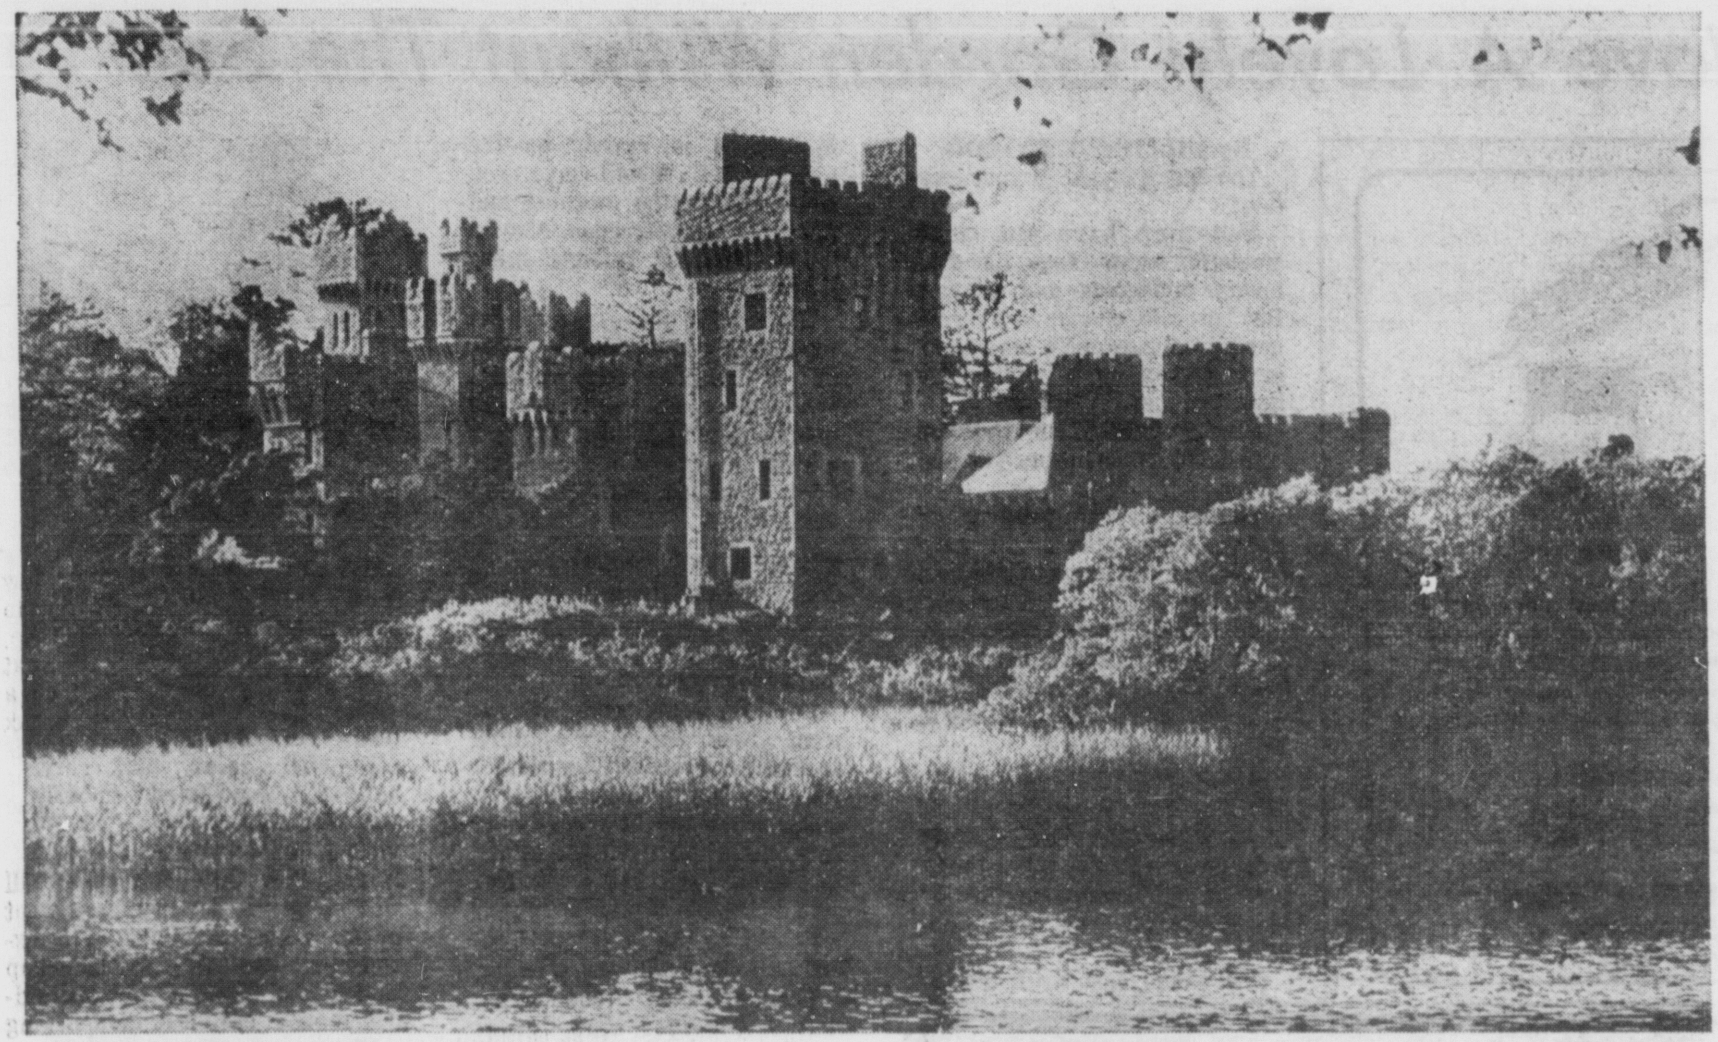
Named for the cassowary bird, the long, drooping green needles are tufted like the bird's feathers. Around the hotels of Nassau and Paradise Island, these tropical trees are trained into interesting shapes and hedges. Some casuarina, also dubbed the whistling pine, grow to heights of 100 feet or more.

About the showiest of all the trees is the poinciana, particularly beautiful because of spectacular scarlet or orange flowers that turn roadsides into fiery clusters of color. Special activities surround the time of blooming in Nassau and Paradise Island, as the islands celebrate Poinciana June.

Seagrape trees. . . the evergreen known as the autograph tree . . . a variety of stately palms . . . huge silk cotton trees, all compete for visitor attention along with many other species.

And — if that's not enough to strike your fancy there are the intriguing smaller flowers, vines and shrubs (such as the Match-Me-If-You-Can shrub, where no two leaves are alike). Though there are special places like Ardastra Gardens in Nassau or the eye-opening Versailles Gardens on Paradise Island where nature's handiwork is showcased, the vacationer discovers floral fascination almost everywhere.

If there are questions, ask away. Bahamians will gladly explain about the trees — and add some anecdotes that are as colorful as the trees themselves.



ASHFORD HOTEL on Lough Corrib in County Mayo is only one of the several attractive Irish castles that now offer overnight accommodations for guests. Similar castle-hotels can be found throughout Great Britain and on the European continent, sometimes at surprisingly economical rates.

Living Like A High King In His Castle For $21 A Day

By ALBERITA SEMRAD

There's something about an overnight stay in a castle that increases one's travel enjoyment tremendously. And castles abound.

Usually travel agents can suggest several within reach of whatever size purse you carry.

Certainly the crumbling ones with authenticated, ancient histories belong on the "must see" list.

But it is the reconditioned ones with modern kitchen, bathroom, and heating equipment alongside the suits of armor, tapestries and Holbein portraits that merit a bed-and-board visit.

FOR INSTANCE, in 1014, High King Brien Boru received a Dromoland castle and the 1,500 colorful acres that surround it as a reward for driving the Danes away from the coast of Ireland. From then on, many, many O'Briens, all descendants of this purposeful high king, lived in the two successive castles that finally evolved into the current, magnificent structure that Bernard McDonough of West Virginia, U.S.A., bought in 1962.

Following the signing of the contract with price paid in full, the late Dorothy Draper focused her agile thinking and decorating acumen on the huge, rambling castle to help it become one of the most dazzlingly complete hotels you can imagine. Appropriate carpeting cushions Dromoland Castle floors, and each of the 17 large high-ceilinged bedrooms has window views of either a lake and the River Rine, or wide lawns and formal gardens. Each bedroom has a private bath with dependable heat.

Tennis, golf, fishing, and horseback riding are available for those of the castle-hotel's paying guests whose energy demands more activity than watching glorious sunsets and enjoying delicious meals served with eclat.

MY HALF OF the cost of a sumptuously furnished twin-bedded room, including three superb meals a day, was $21 per diem. A beautiful bargain!

Not far from Dromoland is spectacular Ashford Castle on Lough Corrib near Cong in County Mayo. The wall around this turreted structure has lookout towers well worth exploring.

Since fishermen flock to nearby, tranquil Lough Corrib in May for fly-fishing, early reservations at Ashford are advisable.

In mid-May, three blankets and an eiderdown puff on my bed kept me comfortable at night.

TULIPS IN THE castle-hotel's gardens are beyond belief — huge, all colors, and on sturdy 18-inch stems.

I paid approximately $11.40 a day for my half of a twin-bedded room with bath, breakfast, lunch, and dinner, for a three-day stay.

The Castle of Invercauld near Braemar, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, is something very special. It is as unusual to see a real broadsword, a targe, and a musket of long ago in a medieval Great Hall as it is to see a used dungeon. All of these are at Invercauld, as well as the low door into the stone-walled room that was part of the original castle of Clan Farquharson (owners of Invercauld) in 1500.

Electricity and plumbing have added a modern touch of comfort to the castle's unusual charm. But bring your snuggies, bed socks and a brace of sweaters!

FRESH VEGETABLES and fruit from the castle's kitchen garden, dairy produce and poultry from the home farm, and local grouse, venison, salmon, and available game provide variety to the superb meals served in the candlelighted, wood-paneled, baronial dining salon. The butler Harper, who would be an intriguing addition to any Hitchcock mystery, served these delicious foods — wth the Laird and his Lady presiding — while I was at Invercauld.

The tariff at Invercauld is not advertised, nor do the majority of travel agents know about this guest-castle in the Highlands. If you are interested seriously, write to Capt. A. A. C. Farquharson, The Castle of Invercauld, Braemar, Aberdeenshire, Scotland.

Another ancestral guest-castle that will delight you if you enjoy the best, is Gastschloss Monchstein atop the mountain Moenchsberg that rises in the heart of Salzburg, Austria.

THE CURRENT owner has a sensitive appreciation of value in antiques and objets d'art, and the wherewithal to acquire them. Generously, he has reestablished the castle's grandeur with these treasures, so that now it appears as aristocratically elegant as when it was built in 1358 for guests of the archbishops of Salzburg.

The original copper hardware remains on the doors. Oriental rugs and crystal chandeliers create a regal atmosphere. The walls are hung with brocaded satin, and, for a beguiling gesture, a single rose or a lily of the valley boutonniere is at the side of your dinner plate each evening.

There's a practical side to the place, too. The bathrooms are heated, and each bed has an eiderdown puff.

RESERVATIONS should be made far in advance because only nine guests can be accommodated at one time. I was there just before the season's closing date, Sept. 27. At that time, there was no vacancy on the application list for the following spring.

If, and when, you get to Gastschloss Monchstein, be sure to wander along the immaculate paths through the chestnut-tree groves and see the vivid flower gardens. And, by all means, have a Salzburg souffle. This beautiful golden fluff with snowy white crest is a sight to behold and heavenly to eat.

A mere 15-minute drive from Salzburg, in the delightful lake district called "Salzkammergut," captivating Schloss Fuschl comes into view at the far tip of wind-sheltered Lake Fuschl.

INSTEAD OF taking this direct route, we drove for three hours through a colorful pastoral hinterland of green fields, flower gardens, and neat houses before turning in at the castle's winding driveway.

Originally, this ideally located castle was the hunting residence of the archbishops of Salzburg. Dark-toned, copper beech and larch trees make an effective background for beds of long-stemmed pansies along with lilacs that range in color from white to magenta.

Sunbathed Lake Fuschl offers boating, swimming, and fishing for those castle guests who do not choose golf, tennis, hunting, or horseback riding for recreation.

SCHLOSS VELDEN, in the adjoining Carinthian Lake District, should be included in the guest castle list. If offers so many resort amenities. For details, write Schloss Velden, 9220 Velden Am Worther See, Carinthia, Austria.

The building date of Son Vida castle on the Balearic Island of Mallorca, in the Mediterranean off the coast of Spain, is vague. However, it is known that alterations to the manorial property were carried on in 1701.

The circular, turreted tower, with flags flying high above its narrow slit windows, remains as a decorative part of the castle-hotel — mute evidence that this was once the Vida family's stronghold.

Today Son Vida is modern to the nth degree, with garden-bordered swimming pool, tennis courts, 18-hole golf course and horseback riding available.

THOUGH ITS mountainside is some 20 minutes away from Palma, the island's commercially slanted capital, taxicabs are at hand, and a close-by bus makes the trip to town every half hour. The bus fare is six pesetas — about eight cents.

A full-length glass door opened from my bathroom onto the adjoining bedroom's balcony — ideal for sunbathing.

Son Vida's tariff ranges from 1,490 pesetas (about $21) for a twin-bedded room (two persons) with private bath during the high season, which is March 15 to Oct. 31, to 1,100 pesetas (about $15.50) during the low season of the remaining months. No meals are included in this rate.

Too much shade in your garden?

You may have too much shade for some things, like sun-loving marigolds and zinnias. But you still can have a lovely garden. A garden in the sahde, in fact, can be a particularly beautiful and restful spot.

First, you might see what you can do to let in more light and air.

There are varying degrees of shade. Many plants will grow happily in what one might call light shade. Most of us who have a shady garden have managed so we have sunshine in some parts of it each day, along with air circulation and good light.

IF YOU HAVE large established trees, you might cut off some of the lower branches. If your garage or any other buildings make shade, settle for flower borders on the south side.

The shade cast by buildings and walls is mainly on the north. This should give you some sun in the morning and again in late afternoon. Also: a white building reflects more light.

High solid fencing may be replaced by an open type fence, or if this is impractical, screened openings along the bottom and at intervals higher up will improve air circulation, give some light, and yet keep animals out.

STUDY WHAT else you might do. Hanging baskets, tubbed plants on casters for easy moving, and raised flower beds are all prevalent practices.

For the lawn area, if you want grass, choose a mixture specially advertised for shade. Burpee's Shady Nook will grow under trees and in shaded corners where most grasses refuse to thrive. Park has a mixture called Dense Shade Formula, which will grow in dense shade and also thrive in light shade.

There are a few groundcovers that will carpet shady areas and also withstand treading on. Ajuga is one of these and can be mowed. Thyme (T. vulgaris) is another. Donald Wyman's book, "Ground Cover Plants" (Macmillan), is worth consulting.

THERE ARE beautiful shrubs for your shady garden.

Barberry comesin various heights. The red-foliaged B. thumbergii atropurpurea makes a handsome low hedge or an accent among other shrubs. Deutzia gracilis bears dainty clusters of white flowers. It needs some protection in the North. The Winged Euonymus (E. alatus) is gorgeous in autumn. Beauty Bush, Tartarian Honeysuckle, Philadelphus or Mock Orange, and some of the Viburnums, all summer bloomers, can lengthen your list of choices.

And don't miss a chance to consider rhododendrons and azaleas with their beautiful flowers. Wayside has an Azalea Schlippenbachi, Royal Azalea, a soft rose-pink in huge rhodo-like clusters, one of the first to bloom.

IT WILL DO well in shade or sun, and does not require a build-in of acid soil.

Most rhododendrons like shade, although the hybirds will grow in both shade and sun. There are many varieties, all of them handsome evergreens for your shady shrub border. Among needle evergreens the yews make a fine choice.

In your perennial border in spring you can have bright primroses (primulas), clumps of columbine, dainty pink coral bells that begin to flower early but last all summer, velvety violas, and of course Bleeding Heart. The little Iris pumila will be gay in the rock garden or as a border edging. Ferns will send up their fiddleheads. Violets and lillies of the valley will make a carpet of bloom.

Many spring-flowering bulbs will join the party.

NO GARDEN is complete without some Hemerocallis day lillies. Their fountains of grass-like foliage are attractive all summer among other plants. Varieties can be chosen to have blooms in succession until autumn. They ask for little care and come these days in ravishing colors.

The Hosta day lillies, confirmed shade lovers, belong here, too. Their white or lavender flowers bloom in late summer.

Tuberous begonias are also a must, as are caladiums with their brightly colored and veined leaves. The begonias have huge blooms that look like camellias and carnations in rich colors.

In the deeper shade of my garden borders I have several ferns, pink and white astilbes, Bleeding Heart, coral bells, lily of the valley, tuberous (also fibrous) begonias, and forget-me-nots. Foxglove might be added, but I haven't tried it.

WHAT ANNUALS can you have? Topping the list are the gay and reliable Impatiens, covered with bloom all summer. Colors are coral, salmon, white, pink, and orange. The tallest are one and two feet, very bushy. The Elfins are six to 12 inches.

Nicotiana has lovely tube-shaped petunia-like flowers, white, pink, and wine-red, very fragrant. Lobelia is easily grown. Compact varieties are fine for beds, borders, edgings, and rock gardens. Trailing varieties are attractive in hanging baskets and porch boxes. Their colors are lively blue or red.

Fibrous begonias will flower all summer in shade. Some have bronzy foliage. You will find plants in the garden shops if you don't want to raise them from seed. Coleus, grown for its colored leaves, pink, red, salmon, orange-scarlet, golden-yellow, fringed and veined, will perform nicely in shade, although it is said they do better in sun.

Container Roses Now Await You At The Nurseries

Garden Pages

If the wet winter deterred you, or you just plain procrastinated and missed out on the bareroot planting season, you can still plant roses.

Best part is that many of them will be in bloom, for local nurseries have a host of popular varieties available in containers.

Container-grown roses, if not already in bloom, will be in flower very shortly. These were planted last year and will be bursting into bloom, enabling gardeners to select the exact shades of color — and flower forms — they wish to add to their gardens.

NURSERIES should have the 1973 All-America Roses, Electron, Gypsy and Medallion. This will be the first opportunity for many to see the award-winning roses in bloom.

Shopping will reveal a selection of other New Year introductions — and a cross section of roses excellent for Marin landscapes.

There are hybrid teas, floribundas, grandifloras and climbers as well as tree roses. Each classification has a unique or special quality. Let it be suffice to say that there is a rose to fit any garden situation, or location — just as long as it's a sunny site.

DESIGNERS utilize Roses for their continuous color and the possibilities offered by the various types. Low-growing floribundas, for instance, create a mass planting display — or a free-flowering border.

Container-grown Roses are as easily planted as bareroot. Cut the can away and lit out the plant and balled dirt so as not to disturb the roots. Set the plant, dirt ball and all, into the prepared planting hole.

Dig an over-size hole. Incorporate organic material or a ready-to-use planter mix with existing soil as you fill-in around the rose. Make sure it will be at the same depth, upon completion, as it was in the nursery container.

AFTER PLANTING, water immediately to settle the mixture — and the rose — in the hole. Create a permanent watering basin around the plant. Water regularly and deeply.

Wait until the rose is established before feeding it. Your nurseryman can recommend a balanced rose food for you to use — which will help promote plenteous color in the months ahead.

HOW ABOUT A PUTTING GREEN AT YOUR BACK DOORSTEP?

A putting green in the backyard is more than a little hole in the ground, but it's a practical addition for most golfers with a little bit of space, some enterprise and a desire to make their home exterior a place to play.

Three major factors to be considered, according to the American Assn. of Nurserymen, are the preparation of the soil, the selection of the lawn material, and continuing care of the green.

The initial preparation is most important in the development of an enjoyable putting green in a private yard. The size of the area can be based on the amount of space available, although something like 40 by 60 feet is desirable. The green should be elevated at the center to permit adequate drainage. An elevation of approximately six feet is preferable.

The make-up of the soil is a prime consideration. In most situations, a soil mixture of one part peat, one part top-soil and one part sand meets the need. The important thing is that the soil provide good deep percolation to permit the water to move to the root areas of the grass cover, and hold a reservoir of moisture.

A number of different types of grass will provide the fine surface desired for a professional quality putting green. Specific advice from a local nursery garden center is indicated on this matter.

Depending on how quickly the golfer wants to use the putting green, either grass sod or grass seed may be applied. Sodding the green, while somewhat more costly, can mean the area will be ready to use in a few weeks. Seeing will require a growing season before the player can get on the mini-course.

A home putting green should have four or five standard putting green cups, and these are available at most golf supply shops. The cups may be removed when the grass is to be mowed.

On the subject of maintenance, Edward Campbell, a Virginia nursery expert who has installed a number of private and commercial golf facilities, maintains that any home owner with a little common knowledge and a limited amount of time and effort to expend can give his putting green the on-going care it requires.

Grass should be kept at about one inch in height, and should be trimmed about three times a week to maintain its surface. Water and fertilization, he says, are essential, and should be applied as frequently as needed to continue vigorous health.

The spokesman for the American Assn. of Nurserymen suggests a residential putting green be planned as a part of the overall outdoor living design of the home. It should, he said, be integrated into the general arrangement of patio, other recreational areas and esthetic arrangements. And, he urges, this is the time of year to complete the planning and a start for a putting practice area at your backdoor.

The Glory Of Morning Glories—

By FRANK J. TAYLOR

One of my early morning summer-time delights is gazing across the parking area at our daily show of Heavenly Blue Don Pedros.

Don Pedros? Well, Morning Glories, if you insist. Our Chicano neighbors call them Don Pedros.

Don't ask me why. They just do, that's all, and we've picked up their term.

IT TOOK A few years of experiment to learn how to produce this Heavenly Blue Morning Glory extravaganza. And how to make it last all day.

Morning Glories are one of nature's more wasteful efforts. The blossoms burst open with the dawn and their trumpets fold up for good when the warm sun hits them. A hundred other trumpets have to replace them on the following morning.

My favorite is Heavenly Blue, well named because each trumpet matches the sky on clear days when fleecy clouds float across the pale azure canopy above. Some folks prefer pristine Pearly Gates, and some go for Scarlett O'Hara or Deep Violet, but make mine Heavenly Blue without any interlopers.

THE TOOLSHED is the backdrop for our Heavenly Blue show. Why? Well, that's a story.

First, I tired planting Morning Glories here and there around the place, hoping to hit on just the right spot. I didn't find it. The vines tangled around any other plant that was handy and made a jungle. I never could weed out the Pearlies and Scarletts and the Deep Blues, which acclimated and came up voluntarily every summer. In the sunny spots, the blossoms folded early in mid-morning.

Finally, I hit on the trick of growing Heavenly Blues in two sizable planters, which I placed in full sun to stimulate germination. When the little plants were about three inches high, I thinned them to a dozen to each planter, then moved the boxes to the corner of the toolshed where they had early morning sun but mid-day and afternnon shade.

The vines reached for the sky, twisting around wires to the eaves of the shop. Sometimes it seemed they were growing a foot a day.

ONCE UP TO the roof, they wound around each other in a tangle that is blanketed every morning with a hundred or more blue trumpets. In the semi-shade they stay open all day, often well into the evening. Next morning a new crop of trumpets greet me.

I just feast my eyes on my galaxie of Heavenly Blues and water in a little 8-8-8 nutrient, because the Morning Glory vines take a lot of nourishment out of those crowded planter boxes. I have to feed them lightly and frequently. Unlike some plants, Heavenly Blues can't gorge and store food. They need weekly feeding.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Pinch Fuchsias frequently as they grow to encourage new growth and more bloom.

✓Azaleas are in flower now in nurseries so that you can select exactly the shade of bloom that you want for your garden.

✓Plant tomatoes for summer harvest, but be sure the variety you plant is proper for Marin's climate.

✓Tuberous Begonia seedlings are available for planting in a soil rich with leaf mold.

✓Set out Dahlia tubers, and make another planting of Gladiolus bulbs.

✓As spring growth occurs on your trees and shrubs, check to make sure new and growing branches do not endanger outdoor electric wiring.

✓Check on the condition of your outdoor furniture, and when needed buy replacements. You will soon be using it daily.

✓Time to start weeding the lawn. Dandelions and other pests are springing up.

A POLL ON POOLS

"If you move to a new home, would you want a pool there?" a recent opinion survey sponsored by the National Swimming Pool Institute questioned.

Combined figures of pool owners and non-onwers show a 64 per cent positive response, 28 per cent negative or "depends" and the rest with no opinion.

Considering only pool owners in the results reveals an 80 per cent yes compared to 17 per cent no or "depends" and a 3 per cent no opinion.

How To Make Sure That Long Ladder Is Safe And Secure

Painting a two-story high home inevitably involves mounting and working from an extension ladder.

And for the neophyte, there is, inevitably, that problem of how to place that ladder properly and securely against the side of the house, so that he can work in safety.

There's no special trick involved — just a proper method.

Place the ladder flat on the ground so that its lower end is against the foundation. o to the top end of the ladder and raise it to the height of your shoulders. Carefully maneuver yourself so that you are under the ladder. Now walk forward towards the house, moving your hands on the rungs of the ladders. Always be certain that one hand has a tight grip on the next rung of the ladder before you remove the other hand from the previous rung.

When the ladder has been raised to a vertical position, slowly and carefully shift the base away from foundation until the distance is about one-fourth the length of the ladder. With a 20-foot ladder, for instance, the feet of the ladder should be about five feet away from the foundation of the house.

If te ladder is resting on soft ground, place a solid board under the feet of it. On concrete or similar ground, use a ladder with rubber treads or some form of what are called safety feet.

Never — but never — use a ladder that is in anyway defective. Fifteen feet up is no place to take chances.

AN EGG FOR ALL SEASONS

EASTER IS, of course, the traditional time for decorating eggs. And that great holiday is fast approaching. But why not, this year, produce something more permanent in the way of decorated eggs, embellishing them with baubles, bangles and beads. You can then display these "boutigue eggs" the year around in your home as conversation pieces. To get started, send $1.50 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Egg Decorating and Ornaments Pattern 524. Include your zip code number. The egg decorating is then a simple matter. More than 100 pictures plus step-by-step instructions show you how. There's a list of materials and simple tools. Plus directions on how to empty a chicken egg and sterilize the shell. You can make everything from egg decorations to stand or hang to egg jewel boxes, being shown here by Susan Brown of television's "Day of Our Lives" series. The same instructions can be used to create Christmas ornaments.

INSIDE YOUR HOME: That Very First Living Room

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Why don't we teach our children something about home environments way back in elementary school instead of dumping the problem on them at college or first-job age?

Most of them spend 12 to 16 years learning about the classic arts, chemistry and business administration, but know nothing about the basics of putting together a one-room apartment that provides a few of the amenities.

Empty space can be pleasing.

Remember the fun of moving to a brand-new house or virgin apartment? In the beginning, you think you'll try to keep it airy and spacious and won't acquire too many "things."

But that same empty space can also be a threat when the budget is minimal and the space to be filled is crying out for attention. The first year of solo living may be the hardest, financially.

SO HERE ARE a few tips on how to spend your dollars for that first living room:

1. Buy one good medium-priced upholstered seating unit. I'd advise a $300 investment. That should buy a three-place sofa covered in a striking but economical fabric. Or it might bring in a slightly better two-seater. But don't get involved in a supersize unit or unusually ornate design first time around.

2. Don't, I repeat, don't buy any tables — at least not for that first living room. Sustitute by using big round baskets topped with trays. Or choose a trio of hollow storage cubes you can stack or place individually around the room. Don't buy any kind of a coffee table.

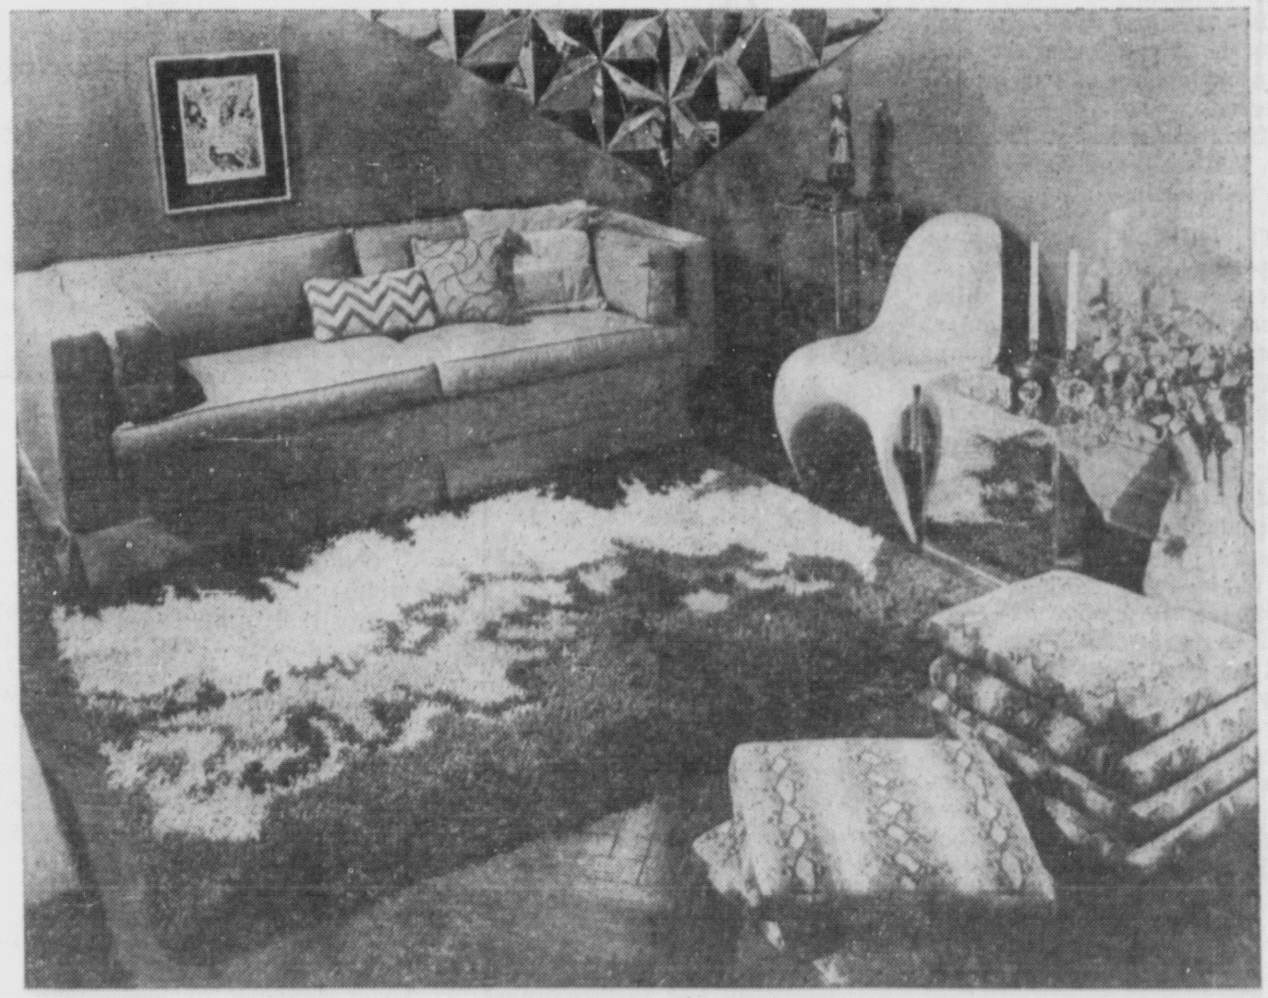
3. Buy one handsome area rug. This could be another $150 to $300 investment. But it will last your homemaking lifetime. And a rug is something you use every day. (I like to amortize the price of such an investment by thinking of the cost per day — a $300 rug used 365 days a year means less than a dollar a day for the pleasure it gives me! More than 10 years — fantastic!)

4 — Buy lamps, lamps, lamps! These can vary in price from $7 to $50, but light is one thing we cannot live without. The best sofa is wasted when you can't curl up with a book or some stitchery and have proper illumination for the task. And you need many kinds of light. Overall brightness, mood light and special-task equipment.

5. Accessories? Lots of pillows, for chair and floor. These can substitute for ottoman purposes when you want your feet up, and naturally can support a few guests at floor level. For those empty walls I'd suggest one major outlay — such as $100 worth of mirror squares or a big painting by a student artist or a patchwork quilt (which you hang on the wall). Forget small, fussy objects for now. You'll accumulate those without really trying!

THE APARTMENT shown below does incorporate some of these ideas. A fine area rug by Egetaepper was chosen and it measures four feet seven inches by six feet seven inches. Cost? $160.

It's the only bold touch of color in a neutral-toned room and strikes a dramatic note with its gold, orange and brown abstract design.



JUST A FEW good possessions can produce a most satisfying living room in that first home. And they needn't be antique armoires or sterling silver coffee services. A few dollars put into one handsome area rug, such as the $160 purchase shown here, can make all the difference. It is called Adonis, and it is by Egetaepper.

If Mortar Begins To Crumble

Handyman's Pages

By ANDY LANG

The technique of replacing crumbling mortar between bricks is known as "pointing."

More generally, it's simply knowing how to repair damaged brickwork.

Entirely aside from the appearance of a brick wall, chimney or anything else constructed with brick that has started to deteriorate, the matter of water leakage is vital. Rain coming through loose mortar in a single location on an exterior house wall can cause hundreds of dollars worth of damage to inside walls and ceilings.

YOU CAN MIX your own mortar, using one part of portland cement, one party of hydrated lime, five parts of sand and enough water to make a workable solution. But for the usual small job, it is more advisable to use premixed mortar to which only water need be added.

All loose mortar must first be removed from the ailing joint. Use a cold chisel, an old screwdriver or anything similar to pick away at the old mortar.

Remember that your objective is to remove crumbling mortar, not to break away mortar that is still solidly in place. Apply a little force so that loose or nearly loose mortar will be dislodged, but not so much force that you ruin the joint entirely. Get out as much of the loose mortar as possible, then use a small brush to remove the rest.

IF YOU NOW merely apply the mortar to the joint, the porous brick is likely to soak up most of the water in the mixture.

To avoid this, spray some water into the cavity or throw a glass or two of water up against the joint so that as much as possible enters the area. Using a small putty knife, slide the new mortar into the joint. Pack it in so that it sticks out just a little, then scoop up the excess with the putty knife, which should be scooping.

When applying the mortar, try not to spread any of it on the surface of the bricks. If any does, wipe it off instantly with a wet rag. It is difficult to remove once it begins to harden, which is almost at once.

FINISHING OFF the joints can be done in a variety of ways, but the easiest for the beginner is the V joint. The tip of a pointed trowel is pushed along the joint at a 45-degree angle. This will push out some of the mortar, which is then forced into a V-shape groove.

It takes a little practice to get the hang of this, but do not worry if you haven't achieved a perfect result. When the patches have weathered for a few weeks, they are likely to be unnoticed unless someone is looking for them. Bear in mind, however, that no matter how the joint looks, it must be formed to shed rain.

Sometimes you will find that the old martar is in such bad condition that all of it crumples the moment you touch it with a piece of metal. You then have to take out the brick and remove all the mortar. Wet the opening, soak the brick in water for 10 or 15 minutes and go ahead with the remortaring. You will have to use enough mortar so that the brick fits snugly into place.

THIS IS THE same procedure to use if the brick itself is badly damaged and must be replaced.

Spray the patched joints at least twice a day for two or three days to keep the mortar from drying out too quickly. If you use a hose for this — as in the case of a repaired wall — be sure to set the nozzle for sprinkling, otherwise the pressure of the water may push out some of the mortar.

(Repairing concrete and patching plaster are among the 35 subjects in Andy Lang's helpful handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1 to Andy Lang, Box 5, Teaneck, N.Y. 07666.)

TELEVISION NOTES

By JACK GAVER

The television version of QB VII," Leon Uris' best-seller novel, is in production as a six-hour feature by Screen Gems and the Douglas S. Cramer Company. This is the longest made-for-video movie to date. Just how and when it will reach the air has not been decided. Certainly, no one is going to be asked to take it all in one sitting. Ben Gazzara and Anthony Hopkins star in this tale of a doctor's libel suit against a writer who claims that the doctor willingly performed illegal operations on Jews for the Nazis in World War II. The odd title refers to an English court division, Queen's Bench Seven.

For the third consecutive year, ABC will telecast the 500-mile Indianapolis Memorial Day auto race on the day of its running, May 28, but, as usual on a delayed basis, 9-10 p.m.

Network announcements of prospective new half-hour comedy series for the 1973-74 season never seem to end. One of the latest is an NBC project titled "The Friday Night Group," dealing with three couples in middle-class suburbia.

CBS has acquired for its "Playhouse 90" schedule for next season the video rights to "Catholics," a forthcoming novel by Brian Moore. It deals with a dispute between the Vatican and an Irish monastic settlement over the fact that some monks are celebrating Mass in Latin instead of the prescribed English.

An NBC special for April 17 is "Upon This Rock," which provides an unprecedented tour of St. Peter's Basilica in Rome. Noted actors Sir Ralph Richardson, Dirk Bogarde, Dame Edith Evans and Orson Welles will serve as commentators.

Male Libber In Television Land

By FRANK SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Hi, I'm David Frost."

I didn't believe it. He was too short.

With that encounter, I began a brief but spectacular career on the television talk show circuit. And I owe it all to Women's Lib.

It all started when I wrote a story that turned the tables on those feminists who want to be steamfitters.

I asked for a room at a woman's hotel (No.). I applied for a job as a Playboy bunny (Can you fill the costume?). I asked for a job as a maid at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel (The blank stare).

MY ADVENTURES were catalogued in the New York Daily News. The result was a series of televised appearances as one of the country's leading male chauvinists.

The Frost show was my first, then "To Tell the Truth" and finally the "Virginia Graham Show."

At the Frost show, I encountered Jackie Vernon, a chubby comedian who didn't like my act. I didn't like his.

"Do you want to get pregnant?" Vernon asked. I replied I would rather not discuss his problems on television. This launched him into a tirade halted by a pause for a commercial. That was the end of my appearance on the David Frost show.

"To Tell the Truth" was calmer but a little more biazrre. I met two pseudo Frank Swertlows who were supposed to fool the panel by posing as me.

ONE WAS A lawyer. The other was a real estate agent. My mother would have loved them.

I gave them a two-hour lesson on my life. They went off practicing.

While waiting in the "Truth's" studio, I phoned the office. They were wondering when I was coming back to work. But they also said the Virginia Graham Show wanted me to fly to Hollywood. I agreed.

But first I had to finish my present commitment. For 10 minutes I told the truth and the imposters lied. Then I lied and the imposters told the truth.

Unfortunately, we got caught — three votes for the real Frank Swertlow, one for the imposters. Net profit, $25 and some colored beads.

Then I was off to Hollywood. My hotel was directly across from Grauman's Chinese Theater. I thought it was a restaurant.

When I arrived at the studio, I was summoned to meet Virginia. It was like an audience with the Queen of Hearts.

Seated in the corner of the dressing room was her husband, Harry, dozing behind a copy of Variety.

"I WANT TO tell you I am a very liberated woman," Virginia assured me. "I have a career and am married to the most wonderful man, Harry. Aren't I, Harry? Wake up!"

After the audience with Miss Graham was over, I was told I was going to debate two women from a Los Angeles Women's Liberation group. They looked like the Marx Brothers' sisters. I was safe. No audience would cheer for them.

Once on stage, I dispensed with being interviewed by Virginia and began interviewing the two Libs. This irritated the hostess. "Whose show is this?" she asked.

It was all downhill from there. I got to sit in her chair. She got to conduct the interviews. The two libbers got booed. Everybody was a success.

I grabbed a cab to the airport to return to the anonymous life of a newsman.

An elderly woman approached me in the airport lounge.

"You're him!" she cired.

At last someone had recognized me. "Why, yes," I replied modestly.

The woman turned to her husband.

"See, Herbie," she said. "I told you it was Woody Allen."

HOW THE SYNDICATED SHOWS RATE

Mutual of Omaha's "Wild Kingdom," which is in its second season as a syndicated television series, continues as the number one show in terms of viewing audience of syndicated programs.

An analysis of ratings of 299 syndicated programs compiled by the American Research Bureau showed "Wild Kingdom" with more than 32,800,000 viewers.

Other syndicated shows among the leaders: "Let's Make a Deal," 32,897,00 viewers; "Hee Haw," 23,874,000; "Lawrence Welk," 23,755,000, and "Hollywood Squares," 21,594,000.

ON MEDITATION AND MYSTICISM

MARIN'S BETTY BETHARDS, author of "The Sacred Sword" and co-founder of the Novato-based Inner Light Foundation, was pictured with Pete Scott upon whose KSFO radio talk show she has just completed a series of Thursday morning appearances, discussing with Scott and listeners calling in by telephone questions dealing with meditation and parapsychology. Earlier Mrs. Bethards made a television series for KQED (Channel 9) that ran three times and was also shown in Los Angeles and San Diego. She lectures the first Monday of each month at The Church in Ignacio, and also conducts seminars and speaks elsewhere. The Bethards' appearances on KSFO, the radio station reports, sparked the greatest listener response to a guest in the station's annals.

STEREO SCENE ON TAPES

By JOHN SUNIER

A really significant improvement has been reported in the sound quality of pre-recorded tapes, and I have recently checked out the printed blurbs with actual A-B listening tests and found the claims to be true.

The primary improvement made in many of the cassettes and open-reel stereotapes distributed by Ampex Stereo Tapes is use of the Dolby "B" noise suppression system. This is a simplified home version of the complex circuitry through which most professional recordings are now made.

It consists of an exaggeration of the frequency band in which annoying "hiss" is present during original recording. Then in playback this same band of frequencies is depressed, with the result that the hiss is lowered to a point where it is almost unnoticeable. It is through use of Dolby "B" attachments that home recording on cassette has been able to come up to the quality of reel-to-reel recording.

Although for optimum results, Dolby-ized tapes should be played back through a Dolby circuit, I find that these new releases sound excellent on ordinary equipment, and that seldom did I want to turn down the treble level, as Ampex suggests.

Other improvements in tape duplication have added to the better sound. These include recording on the new low-noise, high-output tapes, which allow a higher level to be impressed on the tape without distortion, thereby also lowering noise. Advances in duplication equipment and techniques also add to the "new sound." by the way, there's no increase in price.

But now on to some of the music:

"Reincarnation" (Ampex-Kama-Sutra KAM-M52062) is the cassette version of the terrific album on Kama-Sutra by West Indian singer Exuma and his group. "Brown Girl" is the big hit here, and other delights are the Beatles' "Monkberry Moon Delight" and "Empty Barrels." The group grooves with a great mix of West Indian, African, Latin and rock influences. This album provided a fine A-B test of the Dolby cassette processing, since I also had the LP to compare.

Results: The cassette version had more depth and richness, as well as seeming to have better stereo separation and bass. There was no noticeable hiss, and I didn't have to reduce the treble. The LP version had slightly more highs, as well as some surface noise. The order of tunes was different as well; something often found between 8-track cartridge and disc version of the same music, but the first I've noticed it with cassette.

Anyway, the Dolby-ized cassette comes out on top easily, and won't be getting scratchy in time to come either.

Two other interesting Dolby cassettes in the rock field are Orphan's "Everyone Lives to Sing" (Ampex-London M57197) and Catalyst's album (Ampex-Cobblestone-M59018) which goes by the name of the group. About both groups I know nothing, except that I enjoy their music. Orphan is a Beatles-flavored vocal blend that turns some lovely phrases both musically and lyrically. Catalyst is more into instrumentals, with a jazz flavor apparent. Superb sound on both cassettes.

Another Dolby-ized cassette didn't quite make it, but is of top musical interest: "The Modern Jazz Quartet" (Ampex-Prestige M52405). Probably the less-than-perfect sound is due to the music orginating not only in the pre-Dolby but even pre-stereo period. The Prestige label was a long time getting around to stereo on LPs, but this double-play cassette of such classic MJQ as "Django," "La Ronde," and the Gershwin medley is still a gas for those of us who discovered the jazz world's answer to the string quartet via these tracks some years back.
